It has been said of Tim Beckley:

If it were not for the UFOs that have intrigued me for so long, the world would have been deprived of some very interesting reading material. Furthermore, the "age of enlightenment" would have passed by Humankind in a flash. I don't mean to brag, but can you name anyone with my credentials, credibility and longevity in the world of the paranormal or UFOs?

I started out pretty young as a publisher. At age 14, I had saved enough to go out and purchase a mimeograph machine and started putting out the "Interplanetary News Service Report," which started out as a tiny 'zine and soon grew into a 50-page publication with a circulation as large as the prestigious, for its day, APRO Bulletin. Over the years, I have written, co-authored or edited over 200 books on everything from rock music to the MJ-12 documents. I've been a stringer for the national tabloids, such as the Enquirer, the Star and the Globe, and the editor of over 30 different magazines (most of which never lasted more than a couple of issues). My longest running effort was the newsstand publication UFO UNIVERSE, which went for 11 years. Today I preside over Inner Light/Global Communications and I'm editor of "The Conspiracy Journal" and "Bizarre Bazaar." I've also been a regular contributor to "Fate Magazine" for over 40 years and more recently to "Open Minds Magazine." Furthermore, I am one of the few Americans ever invited to speak before closed-door meetings on UFOs presided over by the late Earl of Clancarty at the House of Lords in England. Please note: you can read the story of my sojourn across the British Isles in a forthcoming edition of "UFO Today," a new online publication. Oh, and let's not forget that I had one of the first metaphysical centers in the country – the New York School of Occult Arts and Sciences – and for years successfully organized numerous New Age festivals.

And while I have had to cut back on some of my activities due to personal circumstances, I am still very busy doing radio and television broadcasts like Coast to Coast AM, Wm. Shatner's "Weird Or What?" and the soon-to-be-aired "Mysteries Of National Parks" on the Travel Channel. In fact, if you haven't tuned in already, you can catch me the second Sunday of every month at 9 PM Pacific Coast Time when I co-host, along with Tim Swartz and Michael Mott, OUTER EDGE RADIO at <http://www.TheOuterEdgeRadio.com/> on just about any streaming Internet device.

It's been a world of risk and challenge, and I've enjoyed every minute of this cosmic adventure (well, almost), and I hope it lasts for many more years. But you can do your part. Remember, we send out this publication for free, but it is a costly endeavor. So do order our titles in many categories. Our books and products can be purchased from most metaphysical and alternative stores as well as from Amazon (in 11 countries now) and, of course, directly from our headquarters. We'll even send you a BONUS DVD or CD if you remind us!

I hope to hear from you all soon.

Humanity is entering a new era, a departure perhaps as profound as the first kindled fire or the first turns of the first wheel. Right now, new revelations and developments are modifying all areas and all levels of our earthly human existence, bringing changes that are far more profound and sweeping than anyone can imagine or foresee. This is a very dangerous book!

ANCIENT ASTRONAUTS AND
GEORGE HUNT WILLIAMSON

LEGACY OF THE SKY PEOPLE: The Extraterrestrial Origin of Adam and Eve; The Garden of Eden; Noah's Ark and the Serpent Race by Brinsley Le Poer Trench (8th Earl of Clancarty) with Nick Redfern—Proof of ancient astronauts could cause worldwide religious, political and energy upheavals! As early as the 1960s, Britain's 8th Earl of Clancarty, Brinsley Le Poer Trench, made an astounding revelation. He was convinced that life on earth originated on the planet Mars and that the first voyagers here had been the Biblical Adam and Eve who had left their paradise of the Garden of Eden and arrived on earth in a space ark piloted by Noah. Thus the roots of the various Biblical stories from the Old Testament which are taught in every Sunday School today.

ALIEN SPACE GODS OF ANCIENT GREECE AND ROME BY W.R. DRAKE—Was the Mediterranean Region of our planet visited by a race of "super Beings" in ancient times? Was the Oracle of Delphi a conduit for prophetic messages from outer space?—Questions Answered. . . Did giants from space establish a UFO base atop the picturesque Mount Olympus? Were they the gods and goddesses of "Mythology" idolized and given names such as Apollo, Hades, Athena, Hermes, Zeus, Artemis and Hestia? Did the powerful deities of Greece help save Athens from being invaded by the mighty armies of Atlantis in 10,000 BC? Were omens observed in the sky just before the murder of Caesar?

Suppressed And Banned BOOKS OF THE BIBLE

The Forgotten Books of Eden – Based upon sacred texts removed from the Bible. NOW FULLY REVEALED...THE UNCENSORED TRUTH ABOUT THE ORIGINS OF HUMANKIND AND THE AGELESS CONFLICT BETWEEN GOOD AND EVIL. CENSORED BY THE CHURCH –THE TRUE STORY OF ADAM AND EVE. Here is the story of Adam and Eve which is the most ancient in the world, a story that has survived because it embodies the fight between man and the Devil. Adapted from the work of unknown Egyptians, parts of this version were found in the Talmud, the Koran, and elsewhere, showing the vital role it played in the literature of human wisdom. This adaptation has been passed down and was first written in Arabic and translated into Ethiopic. It is a detailed history of Adam and Eve and their descendants found nowhere else and how the "Family Tree" ties all of the Old Testament together. Includes the true story of Adam and Eve's conflict with Satan, as well as the Psalms of Solomon.

The Lost Books of the Bible – Based upon sacred texts left out of the Bible HERE ARE THE ORIGINAL TEACHINGS OF THE CHRIST BANNED FOR TWO THOUSAND YEARS, NOW MADE AVAILABLE FOR DISSEMINATION TO THE PUBLIC FOR THE FIRST TIME. One of the best kept secrets in the modern religious world is that only eighty percent of the King James Bible, as originally translated and published in 1611, is actually presented in the book the church uses as its foundation. These are the words of the Christ and his apostles as recorded by the earliest Christians, but censored by the Church, because they are believed to contain inappropriate and unorthodox studies now considered taboo and out of the mainstream of religious doctrine. This edition contains dozens of apocryphal books from the early centuries of Christianity that were deliberately excluded from the published Treatments. The question remains why were these divinely inspired texts kept out of the bible by the Church? There are those who maintain that this provocative work contains a magical code that can enrich and inspire our lives. Unravel this code and you could benefit greatly as you sit at the side of the Lord. CONTAINS NEARLY 300 PAGES OF SUPPRESSED BIBLICAL DOCUMENTS FROM THE ORIGINS OF HUMANKIND TO THE FINAL JUDGMENT—8.5" x 11"—306 pages—ISBN-13: 978-1606111710—$24.00

Forbidden Books Of Heresy—by Sean Casteel

REVEALING THE SECRETS OF THE Gnostic SCRIPTURES FROM UFOS TO JESUS' LOVE OF MARY

There is a new developing perception of the Christ causing a splintering of beliefs among the faithful. Some have begun to embrace a view that is more humanistic and more mystical. The discovery of the Gnostic scriptures in Egypt in 1945 has forced scholars and the devout to rethink their beliefs about the Bible. For example:

*Did Jesus love Mary Magdalene in a decidedly physical, even sexual way? Was she truly his favorite disciple?

* Was Jesus a kind of spiritual chameleon, changing his physical form to suit his needs and even at times resembling the ubiquitous gray alien of the UFOs?

These are the kinds of questions the author grapples with. Sean Casteel has pored over the Gnostic scriptures, and what he says may lead you into spiritual realms you never knew existed!

THE ARK OF THE COVENANT

NEW!

THE ARK OF THE COVENANT, AND OTHER SECRET WEAPONS OF THE ANCIENTS

Here is proof the ancients possessed "secret technology" that made them exceptional warriors. They might even have had the capability to annihilate their formidable foes utilizing nuclear-like devices. The question is how did they come about such an innovative science? Did they develop such devices on their own? Did God give the "chosen" unheralded power over their enemies? Or were ancient astronauts somehow involved? David Medina, along with Sean Casteel, Tim Beckley, Olav Phillips, Brad Steiger and Tim R. Swartz tackle an intriguing subject that gives evidence to the fact that the ancients had supernatural powers that were often lethal. For the first time, here is a detailed analysis of the mysterious Ark of the Covenant. Learn how the Ark was built and housed, and how the priests that tended it were required to wear protective clothing to shield them from what we call today nuclear energy. Moses even used the Ark to create a "controlled earthquake" to punish a rebellion by some of the Israelites. The desert ground opened up and swallowed the rebels. Also discover information on astounding air battles, and a very advanced type of "Thunderbolt Energy" that caused catastrophic disasters. There are also the issues of Magical Swords and superior aircraft mentioned in various ancient texts. This work contains fascinating insight into high-tech, death-dealing devices that pre-date our own by millennia.

SIGNS AND SYMBOLS OF THE SECOND COMING (Updated/Expanded Edition)

Author Sean Casteel maintains millions worldwide are awaiting the return of the Christ which could take place in our lifetime. Opinions on the Second Coming vary. "For example, there is a general consensus among a large group of UFO believers that we should await some form of open, mass landing of UFOs seen around the world. But, what if this expectation is not fulfilled until the Battle of Armageddon? Perhaps we are mistaken looking for a 'morally indifferent' landing on the White House lawn and should instead anticipate a vengeful mass landing in which the often seen flying saucers return to destroy the armies gathered by the Antichrist and establish the millennial reign of Jesus." The author speculates further as to the possible use of holograms to stage a "false flag" Second Coming and offers a checklist of signs and wonders to watch for in the countdown to the Day of the Lord.

THE CHARISMATIC, MARTYRED LIFE OF JOAN OF ARC—

by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle with an introduction by Sean Casteel. Warning! This is NOT an ordinary historical reference.

Instead this work has been transmitted across time and space through a French medium as translated by the creator of Sherlock Holmes. It may be a book that Joan of Arc helped write herself. For how did mysterious disembodied voices lead a young French peasant girl to military leadership and victories in battle for her beloved France? This was definitely not written by the author — one of the most acclaimed spiritualist mediums of his time — by "ordinary means" — instead, it came directly "from spirit." It is an historical paranormal adventure that provides insight into a remarkable charismatic individual. .

ULTIMATE GUIDES TO CONSPIRACY

Suppressed Intelligence Reports:
One Of The Most Dangerous Books Ever Published Expanded And Updated

Authored by Commander X (Ret.)

Produced by Committee Of 12 To Save The Earth

THERE ARE FORCES AT WORK ALL AROUND US . . . There are forces all around us who would like to do us in. . . They are invisible. They are silent. They are cunning and they have no regard for you or your well being despite what they might tell you. We live in a great country...but there are utterly cruel beings at the center of our destruction who wish us to be slaves to their sinister thoughts and deeds. They want us to be part of their nefarious undertakings — to take responsibility for that over which we have no control. Here in this comprehensive book we take on the task of revealing much and exposing all. Be at peace for there is still hope. Pray that the outcome will be in our favor. This book contains strictly forbidden information. Some critics have said that this could be “One of the most ‘Dangerous’ Volumes Ever Published!” Some of the controversial subjects and conspiracies you will read about, include:  The Control Of Society. —  Orwellian America Is Here Today!  The Secret Mind Control Agenda Of The NWO. —  Still Believe You Have Rights? —  The Greatest Lies Never Told. —  The Invisible World Of Illusion.  CIA Death Squads. —  School of Assassins In USA. —  Textbook Repression. —  YOU Are The Property Of The State! —  The Hidden Worlds Of The Dogon And The Reptilians. — Who Wants Population Control? —  The Pharmaceutical Racket Out Of Control. —  “Selected” UFO Sightings And Their Hidden Meanings. —  Lexicon Of Doublespeak. —  You Are A Slave Of The State. —  The Greatest Conspiracy NEVER TOLD. UPDATED AND EXPANDED — OVER 400 UNCENSORED PAGES — A LARGE BOOK — PASS IT AROUND!

Conspiracy Journal Reader: The Deepest, Darkest Secrets

Edited by Timothy Green Beckley and the staff of the Conspiracy Journal

AN EVIL WIND COMETH OUR WAY! WHAT SINISTER FORCES ARE DETERMINED TO CONTROL OUR LIVES? CHARLES FORD ONCE SAID HUMANS WERE MERE PIECES ON A COSMIC CHESSBOARD AND THAT WE ARE BUT THE PROPERTY OF AN UNKNOWN “SUPREME POWER” EQUATABLE TO A DIABOLICAL “UNIVERSAL MASTERMIND.”

The Conspiracy Journal Reader covers a multitude of subjects that will keep you glued to your seat in anticipation and suspense. Some of this material may adversely affect you. Other pieces are meant to enlighten. Either way, prepare to be intrigued as you read about: ○ The Mysterious Flying Black Triangle That No One Takes Credit For — ○ Area 51's Breeding Tanks — ○ Time Wars Blackouts — ○ Cloak of the Illuminati — ○ Confessions of a New World Order Whistle blower — ○ Exposing Grand Cosmic Deception Techniques — ○ Entering Doorways to the Past — ○ Entering the Underground Lair of the Reptilians — ○ Dark Migration: Nazis in South America — ○ UFOs and Star Wars Weapons — ○ FEMA and the Underground Government — ○ Lost Worlds and Underground Mysteries — ○ Freedom Lost: Mind Control in the 21st Century — ○ What Is Going On Inside Pine Gap? — ○ What Is The Mickey Mouse Syndrome? — ○ Uncensored: Secret Time Travel Experiments Revealed — ○ Moon Madness and Holographic Mind Control — ○ Mysterious Lights of Brown Mountain — ○ Is this Famous NC UFO Base A Front For Crashed Saucers? — ○ Pravda: From Workers Daily To Worldwide Weird — ○ Weird Inner Earth Tales Revealed — ○ More About The Lost Journals of Nikola Tesla — ○ The Madness of Sherlock Holmes. — ○ Midnight Madness in the Desert — ○ Hell Bound - UFOs in the Lake Of Fire — ○ Are Angels Real? — ○ Return of the Ancient Warriors. — ○ A Trilogy of Terror. — ○ Unmasking the True Aliens — ○ Was Noah's Ark a Vehicle from Mars? — ○ Can Humans “Fly” or Walk Through Walls?

EXPOSING THE UFO FEAR FACTOR!

DANGER LURKS ALONGSIDE OF US IN THE DARK!
THE ULTRA-TERRESTRIALS TAKE ON A VARIETY OF HORRIFYING SHAPES AND TERRIFYING FORMS!
THEY HAVE ATTEMPTED TO TAKE CONTROL OF OUR THOUGHTS AND POSSESS OUR SOULS AND BODIES!

Here are authentic accounts from the "Twilight Zone" of UFOlogy! Stories of encounters with the supposedly friendly "all-too-cute" ETs are NOT always the norm and represent only one side of the coin. Little Elliot may have befriended Steven Spielberg's cozy, cuddly alien, but all too often our almond-eyed visitors have been known to abduct, dice and slice and put us through a universe of utter torment.

Not only can the Ultra-Terrestrials be damned ornery but they have the power to interfere with both our physical and mental states and put dread into our hearts. Thus the term "UFO Fear Factor."

They can often wreak havoc on an entire household following what might seem like a benign close encounter but which ends up going well beyond a cosmic one-night stand. The Ultra-Terrestrials possess various characteristics in common with spirits from the dark corridors of demonology and have been known to produce the same sort of phenomena at UFO landing sites as you would find in a haunted house or at a séance.

* Witness grows 5 inches following close encounter! Hair of observer changes color overnight! * West Virginia man abducted by weird "vegetable"-like Ultra-Terrestrials. * Valuable objects vanish upon arrival of strange shadow beings in New Jersey home. * The mystery of the "Crawling Stumps" in Oregon. * Giants bully youngsters in Brazilian UFO terror attack. * "Fireballs" cause massive blackout. * A man named "Fred" (a pseudonym) recalls under hypnosis a horrifying sexual experience involving a half human/half animal creature. * Dr. Karla Turner, who passed away from breast cancer after she started reporting on the negative aspects of the UFO abduction phenomenon, noted: "A surprising number of abductees suffer from serious illnesses they didn't have before their encounters. These have led to surgery, debilitation, and even death from causes the doctors can't identify."

Some abductees experience a degeneration of their mental, social and spiritual well-being. Obsessive behavior frequently erupts, such as drug abuse, alcoholism, overeating and promiscuity. Strange obsessions develop and cause the disruption of normal life and the destruction of personal relationships. * Noted author/researcher Brad Steiger offers evidence that many individuals hear the guttural voices of Ultra-terrestrials commanding them to perform demonic deeds. Such was the case of a self-declared prophet of a new religion linked to the slain bodies of a family of five—all victims of human sacrifice thought to be necessary to persuade the "forces" to present the Ohio-based cult with a magical golden sword. * Some of the human implications of what the Ultra-terrestrial "invasion" represents are so potentially disturbing and disruptive that well-known talk show personality/investigator Peter Robbins declares that he has no doubt that there are "those" who are capable of just about anything in their efforts to keep the subject from us, including possibly being involved in the untimely deaths of certain truth seekers whose lives have been decidedly "glamorously" entangled with the Unknown.

THE TREE OF LIFE Old Testament Prophets Knew Its Significance

STUDY GUIDE AND 70-MINUTE CD INCLUDED

Individually cast in silver with 10 faceted stones, this beautiful pendant acts to amplify your deepest desires, broadcasting them directly to God to bring about knowledge, awareness and wisdom. This holiest of amulets casts a deep reflection on the eternal mysteries and should only be used for beneficial and positive purposes. In the Kabbala it represents a sort of "telephone" to the Heavens and is said to be the most powerful amulet ever created! Many have noticed a vast change in their life in just 14 days upon wearing this pendant.

CONVERSATIONS WITH A DAEMON

If you want to journey deeper into the Nature of Reality, then Anthony Peake is one of the voices out there that is taking it to the next level, literally.

It's an absolutely joy to listen to Anthony's perspective on this subject, he has done his research and he does an incredible job at articulating the concepts that are being discussed in the larger conversation we are having about who and what we are as Human Beings.

Even main stream particle physicists like Steven Hawking are saying the same thing, reality is an illusion, and that consciousness is really the only "true" substance of the universe, in other words Consciousness creates matter, by the act of observation, by our intent and attention.

Anthony also talks about the idea of infinite parallel realities, which is an area that is especially fascinating, because it encompasses the idea that we are also multi-dimensional beings and that everything is happening in the present moment, and linear time is simply a construct, created if you will by the collective, a type of root assumption, a belief system that exists in this virtual reality construct we call physicality, which is really just another type of dream, the purpose of "Time" is so that we can have certain types of experiences, so that we can have stories with beginnings and ends.

This is our nature, this is what we are, we are consciousness, we are immersed in an "ocean of zero point energy" and when we observe, when we go looking in expectation, this energy coalesces into the larger atoms and molecules that form the basis of what we call the physical universe.

Anthony's work also mirrors the idea that universe is simply a reflection, that universe has no choice but to reflect back to us what we believe to be true, which is why it is important to look at your belief systems, and definitions to make sure that they are serving you in a positive way, for they act as the template for the process that Anthony is talking about, they become the building blocks for the reality you will be creating as consciousness.

As we become more expanded, more integrated, we can experience more of the larger reality, the entire universe is now inside our personal reality sphere, and we find we are all headed towards the same realization, and that is, that ultimately, consciousness and energy, or conscious energy is what we are, that's our true nature, we are both Co creators and the creation itself, the observer and the observed, we are the personification of universe, there is no separating the creator from the creation any longer as main stream science has tried to do for so long.

Anthony Peake—Author of the Month

The Case For The Daemon

By Anthony Peake

Can there ever be a rationally satisfying and scientifically based explanation as to what happens to consciousness at the point of death? Anthony Peake believes that there can be and that the explanation in no way invalidates long held religious beliefs about life after death. The way in which to "Cheat The Ferryman"—to term his theory—lies deep within the structures of the brain itself, an area where thought itself touches upon the very building blocks of reality. Welcome Anthony Peake as Author of the Month. His article offers an introduction to the central elements of his theory and an opportunity for those interested to discuss the idea and offer their own opinions and experiences.

Books by Anthony Peake

The Daemon: A Guide to Your Extraordinary Secret Self—

(Paperback)—In The Daemon, Peake expands on the proposition that all consciously aware beings consist of not one but two separate consciousnesses - everyday consciousness and that of the Daemon, a higher being that seems to possess knowledge of future events. This book includes the stories of many famous artists, politicians, musicians, and scientists who have felt a force outside themselves including Winston Churchill, Byron, Goethe, Jean Cocteau, and many others.

Is There Life After Death?—

(Paperback)—Do you occasionally have that strange feeling known as déjà vu? Do you sometimes feel that you know what is going to happen next? Do you ever have a strong feeling that actions you are about to take are the right (or wrong) thing to do? All these perceptions may be everyday clues to your immortality. This book proposes a simply amazing theory - a theory that states that personal death is a scientific impossibility. Using the latest findings of neurology, quantum physics, and consciousness studies, Anthony Peake suggests that we never die. After reading this book you will understand the reason for your life and how you can make it better next time.

In The Labyrinth of Time, Anthony Peake explores the relationship between consciousness and reality, and in the process puts forward an amazing hypothesis that can explain many enigmatic phenomena, including déjà vu, precognition, near-death experience, and altered states. It features a cutting-edge account of modern time theory covering "time slips," precognitive dreams, and the elasticity of time during moments of extreme stress, near-death experience, and certain stages of hypnotic trance. The Labyrinth of Time is as compelling and persuasive as Peake's groundbreaking Is There Life After Death? and The Daemon.

"Each human being is the dwelling place of an infinite power - the root of the universe"

- Mani

The woman had settled down to a quiet evening in, curled up with a book. She was engrossed in the story and at first was not sure what she had heard. It then repeated itself. It was a voice that was somehow inside her head and yet not part of her thought processes.

The voice was absolutely insistent. It had arrived from nowhere and was quite clear about its purpose. It told her that she had a medical problem but that she was not to worry because it was there "to help her".

After a few weeks of these strange communications, some of which were precognitive, the woman, known as AB, decided that her only course of action was to go and see her doctor. The local doctor simply could not understand what was happening but assuming that the problem was psychological referred her to Dr Ikechukwu Azuonye of the Mental Health Unit at London's Royal Free Hospital. In the winter of 1984 Dr Azuonye diagnosed a straightforward case of hallucinatory psychosis. He prescribed a course of the anti-psychotic drug thioridazine and expected that would be the end of it. How wrong he was.

Initially the thioridazine seemed to work. Thinking the voice was simply a peculiar psychological interlude AB and her husband went off on holiday. However whilst out of the country, the voice had found its way through the drug barrier and was more insistent than before. It pleaded with her to return to England as soon as possible saying that she needed urgent medical treatment. Indeed it even told her an address that she should go to for help.

The voice was now becoming quite precise as regards AB's medical problem. It told her that it had two reasons for wanting her to have a scan - firstly that she had a tumour in her brain and, secondly, that her brain stem was badly inflamed. She convinced her husband that they had to go and find the address the voice had told her. Much to her surprise, and concern, the address turned out to be the computerised tomography unit of a large London hospital.

This scared her so much that she went back to see Dr Azuonye. The psychiatrist was, not surprisingly, reluctant at first to do as the voice requested. He knew that the woman had none of the symptoms associated with a brain tumour and for him to force the issue would reflect badly on his professional reputation - particularly if he divulged the source of the diagnosis. Against his better judgement he agreed that he would write to the clinic and see what they said. AB agreed and Dr Azuonye took her home.

A few months later, and after many letters, the clinic agreed to do the scan. Much to the surprise of all concerned, with the clear exception of 'the voice', the scan clearly showed an unusual mass in the brain.

AB was called in to meet with a neurological consultant. The consultant explained that the mass was probably a "meningioma tumour". As he said this, AB heard the voice agree with this diagnosis. However the voice was concerned that there had already been too much delay. It demanded that she be operated on straight away. Not only this but the voice wanted the operation done at Queen's Square Hospital. This was because it knew that that particular hospital specialised in neurological diseases.

This time the hospital authorities agreed, but the operation was to take place at the Royal Free. The voice considered this and decided that it was acceptable. A few days later AB, and, presumably, the voice itself, were under full anaesthetic and being wheeled into an operating theatre.

As AB came to after the operation the first thing she was aware of was the voice. All the insistence had gone. It said "I am pleased to have helped you. Goodbye".

When the surgeon came round to see her she already knew that her life had been saved. He explained to her that he had removed a 6.4cm (2.5 inch) tumour from her brain. He added that he was sure that had it not been removed she would have most certainly died.

Over the years this case continued to fascinate Dr Anzuonye. By 1997 he had moved to Lambeth NHS Trust and had mentioned the AB case many times to his associates. He found that the response was always either extremely positive or extremely negative and with this in mind he decided to submit an article describing the event to the British Medical Journal. He was pleased when he received a positive response and the article appeared the December edition.

Many hypothetical suggestions were made as to what had taken place in 1984 but none have been considered satisfactory. However there is now a possible answer to the question of what was happening to AB and what was the source of 'the voice'.

Who or what was this 'voice' and how did it know what was about to take place? How did it know that AB was dangerously ill? How did it know exactly what the cure could be? And how did it know who would be of the greatest help? Could it be that we all have a secret lodger in our brain - a being that has knowledge far greater than that of our own?

The central concept of my recent book The Daemon, a Guide to Your Extraordinary Secret Self is exactly this; that all conscious beings consist of not one but two semi-independent entities - one of which knows what will happen in the future. In this article I wish to present the evidence for such an idea. I will firstly review the philosophical, historical and theological background to such a belief and then I will apply some astonishing evidence from modern neurology and consciousness studies that may show that such a belief may, in fact, be true.

The Evidence from Theology

Although early civilisations such as the ancient Egyptians had a form of duality that implied more than a simple soul-body dichotomy it was the ancient Greeks who refined this into a coherent philosophy. For the Greeks human duality was reflected in two beings; a lower, everyday self called an eidolon and an immortal, transcendental being that they called a daemon.

The word daemon (or daimone as it is sometimes written) has a fascinating history that tells in its letters a good deal of social and cultural history. The ancient Greek word was daimōn, meaning deity, or god. As such the Greeks saw the word in a very positive, or at least ambivalent, way. The Romans Latinised the Greek word, turning it into daemon. For the Romans a daemon was an inner or attendant spirit that sometimes gave humble man a touch of genius (hence the term 'the demon of creativity' that is still used by people who never seem to see how curious the statement is).

The word eidolon also has an interesting philological history. Originally this word was used to describe an image or statue of a god. In turn it became associated with copy of something divine. This copy looked like the original but lacked all the qualities. For The Pagan sages this was a perfect description for the part of the human duality that was trapped in the Realm of Darkness; this entity thus became known as the Eidolon. This is the embodied self, the physical body and the personality. Put simply, this is the person. This 'lower self' is mortal and is totally unaware, unless initiated into the mysteries, of its higher self. It is very much part of this world of darkness. It is a slave to emotion and all the other ills that beset the physical being. The Daemon on the other hand, is the immortal self. This Daemon is always with the Eidolon and where possible, tries to assist and guide.

The idea of this daemon-eidolon duality was to fascinate the ancient Greeks and soon a whole philosophy of universal structure was to be built around this relationship. The earliest known writer on the subject was Empedocles. For him the daemon, although semi-imprisoned in the body, is a divine being exiled from its rightful place among the gods. It exists totally independently of its lower self, or eidolon, and has great knowledge and power. However our knowledge of this interesting belief really comes from the writings of Plato and his descriptions of the teachings of his master, the famed Socrates.

Plato tells that throughout his life his great teacher had assistance from a 'guide'. Socrates called this disincarnate voice his 'Divine Sign'. From childhood this voice had communicated to him its opinions on what he was doing, or intended to do. According to Plato this 'voice' forbade Socrates from doing things and regularly gave prognostications on whether good or bad luck would follow a certain action. It is as if Socrates 'Divine Sign' was directly aware of the philosopher's potential future. Indeed Plato was at great pains to point out that many of these predictions were marked by extreme triviality; as if this spirit was tied very closely to the minutiae of Socrates' life. Socrates explained this in the following speech to the jury who were about to condemn him to death:

"I have had a remarkable experience. In the past the prophetic voice to which I have become accustomed has always been my constant companion, opposing me even in quite trivial things if I was going to take the wrong course".

In this final act of his life Socrates was to find that his 'Divine Sign' did not oppose him. It was as if his lifelong guide and mentor was resigned to the inevitable; Socrates had to die as decreed both by fate and the jury. The hemlock goblet could not be avoided. The voice remained silent.

However the idea that all human beings have two independent elements did not remain silent. The theology proposed by Empedocles and refined by Socrates was to find many followers in the ancient Greek world and was to become a central tenant of the school of philosophy that was to become known as Stoicism.

Epictetus, the major Stoic philosopher, was quite fascinated by this duality. As with Socrates and Empedocles nothing remains of his original writings. However his pupil Arrian wrote down his teachings, recording them in two works; Discourses and the Encheiridian, or Manual. In these works it is clear that he had taken the evidence of Socrates' 'Divine Sign' and the old belief of human duality and created a cogent philosophy. He wrote:

"God has placed at every man's side a guardian, the Daemon of each man, who is charged to watch over him; a Daemon that cannot sleep, nor be deceived. To what greater and more watchful guardian could have been committed to us? So, when you have shut the doors, and made darkness in the house, remember, never to say that you are alone; for you are not alone. But God is there, and your Daemon is there".

Here we see the ongoing idea that this other entity, the daemon, is more than simply another facet of human nature. It is an independent being that watches over its lower self. That it has an ongoing consciousness is stated by the phrase that it 'cannot sleep'. Indeed the implication is that the Daemon perceives even when the Eidolon sleeps.

This belief, however, was not unique to Epictetus or even the Stoics. According to the noted historian of the late classical and early Christian period, Robin Lane-Fox the Romans had an ancient but popular belief that each man had his own attendant 'spirit' that followed him throughout his life. This being, termed his genius, was born with him and as such was honoured, therefore, by each individual, on his birthday.

For many of the early Christians the idea of such a duality of spirit was a dangerous heresy, particularly as it clearly had Pagan roots. In order to deal with this the early Church Fathers applied simple semantics. They took the word daemon and consistently applied it to designate it to a disincarnate spirit that has been spawned by the devil to tempt man away from the true God. Over time the letter 'a' was dropped and the word mutated into one we all know so well, demon. Job done.

Well not exactly. There was another group of Christians who found a good deal of theological justification for the daemon-eidolon duality. These were the little known, and quite intriguing, Gnostics.

According to the Gnostics the universe was under the influence of two conflicting forces; Light and Darkness. Human beings are in turn a reflection of this duality. Our soul is a spark that comes from the Light. It is therefore part of the positive side. However our bodies are made up of matter. Matter is part of the Darkness. As such there is this ongoing conflict within the human condition. Man is imprisoned in this body of darkness but a part of him retains memories of his divine origin. The part of man rooted in the darkness equates to the Eidolon. This being is made of matter and will cease to be when the body dies. However that part of him that retains the memory is the Dae-mon.

The central tenant of Gnosticism was that an eidolon had to reach a state of gnosis - literally 'knowledge' - and having done so they could achieve union with the daemon and in doing so move away from this corrupt world of matter. To do this they would need to spend many years being initiated into the secrets of Gnosticism.

However there are times when the Dae-mon chooses to make itself seen or heard by its Eidolon without initiation. The Eidolon in these circumstances will perceive the Daemon to be some form of guardian angel or spirit guide. Indeed Plato teaches

"We should think of the most authoritative part of the soul as the Guardian Spirit given by God which lifts us to our heavenly home."

The Gnostic sages carried this belief forward in its entirety. Valentinus taught that a person receives gnosis from their Guardian Angel but that in reality that being is simply that person's own higher self[7]. This implies that the angels that communicate between the World of Light and The World of Darkness are in fact not independent beings at all; they are Daemons from this world. We are our own teachers!

This is all very interesting with regard to the history of religion and mysticism but it really has no relevance to 21st century psychology and neurology. Or has it?

The Evidence from Neurology

That human consciousness may be dual rather than unitary may fly in the face of common sense but for those who study the brain such an idea is not only possible but probable. A swift review of brain anatomy cannot but support such a proposition. The most immediate thing that strikes you when you observe a brain for the first time is that it is not, in fact, a brain at all. It is two, virtually identical brains, joined together by a mass known as the corpus callosum. Every structure in one side is mirrored in the other, with one, curious exception, the pineal gland. There are two of everything; two limbic systems, two temporal lobes two amygdalas, the list goes on. The singularity of the pineal gland was noted in ancient times and because of its unique position it has been thought of as the location of the soul.

Neurologists have long been puzzled by this. Why should the brain be structured in this way? Indeed the puzzle has deepened in that it has been shown that certain individuals continue as normal people even when one of the hemispheres is damaged or removed. Indeed in the last fifty years or so surgery has advanced to such an extent that the corpus callosum can be cut and in doing so the two hemispheres cease to have a line of communication. When this is done these patients literally have 'split brains'. They also end up with two independent centres of consciousness. The implication of this is both clear and mind-blowing; we have two independent beings sharing our perceptions.

It is generally the case that one side of the brain is dominant and one is passive. The dominant hemisphere (usually, but not always, the left) is rational, objective and unemotional. The non-dominant (right) is understood to be irrational, subjective and emotional. However this does not on its own imply two foci of consciousness, just simply two aspects of the same consciousness. The two elements are simply seen as aspects of a unitary consciousness with the left hemisphere being generally in control with the occasional eruption of emotion from the right. This is why in recent years there have been so many 'self help' books suggesting techniques by which people can attune to their intuitive right brain. But the reality is far more complex - and fascinating.

Usually the two hemispheres work in tandem with the left generating a constant stream of inner dialogue that gives us our sense of self. Meanwhile the right hemisphere is still actively involved in all cognitive processes, working away in the background. However, and here comes the surprise, the being known as 'I' or 'me' is generally completely unaware of what its silent partner is up to. Indeed for most of the time 'I' is completely unaware of its partner. Problems arise when the two fall out of phase. Suddenly 'I' senses 'us'. However it is much more disturbing than that. The dominant hemisphere perceives its non-dominant twin as an external presence, a being that is not self but other. To the experiencer this 'sensed presence' is not themselves at all but an outside ego-alien being.

Michael Persinger of the Laurentian University in Sudbury, Canada, has spent many years studying this peculiar psychological effect. He even has a term for this perception. He calls it the 'Visitor Experience'. Indeed he has been able to reproduce the sensation under laboratory conditions. Persinger considers that the experience shows a linear progression. At its weakest the subject just feels that they are not alone - that there is something else in the room that he or she cannot see. However at its strongest the subject perceives an objectively existing being of tangible reality, a being that has great emotional significance to him or her. For some this may be perceived as an angel or even a god.

As the intensity increases the manifestation may become even more immanent in the sensual world of the subject. Sensations such as weird buzzing sounds, tingling sensations and, occasionally, a huge energy release from within the body itself.

What is of significance for Persinger is that when measured using an encephalograph the brain activity of the subject is seen to focus in on a particular part of the brain, the temporal lobes. As the activity becomes more intense it spills over into the occipital lobes. When this happens there is a sudden externalisation of the sensation. This involves the 'sensed presence' manifesting itself as a visual being fully external to the subject. A common description is of a cowed figure with just a face and hand visible through the folds.

What is very interesting is that if the lower portion of the temporal lobes become activated at this time then long dormant memories may spontaneously enter the subject's mind. The 'being' will then communicate information that seems intensely personal. This may be interpreted as telepathy or omnipotent knowledge. However there is more. According to Persinger past-life memories can be evoked in a panoramic life re-run similar to those reported during the phenomenon known as the Near-Death Experience.

If this is the case then could it be that the other major element of the NDE experience - the 'Being In White' - is really an external projection of the experiencer's non-dominant consciousness? If so it would certainly explain how this being shows such intimate knowledge of the dying person's past life.

Could it be that this being really is an independent focus of consciousness that has shared the life of its alter-ego? Could the experiments of Persinger shown that the Daemon is a very real aspect of every human being's neurological make-up?

Cheating The Ferryman?

In my first book, Is There Life After Death, The Extraordinary Science of What Happens When You Die I present evidence that during the last few seconds of life we all split into the two entities I term the Daemon and the Eidolon. Up until this moment both entities have perceived themselves as a unitary being. The Daemon, suddenly discovering its true vocation, is aware that it is responsible for the experience called the past-life review. It begins the review whilst at the same time manifesting itself as an image perceived by its Eidolon as a figure. For some this will be seen as a classical 'Grim Reaper' figure whereas to others the Daemon may be seen as a relative, religious figure or even an animal. Anything that will fit to fill in the Eidolon's preconceptions of who will be there to welcome him or her into the next life. The Daemon then starts the past-life review using the memory stores of the temporal lobes. However to be a reported Near-Death Experience actual death does not take place. The subject lives to tell the tale. Many of these survivors describe how 'my life flashed before my eyes'. This may be because the Daemon, suddenly becoming aware that death will be avoided this time, metaphorically presses the 'fast forward' button and aborts the process.

What happens in a Real-Death Experience is that the Daemon starts the past-life review without the need to fast-forward. The dying Eidolon, in the last few seconds of its life, falls out of time and re-lives again its whole life in a minute by minute three dimensional recreation of a life that is indistinguishable from the real thing. However there is one major difference - this time the Daemon is not only self-aware but remembers what happened last time. In this way the Daemon reproduces exactly the role as described by The Gnostics, the Stoics and the Pagan sages. It becomes a guardian angel looking after the life of its lower self - exactly as described by Socrates.

Could it be that most of us are living our lives in a three dimensional illusion? Well it would help to explain certain ongoing mysteries. Precognition suddenly does not defy scientific knowledge because it is simply a memory. Déjà vu can be seen for what it is - a jump in the playback mechanism or simply a flashback. And what about those weird hunches, synchronicities and intuitions that seems to regularly enter our consciousness? Could they be just messages from our own higher self - our Daemon?

entering a new era, a departure perhaps as profound as the first kindled fire, the first turns of the first wheel or the rendering of the first printed word. Right now, new revelations and developments are modifying all areas and all levels of our earthly human existence, bringing changes that are far more profound and sweeping than anyone can imagine or foresee. This is a very dangerous book!

A DANGEROUS BOOK

This is a dangerous book because it calls into question some of the assumptions we Westerners have held for centuries, if not millennia, about the nature of human existence and our place on the planet. Calling these assumptions into question isn't dangerous in and of itself, but when a lot of people do so, the underpinnings of any artificially erected social arrangement are seriously compromised! Mani Universal Religion

Manichaeism, a Universalist Faith

The Prophet Mani

Persia was between India and the Roman Empire, and the Silk Road ran through it, making Persia a crossroad of ideas. It had Jews who had fled from their homeland. After the Jews came Christians. Buddhist ideas were imported from India, and there was the indigenous Zoroastrianism. And into the mix of religious ideas arose a blend the various religions into a universalist faith: Manichaeism (pronounced mani-KEY-ism).

The founder of Manichaeism, Mani, is believed to have been the son of Parthian royalty, born in a village near Ctesiphon and a boy when Ardashir overthrew Parthian rule. As a young boy, Mani might have been taken by his father into a cult called the “Practitioners of Ab-lutions” – a cult that believed in washing away sins in baptisms. Or the group may have been the Elkesaites, a Jewish-Christian sect that arose around the year CE 100, a group believed to have celebrated the Sabbath, practiced vegetarianism, believed in circumcision, condemned the apostle Paul and criticized what it called falsehoods in Christian scripture and Mosaic law – a sect that died out around the year 400.

In the year 228, when Mani was about thirteen years-old, a Parthian prince in the city of Seleucia (a few miles from Ctesiphon) attempted but failed to restore Parthian rule. It was said that just after this failure, Mani had a revelation from God, a command to leave the religious community to which he belonged. God, it was said, told him that he did not belong in that community and told him to keep aloof from impurity and that because of his youth he should avoid proclaiming his revelation publicly.

Mani’s father had acquired a variety of religious ideas, and beliefs from the variety of religious cults were to appear in the new creed that Mani developed. By the time Mani grew into adulthood he saw commonality in various religions, and he saw himself as having a universal message. When he was around twenty-five, he claimed that he was obeying an order from heaven to abandon passions and spread the truth. He consciously imitated the apostle Paul and began traveling about in Ardashir’s empire preaching his new creed. He claimed that God called on him to preach as God had called on others before him. Mani claimed that he was the successor to prophets such as Zarathustra and Jesus, and he claimed that he was the helper promised by Jesus – as described in John 14:16. He claimed that he was the final prophet and that other religions were limited in their effectiveness because they were local and taught in one language to one people. Mani hoped that his message would be heard in all languages and in all countries.

Mani traveled to Parthia - a part of Ardashir’s empire – to become a stronghold of his faith and a base for missionary expeditions into Central Asia. He attracted followers whom he called upon to do missionary work in order to convert the entire world. Mani went to north-western India, where Ardashir's son was leading an army and extending Ardashir's rule. And while there, Mani strengthened the Buddhist element in his faith. He learned Buddhist organization and propaganda techniques and proclaimed that he was successor to the Buddha. Mani sent disciples to Egypt, and he traveled as far west as the border of the Roman Empire to strongholds of Mithra worship, where he tried to associate himself with Mithraism. Mithraism - believed to have originated among the Hindus - had been popular among the Parthians and had grown in Mesopotamia, Armenia and northwestern Persia during the first centuries BCE and CE. Mani had heated discussions with Mithraic priests, and he strengthened the Mithraism in his doctrine. Mani argued also with Zoroastrians, and he compared his beliefs with theirs. In Media, where Zurvanite Zoroastrians were strongest, Mani attempted to reform their movement.

Manichaeism Doctrine and Organization

Mani believed that his views were the most advanced and the sum and perfection of all religious wisdom. With worldly knowledge having become a greater part of religious thought, this included Mani's positions on the origins of the universe, anthropology, history, botany, zoology and geography. Like the Zoroastrians and Zurvanites his movement had an encyclopedia. He proclaimed belief in the Buddha and acknowledged the god of the Zoroastrians. He proclaimed belief in Jesus Christ and that he had taken the best of the New Testament and cleansed it of accretions and falsifications. And, like the Christian Marcion, he rejected Judaism's Old Testament.

Mani saw himself in agreement with the Zoroastrian belief that the universe was in a battle between the forces of good and the forces of evil. But where Zoroastrians saw their god Mazda as stronger than the force of evil, Mani held that the forces of evil dominated the world and that redemption - the triumph of good - would come only with a determined struggle by a select group of devotees. Mani saw the eating of flesh as the first great sin of Adam and Eve (Gehmurd and Murdiyanag). And he believed that redemption for humanity would come by abstaining from eating meat and by fasting. He taught that someday a final purification would occur, that the earth would be destroyed, that the damned would collect into a cosmic clod of dirty matter and that the kingdom of goodness and light would separate from the kingdom of evil and darkness. This, he claimed, would come as the result of people rejecting evil.

Mani organized his followers into three groups. The first group was called The Elect. The Elect lived ascetically and devoted themselves to redemption: to separating the kingdoms of light and darkness by living as purely as possible, living ascetically, and by fasting on Sundays and Mondays. They ate mainly fruit and drank fruit juice, believing that fruit contained many light particles, that water was not heavenly like fruit juice because it was simply matter. In the pursuit of redemption, the Elect was forbidden to eat or to uproot plants, to cut down any tree or kill any animal, and, like Buddhist monks, the Elect was obliged to follow complete sexual abstinence and marriage.

Mani's second group was an accommodation with worldly realities. This group was called the Hearers. They followed Mani's teachings but they also did what was forbidden for the Elect: they worked in the making of food, and they had sex and created children. They furnished the elect with food and drink, led a normal life, even eating meat, but they were obliged to fast on Sunday, and like the Elect they observed an entire month of fasting prior to the principle feast of the year: the Bema festival.

The third group of Mani's followers was necessary in making Manichaeism a popular religion. This third group was not obliged to adhere to any religious practices. They merely had to believe.

Mani, Shapur and Zoroastrianism

Ardashir died in 241 or 242, and he was succeeded by his son, Shapur I. Shapur invited Mani to his coronation. He invited Mani to speak to him in person, and he granted that Manichaeism could be taught freely through the empire, Shapur hoping perhaps that his support of Manichaeism might contribute to a wider spectrum of loyalty.

Shortly after Shapur succeeded his father, the Romans finally retaliated against Persian aggressions against their empire. Off and on into the next decade Shapur fought the Romans in Mesopotamia, Syria and Asia Minor. Shapur took Mani and Zoroastrian priests with him on his expeditions, with the Zoroastrians more favored, wearing their conical hats and white cotton robes, the white representing light and purity. With their rituals, the Zoroastrian priests cleansed the conquered lands of demons, and in the conquered lands they established their fire temples to commemorate Shapur's victories. In seeing indigenous religions as competitors, they spoke of smashing idols and destroying the dens of demons. As advocates of good, they saw no evil in war itself or in Sassanid imperialism. Mani, on the other hand, perhaps because of his broader view of culture, developed an opposition to war.

Shapur shared Mani's appreciation of different cultures. He enjoyed talks with Greek philosophers and decreed that all people, including Manichaeans, Jews, and Christians should be left free in their worship, and he persuaded the Zoroastrian priesthood to include in the Avesta works on metaphysics, astronomy and medicine borrowed from the Greeks and Indians. He created an accommodation with the Jewish leader in Mesopotamia – Samuel. Samuel accepted that Sassanian law would be respected in Jewish courts and that taxes to the Sassanid government would be paid.

The Christians under Shapur were also tolerated. By the time of Shapur, Christians had become a noticeable minority in Mesopotamia. Christian evangelists had arrived as early as the first century, mainly in Jewish communities. More Christians arrived during Shapur's rule, with his invasion of Syria. Shapur deported the populations of Damascus and other cities that he had conquered, sending large groups of Greek speaking Christians from Syria to the provinces of Persis, Parthia, Susiana and the city of Babylon, where they were allowed to organize their own communities and follow their own leaders.

With the spread of their communities, the Christians attempted to unite and describe diocese boundaries. Disputes arose between Christian communities that spoke Syriac and those that spoke Greek. A Christian bishop, Papa bar Aggai, at the capital, Ctesiphon, claimed patriarchal rights – as had the Bishop of Rome – and the bishop of Ctesiphon remained in rivalry for influence with the Christian leadership in Nisibis.

The Zoroastrians, meanwhile, were offended by Christian beliefs, foremost by the belief in a god that was the creator of all rather than the creator just of goodness. The Zoroastrians were offended also by the Christian belief that Jesus was both a god and born of an impure, earthly woman, and they were offended by the idea that a god could be crucified and die. The Christians on the other hand, drawing from their Jewish tradition and the law of Moses, were offended by the Zoroastrians not condemning marriages between close relatives.

Mani's Martyrdom

Shapur I died sometime between 270 and 273, and he was succeeded by his son, Hormizd. Mani received from Hormizd the same permission to teach that Shapur had granted him. But after only a year in power, Hormizd died, and he was succeeded by another of Shapur's sons, Bahram. With practicing a religion being a privilege granted by the king rather than a right, Manichaeism, Christianity and Judaism were threatened by the whims of any succeeding monarch. Mani was probably aware of the danger that came with Bahram's accession to power, for he decided to leave for the east, to the Kushans around Bactria, where he could count on protection. But Bahram prohibited Mani's travel.

The zealous Zoroastrian priest, Kartir, had been elevated to chief priest. And, with Bahram's support, Kartir launched an attack on the Manichaeans. Manichaeism was criticized for not identifying itself with the Sassanid Empire, and Persia's landed elite saw Manichaeism as a threat because its power base was people of the cities and merchants. A bill was presented to Bahram with accusations against Mani, and Mani was ordered to present himself to Bahram at the royal residence. Mani's arrival there created a great sensation. The King spoke to Mani with hostility, and Mani asked whether he had done anything evil. The king responded with rage and reproached Mani for various ethical transgressions. The king was most displeased by Mani's dislike of war. Mani, in turn, spoke of his services as an exorcist. The king stopped Mani's attempt to defend himself and ordered Mani and three of his followers chained and sent to prison. There, Mani died in less than a month and became a martyr to his followers. The year was 276.

Persecution of Mani's adherents followed his execution, and many of them scattered. Manichaeism had already reached Syria, Palestine and Egypt. It spread into Armenia, and it spread into Sinkiang, where it would become the state religion of the Uigur Turks. In the Roman Empire, often at war with the Persian Empire, the Manichaeans were seen as representatives of a foreign power and as dangerous aliens. That Mani had not been a supporter of the Persian Empire's wars was the kind of fine point often overlooked, and the Romans persecuted the Manichaeans, in a era when Christians were also persecuted. And without the backing of the brute power of a major state, Manichaeism would all but disappear.

THE VOICES THAT INSPIRED JOAN

Joan of Arc attributed her success to hearing "voices." Such "voices" led her to do the things she did in the way she did them. Some believe these "voices" to be divinely inspired visions. But are there scientific explanations for Joan's "voices?"

It was at the age of thirteen and a half, in the summer of 1425, that Joan first became conscious of that manifestation which she afterwards called her "voices" or her "counsel." It was at first simply a voice, as if someone had spoken quite close to her, but it seems clear that a blaze of light accompanied it, and that later on she clearly discerned in some way the appearance of those who spoke to her, recognizing them individually as St. Michael, St. Margaret, St. Catherine, and others. Joan was always reluctant to speak of her voices. She said nothing about them at her first trial, or to explain how she recognized them. None the less, she told her judges: "I saw them with these very eyes, as well as I see you."

Great efforts have been made by historians to explain these voices as the result of a condition of religious and hysterical exaltation combined with certain prophecies current in the countryside of a maiden who was to save France by a miracle.

Although Joan never made any statement as to the date at which the voices revealed her mission, it seems certain that the call of God was only made known to her gradually. But by May, 1428, she no longer doubted that she was bidden to go to help the King.

No words can adequately describe the disgraceful appalling ingratitude and apathy of Charles and his advisers in leaving the Maid to her fate. Joan was sold to the English for a sum which would amount to several hundred thousand dollars today. No doubt the English, partly because they feared their prisoner with a superstitious terror, partly because they were ashamed of the dread which she inspired, were determined at all costs to take her life.

Her country called and she responded nobly, but her country rewarded her with death by fire...they burned her alive and threw her ashes into the Seine.

As England's leading cryptozoologist, Nick Redfern, points out, "There is one important factor to remember: Conan Doyle did not invent Britain's phantom, fiery-eyed hounds. He merely brought them to the attention of the public in spectacularly entertaining style. In reality, the creature had been prowling around the British countryside for centuries; and particularly so Dartmoor – the fictional home of the world's most famous hound of horror in all its awful glory."

One nearly scared to death eyewitness proclaimed after the beast loomed in front of him: "It was the biggest bloody 'dog' I have ever seen in my life!" Legends of black dogs and phantom hounds are widespread throughout the United Kingdom as well as in the United States.

In Mind Stalkers - Mind Control of the Masses, Commander X teams up with television producer, radio talk show host and conspiracy researcher Tim R. Swartz to provide the most hush-hush "classified" secrets on a subject that has been widely ignored by the press and misunderstood by the public.

DON'T BE FOOLED - MIND CONTROL IS REAL!

There can be no mistake - that the powers that be can subliminally implant thoughts in a person's mind to control their actions, even utilizing telephones by impressing a coded message while negotiating with an individual. One of the most recent devices in this program of deception is the use of unmarked helicopters as a form of electronic mind control harassment.

FAKED "ALIEN" ABDUCTIONS, ELF WAVES, DRUGS, MENTAL MANIPULATION . . . EQUALS BEHAVIOR MODIFICATION!

Many UFO abductees maintain that they have become part of an off-the-world program designed by ETs to infiltrate our society by using monitoring devices or implants. And while Commander X and Tim Swartz do not discount this possibility, they point out that the CIA and other "Agencies" have long practiced behavior modification with drugs, hypnosis and ELF waves and more recently with computer chips placed in the brains of "dissidents." GEORGE HUNT WILLIAMSON came to realize that in America if you try to buck the status quo or change the system you can easily be slandered and identified as a dangerous dissident whether it be a communist, a fascist, or a neo Nazi. Many of the UFO/contactees of the early days of the UFO/New Age movement were thusly labeled.

Williamson – aka Brother Philip – was at the forefront of those the government was keeping an eagle eye on for fear the Russians might be using him as a highly sophisticated mind managed and manipulated “Mind Soldier.” TRAVELING THE PATH BACK TO THE ROAD IN THE SKY includes the entire text of Williamson’s most accredited work linking ancient civilizations with the remote beginnings of humanity and visitations from outer space.

In addition, a vast update on Williamson’s conflicted personality and his FBI papers has been added to this volume, as well as a fascinating commentary by Brad Steiger, who was to meet with Williamson to receive some important information when “Brother Philip passed away unexpectedly.” —

☐ TRAVELING THE PATH BACK TO THE ROAD IN THE SKY—by Brother Philip with Nick Redfern and a special commentary by Brad Steiger

A STRANGE SAGA OF SAUCERS, SPACE BROTHERS AND SECRET AGENTS—George Hunt Williamson—known as Brother Philip throughout the highlands of Peru—traveled the longest highway in this world leading him to discover a vast road into the sky that can be linked to the arrival of visitors from the universe throughout the ages. Here are the Hopi Sunclan legends of the "Giant Star." The secret of the Stone Tablets of Peru. The Time Spanners. The Beacon of the Gods. The Martian Miniatures. Fossils, Footprints and Fantasy. Evidence for the Silent World. The Unholy Six.

Also this is the book that gives Williamson's inside battle with the FBI and the Silence Group. His dealings with the mysterious disappearance of Hunrath and Wilkinson (were they murdered or abducted by UFOs?). The smuggling claims and his "association" with a sexy saucer pilot whom the FBI identified as a "ravishing woman commandant!" ☐ SECRET OF THE ANDES AND THE GOLDEN SUN DISC OF MU—by Brother Philip aka George Hunt Williamson with updates by Brent Raynes, Joshua Shapiro, Tim Swartz, John J. Robinson, Tim Beckley and Harold T. Wilkins

JOIN BROTHER PHILIP AS HE EXPLORES A HIDDEN MONASTERY HIGH IN THE ANDES WHICH HOSTS THE SUN DISC — A MAGICAL RELIC OF LOST CONTINENT SURVIVORS.—Here are the extraordinary spiritual adventures of Brother Philip in this lofty ashram high above the world, out of sight of prying eyes who would like to capture the Sun Disc for nefarious purposes. If is a fascinating story of good versus evil that is all the more relevant in these chaotic days around our planet.

The Disc eventually found its way to Lake Titicaca and was placed in a subterranean temple of the Monastery of the Brotherhood of the Seven Rays. Here it was used not only by the students of life daily, but also by the Masters and the Saints from the Mystery Schools throughout the world.

When the spiritually advanced Incas came to Peru they placed the Disc of the Sun in a specially constructed Garden of Gold where it will remain until the day "when man is spiritually ready" to receive it and use it once again. On that day the Golden Disc will be taken out of its subterranean chamber and placed high above the Monastery of the Brotherhood. — $20.00

☐ OTHER TONGUES — OTHER FLESH REVISITED!—by George Hunt Williamson, Added Comments by Joshua Shapiro

'IN MY HOUSE THERE ARE MANY MANSIONS,' JESUS STATED. NOW HERE IS THE PROOF!—"Evidence has been accumulated that there are people on earth that don't really belong here!" George Hunt Williamson, stated as early as 1955, a popular belief among New Agers even today.

This doesn't mean they came here aboard a flying saucer, disembarked, put on a tweed suit, polished up their earthly languages and moved into the house next door. It does mean, however that there is a special class or order of beings in the Universe that are different from us because of the fact that they must wander from one world to another, and from place to another. They are the "chimney sweeps" of creation. It is their specific job to be the "trash cans" of the Universe and aid their fellow man on these backward worlds."

They come in many disguises. . . Most are friendly. A few are NOT! They include: THE WANDERERS — THE MIGRANTS — THE PROPHETS — THE HARVESTERS — THE AGENTS — THE INTRUDERS — THE GUESSERS.

Williamson also deciphers the strange symbols left from a depression of the bottom of the spaceman's shoes in the soil from which a plaster-of-paris cast was made on the spot. This is the famous George Adamski contact with Orthon in the desert which Williamson was the primary witness to. It is said to reveal our ancient origins. — $20.00

☐ THE SAUCERS SPEAK: CALLING ALL OCCUPANTS OF INTERPLANETARY CRAFT—By George Hunt Williamson and Alfred Bailey. With Nick Redfern and Sean Casteel

SETI HAS IT ALL WRONG! THERE IS INTELLIGENT LIFE IN THE COSMOS — AND WE HAVE ALREADY COMMUNICATED WITH BEINGS ON OTHER WORLDS AND IN OTHER DIMENSIONS!—It is not necessary to construct giant interstellar telecommunication dishes to send amateurish binary signals into the universe.

George Hunt Williamson was able to establish radio communications with the occupants of UFOs as far back as 1952, approximately the same time the Air Force set up a Top-Secret project known as MQ707, in an official attempt to establish telecommunications with space beings in order to get them to land at Edwards Air Force Base, where it is claimed that President Eisenhower had met with Ultra-Terrestrials face-to-face. Furthermore, the FCC, along with other government agencies, has been checking out reports of mysterious interference over various broadcast frequencies. Whether it's a powerful TV station in England, high frequency channels reserved strictly for astronaut communication, ham radio sets or CB equipment, some unknown source — on or off the planet — has the ability to "cut in" and take over the airwaves as they see fit. — $15.00

Timothy Green Beckley's

MATRIX OF THE MIND: UFO ABDUCTIONS – MK ULTRA AND ELECTRONIC HARASSMENT TECHNOLOGY DESIGNED TO WARP YOUR BRAIN

We are involved in global warfare. Big Brother has us under his thumb. His use of electronic and mind control harassment operates at the speed of light and can torture, maim and kill us all! Someone is watching us day and night. Perhaps through our TV screens. Definitely 24/7 on the telephone. And how about that unmarked black helicopter or the satellite that passes over at the same time every day? Also included is the story of internationally-known model Candy Jones. As British researcher explains in the Fortean Times, "Deeply perverted sexuality appears to have been an implicit element in the covert agenda. She was frequently stripped, put to bed, drugged, hypnotized and tortured by various parties. She was put onto medical examination tables and suffered Gestapo-like interrogations." Furthermore, Sean Casteel takes us deep into the UFO abduction phenomenon and whether UFO encounters are all they seem to be on the surface. Are they part of some weird off-world mind control program?

MIND CONTROL SEX SLAVES AND THE CIA

Researchers Tracy Twyman, Nick Redfern, and Commander X reveal the unimaginable rape, torture and bloody rituals of leading politicians involved in child abuse rings, use of the dark side of the occult, drug running and human sacrifices. What is the truth about PROJECT MONARCH and the insanity affairs of the most powerful people in the world? Can we believe anything they tell us when you consider that many would like to turn us in human Sex Slaves. An acknowledged classic. — $22.00

MIND STALKERS – MIND CONTROL OF THE MASSES

Commander X and Tim Swartz says there is no denying that the powers that be can subliminally implant thoughts into a person's mind to control their actions, even utilizing telephones by impressing a coded message while negotiating with an individual. One of the most recent devices is this program of deception is the use of unmarked helicopters as a form of electronic mind control harassment. — $20.00

TIME TRAVEL

It has been the dream of philosophers and scientist alike. The fantasies of every small boy and the musings of writers and poets throughout the ages; to be able to shed the shackles of seconds, minutes and hours, to go beyond the confines of today and the shadows of yesterday.

Time travel...the very words seem to conjure up the infinite possibilities of the past and future revealed.

Whether by mechanical means like the controversial Montauk Project, or by using the untapped powers of the human mind, time travel is a reality that offers mankind the potential of freedom from the limitations of our universe.

Scientists tell us that the Hollow Earth Theory is bogus, that it's impossible that an entire civilization might exist below our feet which we know absolutely nothing about. Many claim that an advanced "Super Race" of humans have hidden themselves from the prying eyes of surface dwellers, and can only be reached by traveling to remote areas of the earth such as the North and South Poles and the expansive unexplored jungles of the Amazon where there are closely guarded entrances to this "Paradise" inside the Earth. Even the great explorer Admiral Richard E. Byrd claims to have traveled inside the planet where he was greeted by a fleet of flying saucers and a lost battalion of Nazi scientists. Here are 5 great books for your Conspiracy library.

Etidorhpa: Strange History Of A Mysterious Being And An Incredible Journey INSIDE THE EARTH

by John Uri Lloyd with introduction by Timothy Green Beckley—THIS IS THE ONLY FULLY AUTHORIZED — COMPLETE — EDITION OF THIS RARE MANUSCRIPT THAT HAS BEEN UPDATED AND CONTAINS ALL MISSING TEXT AND ILLUSTRATIONS! For decades over 60 pages of this fascinating manuscript had gone missing — or were they mysteriously “removed” because of the nature of their content? “This book,” maintains Beckley, “is a masterpiece. It is a mystery within a mystery so intriguing that it has endured for well over a century as a mater piece in occult literature.” There are various explanations as to the nature of this tale. . . Is it an absolutely true story of a trip to the earth’s interior by the author accompanied by a sightless being with superhuman abilities or is it something a bit more ‘Cloak and Dagger?’ The author was a member of a secret society — The Masons? — and his journey to a “Hidden World” can only now be told. Come with the author as he probes an unseen universe that has a secret meaning for us all. SOME SAY IT IS A TESTAMENT TO THE TRUE NATURE OF THE CREATOR. —

The Secret Lost Diary of Admiral Richard E. Byrd and The Phantom of the Poles

by Admiral Richard Byrd, William Reed, Commander X and Tim Swartz—TWO BOOKS IN ONE! In addition to the text of Admiral Byrd’s diary is a rare, “long lost” manuscript by William Reed who puts forward his theory that we live on the outside of a hollow globe. Based upon the journals of various seafarers who have explored the regions around the poles, Reed puts forward the following questions: 1. Why is the earth flattened at the poles? 2. Why have the poles never been reached? 3. Why does the sun not appear for so long in winter near the supposed poles? 4. Assuming that the earth is hollow, the interior should be warmer. 5. Why does a compass refuse to work when drawing near the supposed poles? 6. Why are Meteors constantly falling near the supposed poles? 7. Why are great quantities of dust constantly found in the Arctic Ocean? 8. What produces the Aurora Borealis? 9. Why and how are icebergs formed? 10. What causes tidal waves? 11. What causes colored snow in the Arctic region? 12. Why are the nights so long in the polar regions? 13. What causes the great ice-pressure in the Arctic Ocean during still tide and calm weather? 14. Why is the ice filled with rock, gravel, and sand? This is a book that will intrigue and fascinate. It is like nothing you have ever encountered before! — $20.00

Subterranean Worlds Inside Earth (8th Edition)

Authored by Timothy Green Beckley, Contributions by Richard Shaver—In “Subterranean Worlds Inside Earth,” author Timothy Green Beckley has collected many stories from a vast wealth of sources on the subject of what is often called “The Inner Earth Theory.” The theory holds that the Earth does not consist of molten metal at its core, as modern science tells us, but is instead quite hollow inside, and supports several different races of sentient beings as well as their impressive underground cities, said to be linked to one another by underground tunnels with above-ground openings that the occasional surface-dwelling mortal stumbles on to. Much of the information Beckley presents comes from Richard Shaver, who one day began to hear strange voices projected at him as he went about his work. Following the trail that began with that unearthly auditory experience, Shaver eventually came to the conclusion that the voices were coming from somewhere beneath the Earth, from a race of creatures he came to call the “Deros,” (degenerate robots.) — $15.00 by William L Blessing —The author, is a full gospel minister who wants to share this vital information with you! Based on Scripture, Rev.Blessing is convinced that there are “three heavens that belong to the Earth. The Apostle Paul tells us that he was ‘caught up to the third heaven’ (II Cor. 12:2) and while in that heaven he ‘heard unspeakable words which it is not lawful for a man to utter.’ (II Cor. 12:4).” Blessing states that this area of “darkness” is inhabited by a very evil people. Beyond the darkness is the moon and then the asteroid or planetoid ring of places inhabited by the outer space people. Beyond this first heaven is a vaporous ring in which there are great quantities of ice.” According to Blessing, “The Bible teaches us that there are people dwelling in the inside of the Earth. For want of a better name I shall call them Inner Earth People. I would estimate the population of the inner Earth to be ten billion, or about five times more than those of us who live on the surface of the earth. “There are 200,000,000 pilots in the flying saucers that circle the earth.” Approx 300 pages. Finding Lost Atlantis Inside The Hollow Earth by Brinsley Le Poer Trench, Introduction by Dennis Crenshaw—In addition to being the author of numerous books on UFOs and extraterrestrial archeology, Brinsley Le Poer Trench was for several decades the editor of the prestigious British Flying Saucer Review. But, his greatest influence came about as a member of England’s House of Lords. Trench, who held the title Earl of Clancarty, long campaigned in the Halls of Parliament for the Crown to “come clean” on matters related to close encounters. While the Earl strongly endorsed the theory that aliens have been coming here since the dawn of creation, toward the end of his career, his ideas took on a stranger turn, encompassing the notion that an ancient “pre-deluge” civilization existed in what we commonly refer to as the Lost Continent of Atlantis. Intermingling with this Atlantean culture were space beings arriving regularly for various reasons, some beneficial, some destructive. “The result of which,” says Brinsley, “is a long panoramic narrative in the form of legends and myths, telling us of gods that come from outer space, who ruled over Atlantis and were the progenitors of our own civilization who fought terrible wars, and made grotesque monsters and giants that turned upon the gods themselves.” — $20.00

Inner Earth People — Outer Space People: A Minister Reveals The Truth About “Alien Beings.”

COMING OF THE SPACE GUARDIANS - UFO RESCUE SQUAD, MILLIONS TO BE SAVED—ARE A GROUP OF EXTRATERRESTRIALS KNOWN AS "THE GUARDIANS" HERE TO SAVE HUMANKIND IN THE EVENT OF A GLOBAL DISASTER? — There is no doubt that "THEY" have influenced the human race since our earliest beginnings. Some say they have manipulated our bodies, minds, souls. There is a widespread belief that they are our mortal enemies, while others contend they are here to assist in our SALVATION! — So says Commander X, a former military intelligence operative. Recently, the Russian news media ran a story about a large meteorite that hurtled its way over that nation, but before it could do severe damage – and cause possible loss of life – it was hit by a UFO, causing it to explode and shatter over the Urals. The Siberian Times headline shouted: "WE WERE SAVED BY A UFO!" Are The Guardians warning us that Earth is possibly on a collision course with the mysterious sphere known as Planet X? Or perhaps a massive meteor bombardment? An asteroid strike? Or even a nuclear attack? Any of these events could spell widespread disaster. UMMO AND THE EXTRATERRESTRIAL PAPERS — THE ALIENS ARE AMONG US! THEY WISH TO COMMUNICATE! AND HAVE EVEN CONSTRUCTED CITIES IN REMOTE PLACES WHILE THEY ARE HERE! The story of UMMO starts with a series of letters and phone calls to various Spanish UFO researchers in 1965 that purportedly came from an extraterrestrial race. While the most commonly reported method of ET contact is clearly by telepathy, the aliens in this case tried a more direct, decidedly earthly method of communication. The letters contained highly detailed discourses on such weighty topics as physics and medicine that could only have been written by experts on the cutting edge in those rarified fields that are light years beyond what a lay hoaxer could have come up with. One of the letters also predicted that a UFO sighting would occur on a certain day at a certain location in Spain, and the ship did indeed appear on schedule and at the appointed place. Photos of their ships and unique symbol have been taken as added verification. A similar account has popped up in Canada and is included. MAN, BEAST, GODS OF AGHARTA: DISCOVERING THE MYSTERIOUS LOST KINGDOM OF THE INNER EARTH AND THE HOME OF THE KING OF THE WORLD—Does a secret subterranean paradise exist beneath the earth? Does its vast libraries house the wisdom of ALL AGES? Why is its very existence kept a secret under penalty of death? Contributor Dr Raymond Bernard was the first to popularize the concept of life inside our globe. This book's primarily author Ferdinand Ossendowski (one of the most spellbinding writers we have encountered) experienced compatible findings while trekking the frozen tundra of Russia. Speaking with monks and lamas he was told him about a subterranean "holy land." Millions of Buddhists worldwide accept the reality of Agharta and its benevolent ruler, though some say that it actually exists on the "edge of reality," in a "parallel universe," Hitler once sent a team of anthropologists to Tibet to seek out the kingdom. They hoped to make a pact with the King of the World who would not meet with the outsiders. Some of those who have ventured into this remote territory have never returned. No bodies have been found, leading to speculation that they eventually found the land that has been lost to time. This may be one of the most important books you ever read on the way to spiritual enlightenment. Order: MAN, BEAST, GODS OF AGHARTA - $20.00

OCCULT, WITCHCRAFT AND THE DEVIL'S FEAST IN OLD MOTHER RUSSIA

Those interested in the works of Madame Blavatsky, Nicholas Roerich, and T. Lobsang Rampa will find this greatly expanded updated work to be a most rewarding venture into a frozen land of mystery and intrigue which has just started to thaw. The atheistic government of Russia did not want to be associated with these throwbacks occultists, they saw as practicing primitive paganism. Sorcerers were thought of as being older people who possessed the secret science of curing men and animals of diseases, of appeasing demons whenever they waxed into a great fury, of staunching blood, freeing insect-infested dwellings of vermin, de-haunting houses, tracking horse thieves, invoking the souls of the dead, foretelling the future and discovering hidden underground treasures. The Wizards, Witches, Shamans, and Hags were performing what seemed like "miracles," and so noted Polish-born scientist Ferdinand Ossendowski activist and explorer, who had gained a reputation as a believer in reincarnation and cloistered underground cities like Agharta, went on a quest throughout Mother Russia to ascertain the truth about all matters supernatural and mysticism.

TWILIGHT: HIDDEN CHAMBERS BENEATH THE EARTH—"There are," says T. Lobsang Rampa, "certain places in the Earth where it is possible for the Initiate to travel down into the center of the Earth and meet representatives of that inner civilization, and among quite a number of people there is a definite knowledge that people from the inner world do come out to converse with those of the surface. Then there are the tunnels from Tibet to the inner world and tunnels from Brazil to the inner world...and one tunnel beneath the greater Pyramids." In addition to a belief in the Inner Earth reality, Rampa explores UFOs, Astral Projection, the Laws of Karma, Hypnotism and tells readers how to cope with modern day life. Rampa always considered this among his most vital works and it was his wish to share Twilight with as large an audience as possible. Order TWILIGHT: HIDDEN CHAMBERS BENEATH EARTH - $20.00

MAGICAL POWERS ONCE ENTRUSTED TO ONLY A FEW CAN NOW BE BESTOWED UPON YOU AT ONCE! THE LATEST PSYCHIC TOOLS FROM REV. WILLIAM ALEXANDER ORIBELLO, DRAGONSTAR AND OTHERS

DIVINE BIBLE SPELLS: LIVING A PROSPEROUS AND HAPPY LIFE BY UNDERSTANDING THE SECRETS OF THE HOLY BOOK

There are many secrets in the Bible that you can flourish from – but first you must know where AND HOW to look. Let this work by William Alexander Oribello and Dragonstar operate as your personal guidebook.

YOU'VE HEARD IT SAID A THOUSAND TIMES . . . WITH GOD ALL THINGS ARE POSSIBLE! HERE ARE LINKS TO HIDDEN MYSTICAL MEANINGS IN THE BIBLE THAT YOU WERE NEVER TAUGHT IN CHURCH! DISCOVER WHAT ONLY A FEW "TRUTH SEEKERS" REALIZE — THAT A SECRET CODE HAS BEEN EMBEDDED WITHIN THE SCRIPTURES THAT COULD MAKE YOU PROSPEROUS ALMOST OVERNIGHT. Among The Many Things You Will Learn Are:  Magick and Metaphysics are NOT of the Devil, but were always a major part of Christianity until such teachings were denounced during the Middle Ages.  That the burning of colored candles at specific times and on specific dates plays a significant role in a program of Biblical illumination that can lead an individual to riches.  There is a reason why the Three Wise Men arrived in Bethlehem with a variety of types of incense, including Frankincense and Myrrh. Burning incense while repeating certain verses from the Bible can triple the manifestations of your desires.  That money is NOT the root of all evil, but is our GOD GIVEN right! No one needs to be poor. Abundance is part of the natural flow of God's Universe. TAKE CONTROL OF YOUR LIFE! PUT THESE DIVINE BIBLE SPELLS TO WORK FOR YOU NOW! THE MEDIUMSHIP OF SPIRIT: THE ASCENSION OF WILLIAM ALEXANDER ORIBELLO

Authored by William Alexander Oribello, Abridged by Aurora Thyme, Designed by Tim R. Swartz

AN IMPORTANT SPIRITUAL MESSAGE TO HIS STUDENTS, FRIENDS AND ASSOCIATES — "Though I am in spirit, I am NOT dead! I am still here to assist in your needs."

"It is funny that one really never stops to consider what life is all about until it is over," declares the late metaphysician and occult adept from his new home in the spiritual realm. "We should come to accept help from the Ascended Masters whose mission is to bring the Great Wisdom of God the Creator to Planet Earth and usher us back to the Golden Age of Mankind that has eluded us for so long."

The CONTENTS of this masterful book include:  LIFE THE GREAT MYSTERY  RETURNING HOME  TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH  LEAVING IT ALL BEHIND  MAKE YOUR WISHES COME TRUE  THE CHOICE IS UP TO YOU!  THE SPIRIT OF ABUNDANCE  GUIDING OTHERS ALONG THE PATH  SO YOU WANT TO LIVE FOREVER?  THOUGHTS MADE REAL  THOUGHT ENERGY AND HOW TO USE IT  LISTEN TO WHAT THE UNIVERSE IS TELLING YOU  FIVE GREAT SECRETS YOU MUST KNOW!

Great mystics throughout the ages, as well as prophets of the Old and New Testaments, tell us that the universe comes from some unknown source and is winding its way towards some unknown end, and that its true nature can only be described by means of symbols. These symbols are thoughts set forth in pictorial forms which come from the creator of the Unknowable. It mirrors both the light and darkness without which nothing could exist. This work strives to explain the secret wisdom of the cosmos which includes understanding the meaning of moral and spiritual equilibrium, which demands a balancing of all that exists in our lives.

THE ETERNAL LIGHT The Emerald Tablet of Hermes Trismegistus: The Precepts of Hermes, engraved upon the Emerald Tablet

1. Speak not fictitious things, but that which is certain and true. 2. What is below is like that which is above, and what is above is like that which is below, to accomplish the miracles of one thing. 3. And as all things were produced by the one word of one Being, so all things were produced from this one thing by adaptation. 4. Its father is the sun, its mother the moon; the wind carried it in its belly, its nurse is the earth. 5. It is the father of perfection throughout the world. 6. The power is vigorous if it be changed into earth. 7. Separate the earth from the fire, the subtle from the gross, acting prudently and with judgment. 8. Ascend with the greatest sagacity from the earth to heaven, and then again, descend to the earth, and unite together the powers of things superior and things inferior. Thus will you obtain the glory of the whole world, and obscurity will fly far away from you. operation of the sun is completed.

Others are so seemingly simplistic you merely have to wave the apparatus in the air to have it be effective. SURVEY THE HEIGHTS AND DEPTHS OF MYSTERIOUS MOUNT SHASTA AS YOU READ THE BOOK THAT ALTERED SHIRLEY MACLAINE'S LIFE AND CHARTED THE SPIRITUAL PATHS OF THOUSANDS OF DEVOTED BELIEVERS OVER THE COURSE OF A CENTURY

"DWELLER ON TWO PLANETS" BY PHYLOS REMAINS AT THE HEART OF THE NEW AGE MOVEMENT

Now read our UPDATED NEW EDITION – Edited And Grammatically Revised For Easier Comprehension For The Modern Reader By Sean Casteel With New Material Added By Nick Redfern, Timothy Green Beckley And Paul Dale Roberts

The original DWELLER ON TWO PLANETS is said to be one of the most important texts of the 19th Century. For over a hundred years it has been passed around among those seeking the true Spiritual Path to life. Many have said it has impacted them greatly. Actress Shirley MacLaine had little interest in the occult when she was browsing in a Hong Kong bookstore only to have this work literally fall into her hands. It led to many changes in her life and a metaphysical best seller of her own, Out On A Limb.

Young author/channel Frederick S. Oliver spins a tale so compelling and so spiritually uplifting that it is doubtful that it was written by him alone as a human being. The reader will immediately see that such a wealth of detail about Atlantis and the spiritual reality could not be conjured from the imagination of an eighteen year old while working as a simple fence mender for his father who raised cattle near their home along the base of the mysterious and legendary Mount Shasta in Northern California.

Oliver foreshadows much of what would come after him, like the feminist movement of the 20th Century, the coming of UFOs with their external multicolored revolving lights and the interiors of the craft lit by some unseen light source, details verified repeatedly by modern day alien abductees and UFO contactees. In fact, many of the illustrations in this book of cigar-shaped craft look remarkably like the ships said to have been photographed by George Adamski and others decades later. Oliver, while in the channeling state, held in the thrall of an Atlantian and ancient Tibetan soul, also predicts television and cell phones in a time that predated even rudimentary radio.

Says Sean Casteel, who updated this major work into modern grammar and phraseology:

"The moral dynamics of the story will hold you spellbound, as the sins of one man's incarnation in Atlantis are repaid in his life as a gold miner in the American West. The story of the latter's initiation into a deeply secret gathering of spiritual adepts and how it leads to adventures in other dimensions will open your eyes to mysteries you never knew existed. . . This book is truly a message from the other side, and contains within it countless solutions to the many enigmas we contemplate today, and will restore your faith in the coming of a New Age promised land."

In addition to the "modernized text" you will join researchers Nick Redfern, Tim Beckley and Paul David Roberts as they reveal the many mystical secrets of Mount Shasta, widely regarded as a transformational vortex. Learn of inner earth entrances, the man who lives forever, the existence of Bigfoot on Mount Shasta, and ghost stories that will thrill you.

The book is fully illustrated and graphically designed by "Adman" William Kern. Printed in large format, it will captivate and entice the reader and provoke much thought.

WHAT CAN BE THE ULTIMATE TRUTH???

Following a close encounter some witnesses take up the casting of spells, occult rituals and try to conjure up spirits and beings often mistaken for UFO entities, but more closely aligned to the elemental kingdom.

EXPOSING THE UFO "FEAR FACTOR"

WARNING: — DANGER LURKS ALONGSIDE OF US IN THE DARK! WARNING: — THE ULTRA-TERRESTRIALS TAKE ON A VARIETY OF HORRIFYING SHAPES AND TERRIFYING FORMS! WARNING: — THEY HAVE ATTEMPTED TO TAKE CONTROL OF OUR THOUGHTS AND POSSESS OUR SOULS AND BODIES!

Stories of encounters with the supposedly friendly "all-too-cute" ETs are NOT always the norm and represent only one side of the coin. Little Elliot may have befriended Steven Spielberg's cozy, cuddly alien, but all too often our almond-eyed visitors have their own agenda, which frequently puts them at odds with our earthly well-being. They have been known to abduct, dice and slice and put us through a universe of utter torment. Not only can the Ultra-Terrestrials be damned ornery but they have the power to interfere with both our physical and mental states and put dread into our hearts. Thus the term "UFO Fear Factor." They can oftentimes wreak havoc on an entire household following what might seem like a benign close encounter but which ends up going well beyond a cosmic one-night stand. The Ultra-Terrestrials possess various characteristics in common with spirits from the dark corridors of demonology and have been known to produce the same sort of phenomena at UFO landing sites as you would find in a haunted house or at a séance. HERE ARE AUTHENTIC ACCOUNTS FROM THE "TWILIGHT ZONE" OF UFOLOGY  Witness grows 5 inches following close encounter! Hair of observer changes color overnight! West Virginia man abducted by weird "vegetable"-like UltraUltra-Terrestrials. Valuable objects vanish upon arrival of strange shadow beings in New Jersey home. The mystery of the "Crawling Stumps" in Oregon. Giants bully youngsters in Brazilian UFO attack. "Fireballs" cause massive blackout. A man named "Fred" (a pseudonym) recalls under hypnosis a horrifying sexual experience involving a half human/half animal creature.  Dr. Karla Turner, who passed away from breast cancer after she started reporting on the negative aspects of the UFO abduction phenomenon, noted: A surprising number of abductees suffer from serious illness they didn't have before their encounters. These have led to surgery, debilitation, and even death from causes the doctors can't identify. Some abductees experience a degeneration of their mental, social and spiritual well-being. Excessive behavior frequently erupts, such as drug abuse, alcoholism, overeating and promiscuity. Strange obsessions develop and cause the disruption of normal life and the destruction of personal relationships.

The ongoing plans of the Ultra-Terrestrials include rape, pillage and plunder to both individuals as well as the planet. Witnesses tell tales of unbelievable aggression...

"The creatures were hostile and went into attack modes several times, putting up dense fogs. One time when they stopped, it was like a backwards tornado coming from the mouth of the leader of the ships. It was like a ray that he was sending down a funnel. He did it five times, then he left..."

One Navy Commander with strong CIA ties has stated: "Much if not all of the phenomenon is nefarious. . . a monstrous evil with occasional good."

States one researcher: — "They can appear to us in any number of guises and shapes. They can alter our perception of our surroundings. They can take over our consciousness, disable our control of our bodies, install one of their own entities, and use our bodies as vehicles for their own activities."

TOUR GUIDE TO THE SPOOKIEST PLACES ON EARTH

JOIN A JOURNEY TO A LAND OF MYSTERY AND MYSTICISM ON THE EDGE OF REALITY HERE ARE STRANGE TALES OF WITCHCRAFT, SPIRITUALISM, LOST RACES AND RELIGIOUS MIRACLES

South American folklore has its share of unique and fantastic myths and legends. There are incredible tales of magicians and their weird magical arts, strange creatures, ghosts and other unexplained mysteries. The first explorers that entered Latin America were dazzled by the endless tropical rainforests, the strange and diverse wildlife, and the indigenous peoples and their mysterious ways. Even today, South America, offers unique perspectives and influences on the paranormal that can not be found anywhere else on the planet.

Editor, writer, researcher, travel specialist and producer, John Wilcock has circled the world in search of the strange and unusual. He has also been editor of the Witches Almanac and is the co-founder of the Village Voice and Andy Warhol's Interview.

Wilcock states: — "The people of South America live in a world steeped in ancient traditions that enhance their lives with a rich tapestry of mystical beliefs. In modern Latin America, Catholicism is the predominate religion. However, especially in Brazil, Spiritism has become extremely prevalent, believing in the survival of the human personality and the possibility of communication with the spirit world."

CIVILIZATION EXISTING INSIDE THE PLANET!

TWO BOOKS IN ONE! In addition to the text of Admiral Byrd's diary is a rare, "long lost" manuscript by William Reed who puts forward his theory that we live on the outside of a hollow globe. Based upon the journals of various seafarers who have explored the regions around the poles, Reed puts forward the following questions: 1. Why is the earth flattened at the poles? 2. Why have the poles never been reached? 3. Why does the sun not appear for so long in winter near the supposed poles? 4. Assuming that the earth is hollow, the interior should be warmer. 5. We must now resort to the compass. Does it refuse to work when drawing near the supposed poles? 6. Meteors are constantly falling near the supposed poles. Why? 7. The next query is concerning the great quantities of dust constantly found in the Arctic Ocean. What causes this dust? 8. What produces the Aurora Borealis? 9. Icebergs are next in order. Where are they formed? And how?? 10. What causes tidal waves? 11. What causes colored snow in the Arctic region? 12. Why are the nights so long in the polar regions? 13. What causes the great ice-pressure in the Arctic Ocean during still tide and calm weather? 14. Why is the ice filled with rock, gravel, and sand? This is a book that will intrigue and fascinate. It is like nothing you have ever encountered before!

#1—THE MORNINGSTAR CONSPIRACY—ebook via email attachment or CD; 219 pages—$8

“The United States was pouring millions of dollars a day into South Vietnam. There were five hundred thousand troops in the country when I was there from 1965 to 1968. Say their average wage was eight hundred dollars a month. Eight hundred dollars times half a million troops is a lot of money to have laying around come payday.

“When it became apparent that no one was going to stop the NVA, the hotshots all ran out to jump on the first planes leaving the country, but they had assigned small groups of men to destroy the billions of dollars that had to be left behind. It was called Sanction and Relieve.”

Sanction and Relieve. I shook my head in disgust.

“One hundred million dollars doesn’t take up much space. If it was in big bills—and the one hundred dollar bill was as common over there as the one dollar bill is over here—it would fit into a couple of large packing crates. There was no one who would stop a high ranking officer to check his shipments during the evacuation. Hell, the customs officers were the first ones on the planes.

“People brought out gold, art treasures, gems, money, weapons, anything they thought they could get away with, including drugs. People were too interested in throwing their babies into the cargo bays of moving aircraft and trying to dodge a fusillade of automatic weapons fire to worry about what anyone had in their suitcase.”

#2—A FINE RAVING MADNESS—ebook via email attachment or CD; 219 pages—$8

I picked up a marble-sized stone and flipped it into the lake with my thumb.

“I still don’t know what all this has to do with me, Calhoun. Sure, I knew that money was out there on the trail but I haven’t given it much thought since the end of the war. What do I care about it? If your people can’t find out who’s got it, how do you expect me to find out? I have no idea where to begin looking for clues and, besides, it isn’t my job. Sounds like a job for the Treasury Department, anyway, so how did you guys get involved?”

“The Treasury Department is working on it. So is the FBI, the CIA, and a few agencies you never even heard of. I’ve already told you why you’re involved so you might as well get it through your head that it’s become a case of getting them before they get us.”

He flipped a stone of his own and picked up another, rolling it fitfully between his fingers.

“Too many things are at stake here, Rich. We can’t allow that money to be used for anything, especially anything that will create a scandal within this Administration.”

#3—LOOSE ENDS—ebook via email attachment or CD; 260 pages—$8

If Calhoun was hiding here and watching out the windows as I approached, I didn’t want him to shoot me before I had a chance to ask him if he stole the millions of dollars from Fournery’s camp.

Mustering up my resolve, I strolled right into the compound, tied the mare to a corral post, walked around to the front porch and knocked on the door like I was there after an uncle who had gone missing.

No one responded and I could hear no sounds from within so I peeked in the windows and tried to listen through the thick log walls, then walked to the back. The blinds were up and the door was ajar so I poked my head in, knocking, and yelled a couple of times.

Nothing. I was backing out when Calhoun’s unmistakable smooth Texas drawl stopped me cold.

#4—SPACE ENOUGH AND TIME—ebook via email or CD; 204 pages—$8

“You sending someone along to steal my telephone booth?” I asked.

“It isn’t a telephone booth and it certainly isn’t yours.”

“In my name.”

“Meaningless. Are you curious enough to ask what it is?”

I was. He told me and I wished he hadn’t. But what he said explained how Judson Templeton had managed to appear out of thin air at the storage facility.

“It’s a time machine of some sort,” Dansforth said. “More likely a matter transporter. Or a combination of both. Maybe one does the other automatically.”

I spilled my coffee.

THREE NEW BOOKS

by William Kern

#5—THE WINDMILLS OF MARS—97 pages; ebook via email attachment or CD—$8 ppd.

The Prophets tell us we will live two lives. First when we are born and again when we die.

The trip, they said, would take two hundred and fifty days and the price you pay for the ticket determines whether or not you get to hibernate. Looks like I'll be awake all the way to Mars. I'm sleeping awake most of the time and pulling monsters out of my half awake dreams and laying them out on the pillow beside me like some kid with stuffed animals up against him in the night so I drag myself from the chaise and wander around the dark passageways not awake but not asleep and uncertainty and fear like an old bloodsucking vampire claw at my throat and I can hear a crazy young mother and her infants screaming and wailing their long voices somewhere down the corridor but I get tired of that yelling against those cold steel bulkheads and find myself back in the chaise with images of the red haired goddess with green fire eyes and a sweet cherry kiss mouth in some wide meadow smelling of lilacs and lavender. She was born blind, was the child, so the witchomen made charms and fetchums to hang on her neck and named her Shenandoah but everyone soon began to call her Shannon Doe. When she turned nine the child said she gave a Marsgod the best fetchum the witchomen had made her and in return it gave her its eyes. Crank says he actually met the girl on his last tour. Little bitty thing. She was around nineteen or twenty years alive then.

THE MAN WHO FELL FROM A CLEAR BLUE SKY—67 pages; ebook via email or CD—$8 ppd.

At the end of the universe lies the beginning of life. The old man looked like an oily rag someone had thrown into a pond; he just kind of floated through the world all sloshy and raggedy and older than the scaly serpent itself. No one paid much attention to him; first he was there then he wasn't and few noticed either way. He was gutter rain and trash blowing across the street. Everyone knew he was there but no one cared. He was in the corner of your eye, the corner of your mind; he was sneeze or clear your throat or scratch an itch. He happened to the world automatically like he was invisible most of the time and probably that was the way he wanted it. The only reason the old man came to my attention at all was because I spotted him twice in the same day almost the same hour all wrinkly and brown dirty mail pouch tobacco barn siding skin, tattered clothes, dull brown eyes, dull brown greasy hair, streaks of gray, dull brown lips that looked like they hadn't cracked a smile in a thousand years walking in front of me the same way I was going with his gnarled dull brown hands permanently semi-clenched like dead chicken feet, sculling himself along the sidewalk with a stick he had found somewhere and I wondered where he lived and how he managed to survive in a world that cared little or nothing for homeless things. I recalled someone mentioned that they had heard the old man had fallen from the sky and no one bothered him because the brassface police and the street thugs were scared to death of him saying he was immortal and invincible powerful filled with magic. Everyone thought he was a magician from another world and who was to say otherwise?

#8—THE WEB OF THE STARS—404 pages; ebook via email attachment or CD—$10.

The Web Was.....ALIVE! His brain seemed on the very fringe of the solution. He could feel the answer formulating. Just one more tiny advance. An adumbration came, a sort of indistinct horror. It grew clearer. He had it! The truth of the net was... Then, just as he was deciphering the shadowy solution, there came that miserable sensation as if something just in sight had silently faded. He felt as if something inside his head, which was opening, had gently closed. Such profound exasperations are familiar to every thinker. Zan Fadron stodgily went forward fighting obstinately to recapture the flair, the mental connection, but it was gone. That cell of his brain was closed and lost; that picture in his mind was faded and had vanished. He tramped on still struggling. There was something sinister, almost tragic in this near-illumination, in this warning he had almost heard, and which had died in silence.

Evidence Of Immortality

Are We Living In A Holographic Computer Simulation?

Is there life after death? Science of biocentrism can prove there is, claims Professor Robert Lanza

While the religious would argue that life on earth is a mere warm up for an eternity spent in heaven or hell, and many scientists would dismiss the concept for lack of proof – one expert claims he has definitive evidence to confirm once and for all that there is indeed life after death.

The answer, Professor Robert Lanza says, lies in quantum physics – specifically the theory of biocentrism. The scientist, from Wake Forest University School of Medicine in North Carolina, says the evidence lies in the idea that the concept of death is a mere figment of our consciousness.

Professor Lanza says biocentrism explains that the universe only exists because of an individual's consciousness of it – essentially life and biology are central to reality, which in turn creates the universe; the universe itself does not create life. The same applies to the concepts of space and time, which Professor Lanza describes as “simply tools of the mind”.

In a message posted on the scientist's website, he explains that with this theory in mind, the concept of death as we know it is “cannot exist in any real sense” as there are no true boundaries by which to define it. Essentially, the idea of dying is something we have long been taught to accept, but in reality it just exists in our minds.

Professor Lanza says biocentrism is similar to the idea of parallel universes - a concept hypothesised by theoretical physicists. In much the same way as everything that could possibly happen is speculated to be occurring all at once across multiple universes, he says that once we begin to question our preconceived concepts of time and consciousness, the alternatives are huge and could alter the way we think about the world in a way not seen since the 15th century's “flat earth” debate.

He goes on to use the so-called double-slit experiment as proof that the behaviour of a particle can be altered by a person's perception of it. In the experiment, when scientists watch a particle pass through a multi-holed barrier, the particle acts like a bullet travelling through a single slit. When the article is not watched, however, the particle moves through the holes like a wave.

Scientists argue that the double-slit experiment proves that particles can act as two separate entities at the same time, challenging long-established ideas of time and perception.

Although the idea is rather complicated, Professor Lanza says it can be explained far more simply using colours. Essentially, the sky may be perceived as blue, but if the cells in our brain were changed to make the sky look green, was the sky every truly blue or was that just our perception?

In terms of how this affects life after death, Professor Lanza explains that, when we die, our life becomes a “perennial flower that returns to bloom in the multiverse”. He added: “Life is an adventure that transcends our ordinary linear way of thinking. When we die, we do so not in the random billiard-ball-matrix but in the inescapable-life-matrix.”

Professor Lanza’s theory is explained in full in his book Biocentrism: How Life and Consciousness are the Keys to Understanding the True Nature of the Universe.

‘BIOCENTRISM’: HOW LIFE CREATES THE UNIVERSE

“The Universe in Your Head: Stem cell pioneer Robert Lanza generates controversy on a whole different plane with “Biocentrism,” a book that lays out his theory of everything.”

Every now and then, a simple yet radical idea shakes the very foundations of knowledge. The startling discovery that the world was not flat challenged and ultimately changed the way people perceived themselves and their relationships with the world. “If the earth were really round,” it was argued, “Then the people at the bottom would fall off.” For most humans of the 15th century, the notion of Earth as ball of rock was nonsense. The whole of Western natural philosophy is undergoing a sea change again, forced upon us by the experimental findings of quantum theory. At the same time, these findings have increased our doubt and uncertainty about traditional physical explanations of the universe’s genesis and structure.

Biocentrism completes this shift in worldview, turning the planet upside down again with the revolutionary view that life creates the universe instead of the other way around. In this new paradigm, life is not just an accidental byproduct of the laws of physics.

Biocentrism takes the reader on a seemingly improbable but ultimately inescapable journey through a foreign universe—our own—from the viewpoints of an acclaimed biologist and a leading astronomer. Switching perspective from physics to biology unlocks the cages in which Western science has unwittingly managed to confine itself. Biocentrism shatters the reader’s ideas of life, time and space, and even death. At the same time, it releases us from the dull worldview that life is merely the activity of an admixture of carbon and a few other elements; it suggests the exhilarating possibility that life is fundamentally immortal.

Biocentrism awakens in readers a new sense of possibility and is full of so many shocking new perspectives that the reader will never see reality the same way again.

Praise for Robert Lanza’s essay “A New Theory of the Universe,” on which Biocentrism is based:

Like it is indeed stimulating and brings biology into the whole. Any short statement does not do justice to such a scholarly work. Almost every society of mankind has explained the mystery of our surroundings and being by invoking a god or group of gods. Scientists work to acquire objective answers from the infinity of space or the inner machinery of the atom. Lanza proposes a biocentrist theory which ascribes the answer to the observer rather than the observed. The work is a scholarly consideration of science and philosophy that brings biology into the central role in unifying the whole. The book will appeal to an audience of many different disciplines because it is a new way of looking at the old problem of our existence. Most importantly, it makes you think.” — E. Donnall Thomas, 1990 Nobel Prize winner in Physiology and Medicine

“It is genuinely an exciting piece of work....

The idea that consciousness creates reality has quantum support . . . and also coheres with some of the things biology and neuroscience are telling us about the structures of our being. Just as we now know that the sun doesn't really move but we do (we are the active agents), so [it is] suggesting that we are the entities that give meaning to the particular configuration of all possible outcomes we call reality." —Ronald Green, director of Dartmouth College's Ethics Institute

"Robert Lanza, a world-renowned scientist who has spanned many fields from drug delivery to stem cells to preventing animal extinction, and clearly one of the most brilliant minds of our times, has done it again. 'A New Theory of the Universe' takes into account all the knowledge we have gained over the last few centuries . . . placing in perspective our biologic limitations that have impeded our understanding of greater truths surrounding our existence and the universe around us. This new theory is certain to revolutionize our concepts of the laws of nature for centuries to come." —Anthony Atala, internationally recognized scientist and director of the Wake Forest Institute for Regenerative Medicine at the Wake Forest University School of Medicine.

"An extraordinary mind . . . Having interviewed some of the most brilliant minds in the scientific world, I found Dr. Robert Lanza's insights into the nature of consciousness original and exciting. His theory of biocentrism is consistent with the most ancient traditions of the world which say that consciousness conceives, governs, and becomes a physical world. It is the ground of our Being in which both subjective and objective reality come into existence." —Deepak Chopra, Bestselling Author (heralded by Time magazine as one of the top heroes and icons of the century).

"This is a brave new book. Instead of placing life as an accidental byproduct, the authors place life at the apex of universal existence and purpose. It is a very thrilling and disturbing read. While the proposals made in Biocentrism seem radical and counter-intuitive at first, a bit of reflection will soon make the images clearer and place us on the pathway to a better and more commonsensical mindset" —Michael Gooch, Author of Wingtips and Spurs

". . . both interesting and worth the effort of reading it . . . From the way Lanza chooses to present his arguments, it's clear he has a solid grasp on esoteric disciplines . . . His style is conversational and his sense of wonder is as infectious as it is delightful." —Midwest Book Review

"It's a masterpiece — truly a magnificent essay. Bob Lanza is to be congratulated for a fresh and highly erudite look at the question of how perception and consciousness shape reality and common experience. His monograph combines a deep understanding and broad insight into 20th century physics and modern biological science; in so doing, he forces a reappraisal of this hoary epistemological dilemma. Not all will agree with the proposition he advances, but most will find his writing eminently readable and his arguments both convincing and challenging. Bravo" —Michael Lysaght, Professor of Medical Science and Engineering, Brown University and Director of Brown's Center for Biomedical Engineering

"As an astrophysicist, I focus my attention on objects that are very large and very far away, ignoring the whole issue of consciousness as a critical part of the Universe. Reading Robert Lanza's work is a wake-up call to all of us that even on the grandest scale we still depend on our minds to experience reality. Issues of "quantum weirdness" do have a place in the macroscopic world. Time and space do depend on perception. We can go about our daily lives and continue to study the physical Universe as if it exists as an objective reality (because the probabilities allow that degree of confidence), but we do so with a better awareness of an underlying biological component, thanks to Dr. Lanza.” —David Thompson, Astrophysicist, NASA’s Goddard Space Flight Center.

“Biomedical researcher Robert Lanza has been on the frontier of cloning and stem cell studies for more than a decade, so he’s well-acclimated to controversy. But his book Biocentrism is generating controversy on a different plane by arguing that our consciousness plays a central role in creating the cosmos. ‘By treating space and time as physical things, science picks a completely wrong starting point for understanding the world,’ Lanza declares. Any claim that space and time aren’t cold, hard, physical things has to raise an eyebrow. . . Other physicists point out that Lanza’s view is fully in line with the perspective from quantum mechanics that the observer plays a huge role in how reality is observed.” —Alan Boyle, Science Editor, MSNBC

“So what Lanza says in this book is not new. Then why does Robert have to say it at all? It is because we, the physicists, do not say it—or if we do say it, we only whisper it, and in private—furiously blushing as we mouth the words. True, yes; politically correct, hell no!” —Richard Conn Henry, Professor of Physics and Astronomy, Johns Hopkins University

“One of the most interesting books to cross my desk this summer was Biocentrism, written by Dr. Robert Lanza, who is probably best known for his groundbreaking work with stem cells. The book is an out-and-out challenge to modern physics. I found the attack on physics to be pretty compelling” —Eric Berger, Science Editor, Houston Chronicle

“Now that I have spent a fair amount of time the last few months doing a bit of writing, reading and thinking about this, and enjoying it and watching it come into better focus, And as I go deeper into my Zen practice, And as I am about half way through re-reading Biocentrism, My conclusion about the book Biocentrism is: Holy shit, that’s a really great book! —Ralph Levinson,

Professor, University of California, Los Angeles

MSNBC.com featured Dr. Robert Lanza’s book (co-authored with leading astronomer Bob Berman) Biocentrism: How Life and Consciousness are the Keys to Understanding the True Nature of the Universe on its National Academies award-winning site “Cosmic Log.” The article by Science Editor Alan Boyle includes an exclusive online abridgment of the book based on Lanza’s essay A New Theory of the Universe which appeared in The American Scholar, a leading intellectual journal which has previously published works by Albert Einstein, Margaret Mead, and Carl Sagan, among others. According to Nielsen Online, msnbc.com is the number one Current Events and Global News site with more than 40 million unique visitors a month.

“Biomedical researcher Robert Lanza has been on the frontier of cloning and stem cell studies for more than a decade, so he’s well-acclimated to controversy,” writes Alan Boyle, MSNBC.com’s Science Editor. “But his book ‘Biocentrism’ is generating controversy on a different plane by arguing that our consciousness plays a central role in creating the cosmos. ‘By treating space and time as physical things, science picks a completely wrong starting point for understanding the world,’ Lanza declares. Any claim that space and time aren’t cold, hard, physical things has to raise an eyebrow...”

Other physicists point out that Lanza’s view is fully in line with the perspective from quantum mechanics that the observer plays a huge role in how reality is observed. ‘So what Lanza says in this book is not new,’ Richard Conn Henry, a physics and astronomy professor at Johns Hopkins University, said in a book review. “Then why does Robert have to say it at all? It is because we, the physicists, do not say it – or if we do say it, we only whisper it, and in private – furiously blushing as we mouth the words. True, yes; politically correct, hell no!’ ... Does all this make a difference in daily life, or how you see the world? Take a look at the free sample of ‘Biocentrism.’” “‘Biocentrism’ How life creates the universe: Authors say cosmology misses the big picture unless it includes biology: The 21st century is predicted to be the Century of Biology, a shift from the previous century dominated by physics. It seems fitting, then, to begin the century by turning the universe outside-in and unifying the foundations of science, not with imaginary strings that occupy equally imaginary unseen dimensions, but with a much simpler idea that is rife with so many shocking new perspectives that we are unlikely ever to see reality the same way again.

In the past few decades, major puzzles of mainstream science have forced a re-evaluation of the nature of the universe that goes far beyond anything we could have imagined. A more accurate understanding of the world requires that we consider it biologically centered. It's a simple but amazing concept that Biocentrism attempts to clarify: Life creates the universe, instead of the other way around. Understanding this more fully yields answers to several long-held puzzles. This new model — combining physics and biology instead of keeping them separate, and putting observers firmly into the equation — is called biocentrism. Its necessity is driven in part by the ongoing attempts to create an overarching view, a theory of everything. Such efforts have now stretched for decades, without much success except as a way of financially facilitating the careers of theoreticians and graduate students.

Could the long-sought Theory of Everything be merely missing a component that was too close for us to have noticed? Some of the thrill that came with the announcement that the human genome had been mapped or the idea that we are close to understanding the “Big Bang” rests in our innate human desire for completeness and totality. But most of these comprehensive theories fail to take into account one crucial factor: We are creating them. It is the biological creature that fashions the stories, that makes the observations, and that gives names to things. And therein lies the great expanse of our oversight, that science has not confronted the one thing that is at once most familiar and most mysterious — consciousness. As Emerson wrote in “Experience,” an essay that confronted the facile positivism of his age: “We have learned that we do not see directly, but mediately, and that we have no means of correcting these colored and distorting lenses which we are, or of computing the amount of their errors. Perhaps these subject-lenses have a creative power; perhaps there are no objects.”

MUDDY UNIVERSE

For several centuries, starting roughly with the Renaissance, a single mindset about the construct of the cosmos has dominated scientific thought. This model has brought us untold insights into the nature of the universe, and countless applications that have transformed every aspect of our lives. But this model — failing us now in a myriad of ways — may be reaching the end of its useful life.

The old model proposes that the universe was until rather recently a lifeless collection of particles bouncing against each other, and obeying predetermined rules that were mysterious in their origin. The universe is presented as a watch that somehow wound itself and that, allowing for a degree of quantum randomness, will unwind in a semi-predictable way.

There are many problems with the current paradigm — some obvious, others rarely mentioned but just as fundamental. But the overarching problem involves life, since its initial arising is still a scientifically unknown process, even if the way it then changed forms can be apprehended using Darwinian mechanisms. The bigger problem is that life contains consciousness, which, to say the least, is poorly understood.

Consciousness is not just an issue for biologists; it's a problem for physics. There is nothing in modern physics that explains how a group of molecules in a brain creates consciousness. The beauty of a sunset, the taste of a delicious meal, these are all mysteries to science — which can sometimes pin down where in the brain the sensations arise, but not how and why there is any subjective personal experience to begin with. And, what's worse, nothing in science can explain how consciousness arose from matter. Our understanding of this most basic phenomenon is virtually nil. Interestingly, most models of physics do not even recognize this as a problem.

But even putting aside the life-and-consciousness issues, the current model leaves much to be desired when it comes to explaining the fundamentals of our universe. The cosmos sprang out of nothingness 13.7 billion years ago, in a titanic event facetiously labeled the Big Bang. We don't begin to understand where the big bang came from even if we continually tinker with the details. Indeed, every theorist realizes in his bones that you can never get something from nothing, and that the Big Bang is no explanation at all for the origins of everything, but merely, at best, the partial description of a single event in a continuum that is probably timeless.

It's one thing to acknowledge that theoretical physicists are brilliant people even if they do tend to drip food on themselves at buffets. But at some point, virtually everyone has thought, or at least felt: This really doesn't work. This doesn't explain anything fundamental, not really.

A SCIENTIFIC SWAMP

Then, too, in the last few decades there has been considerable discussion of a basic paradox in the construction of the universe. Why are the laws of physics exactly balanced for animal life to exist? There are over 200 physical parameters within the solar system and universe so exact that it strains credulity to propose that they are random — even if that is exactly what standard contemporary physics baldly suggests. These fundamental constants of the universe — constants that are not predicted by any theory — all seem to be carefully chosen, often with great precision, to allow for existence of life and consciousness (yes, consciousness raises its annoying head yet another time). We have absolutely no reasonable explanation for this.

When it comes right down to it, today's science is amazingly good at figuring out how the parts work. What eludes us is the big picture. We provide interim answers, we create exquisite new technologies from our ever-expanding knowledge of physical processes. We do badly in just one area, which unfortunately encompasses all the bottom-line issues: What is the nature of this thing we call reality, the universe as a whole?

Any honest metaphorical summary of the current state of explaining the cosmos as a whole is: a swamp. And this particular Everglade is one where the alligators of common sense must be evaded at every turn.

Some scientists insist that a Theory of Everything is just around the corner, and then we'll essentially know it all. Any day now. It hasn't happened, and it may not happen until we better understand a critical component of the cosmos — a component that has been shunted out of the way because science doesn't know what to do with it. This, consciousness, is not a small item. It is not like anything else. Indeed, it is nothing like anything else. Consciousness is awareness, or perception, which in an utter mystery has somehow arisen from molecules and goo. How did inert, random bits of carbon ever morph into that Japanese guy who always wins the hot dog eating contest?

In short, the attempt to explain the nature of the universe, its origins, its parameters, and what is really going on, requires an understanding of how the observer — our presence — plays a role. At first this may seem impossibly difficult, since much of awareness or consciousness and certainly its origins are still mysterious. But as we shall see, we can use what we know, and what we are increasingly discovering, to formulate models of the cosmos that make sense of things for the first time.

The disappearing kitchen Undeniably it is the biological creature that makes the observations and creates the theories. Our entire education system in all disciplines, the construction of our language, revolve around a bottom-line mindset that assumes a separate universe “out there” into which we have each individually arrived on a very temporary basis. It is further assumed that we accurately perceive this external pre-existing reality and play little or no role in its appearance.

However, starting in the 1920s, the results of experiments have shown just the opposite. The observer critically influences the outcome. An electron turns out to be both a particle and a wave but how and, more importantly, where such a particle will be located remains dependent upon the very act of observation. This is perhaps most vivid in the famous two-hole experiment, which has been performed so many times, with so many variations, it’s conclusively proven that if one “watches” a subatomic particle or a bit of light pass through slits on a barrier, it behaves like a particle and creates solid-looking hits behind the individual slits on the final barrier that measures the impacts. Like a tiny bullet, it logically passes through one or the other hole. But if the scientists do not observe the trajectory of the particle, then it exhibits the behavior of waves that allow it pass through both holes at the same time.

Since then, the list of paradoxes and intractable problems has continued to grow, starting with those accompanying the Big Bang (for instance, how could the entire universe — indeed, the laws of nature themselves — pop out of nothingness?) to experiments during the past decade that show separate particles can influence each other instantaneously over great distances — as if they’re endowed with a kind of ESP. It works with light, too: When born-together pairs of photons are created in a special kind of crystal, observing one member instantly influences the behavior the other — even if they are separated by enormous distances. They are intimately linked in a manner suggesting there’s no space between them, and no time influencing their behavior.

These and similar experiments have befuddled scientists for decades. Some of the greatest physicists have described them as impossible to intuit. How can quantum physics be so impervious to metaphor, visualization, and language? Amazingly, if we accept a life-created reality at face value, it all becomes simple and straightforward to understand.

Take the seemingly undeniable logic that your kitchen is always present, its contents assuming all their familiar shapes and colors whether or not you are in it. But consider: The shapes, colors, and forms known as your kitchen are seen as they are solely because photons of light from the overhead bulb bounce off the various objects and then interact with your brain through a complex set of retinal and neural intermediaries. But on its own, light doesn’t have any color, nor any brightness, nor any visual characteristics at all. It’s merely an electrical and magnetic phenomenon. So while you may think that the kitchen as you remember it was “there” in your absence, the unquestionable reality is that nothing remotely resembling what you can imagine could be present when a consciousness is not interacting.

Quantum physics comes to a similar conclusion. At night you click off the lights and leave for the bedroom. Of course the kitchen is there, unseen, all through the night. Right? But, in fact, the refrigerator, stove and everything else are composed of a shimmering swarm of matter/energy. The results of quantum physics, such as the two-slit experiment, tell us that not a single one of those subatomic particles actually occupies a definite place. Rather, they exist as a range of possibilities — as waves of probability — as the German physicist Max Born demonstrated back in 1926. They are statistical predictions — nothing but a likely outcome. In fact, outside of that idea, nothing is there! If they are not being observed, they cannot be thought of as having any real existence — either duration or a position in space. It is only in the presence of an observer — that is, when you go back in to get a drink of water — that the mind sets the scaffolding of these particles in place. Until it actually lays down the threads (somewhere in the haze of probabilities that represent the object's range of possible values) they cannot be thought of as being either here or there, or having an actual position, a physical reality.

Indeed, it is here that biocentrism suggests a very different view of reality. Most people, in and out of the sciences, imagine the external world to exist on its own, with an appearance that more-or-less resembles what we ourselves see. Human or animal eyes, according to this view, are merely clear windows that accurately let in the world. If our personal window ceases to exist, as in death, or is painted black and opaque, as in blindness, that doesn't in any way alter the continued existence of the external reality or its supposed "actual" appearance. A tree is still there, the moon still shines, whether or not we are cognizing them. They have an independent existence. True, a dog may see an autumn maple solely in shades of gray, and an eagle may perceive much greater detail among its leaves, but most creatures basically apprehend the same visually real object, which persists even if no eyes were upon it.

This "Is it really there?" issue is ancient, and of course predates biocentrism. Biocentrism, however, explains why one view and not the other may be correct. The converse is equally true: Once one fully understands that there is no independent external universe outside of biological existence, the rest more or less falls into place.

Where is the universe? And exactly where is that fridge? Where is the universe even located? Start with everything that is currently being perceived — the page you are looking at, for example. Language and custom say that it all lies outside us in the external world. Yet we've already seen that nothing can be perceived that is not already interacting with our consciousness. Since the perceived images are experientially real and not imaginary, it must be physically happening in some location. Human physiology texts answer this without ambiguity. Although the eye and retina gather photons that deliver their payloads of bits of the electromagnetic force, these are channeled through heavy-duty cables straight back until the actual perception of images themselves physically occur in the back of the brain, augmented by other nearby locations, in special sections that are as vast and labyrinthine as the hallways of the Milky Way. This, according to human physiology texts, is where the actual colors, shapes, and movement "happen." This is where they are perceived or cognized.

If you try to consciously access that luminous, energy-filled, visual part of the brain, it's easy. You're already effortlessly perceiving it with every glance you take. Custom says that what we see is "out there," outside ourselves, and such a viewpoint is fine and necessary in terms of language and utility, as in "please pass the butter that's over there." But make no mistake: The butter itself exists only within the mind. It is the only place visual (and tactile and olfactory) images are perceived and hence located. Explained in the language of biology, the brain turns impulses from our senses into an order and a sequence. As photons of light bounce off the butter, various combinations of wavelengths enter our eye and deliver the force to trillions of atoms arranged into an exquisite design of cells that rapidly fire in permutations too vast for any computer to calculate. Then, in the brain, this information, which as we previously saw has no color by itself, appears as a yellow block of butter. Even its smell and texture are experienced in the mind alone. The "butter" is not "out there" except by the convention of language. The same is true for all perceived objects, including the brain, cells, and even the electromagnetic events we detect with our instruments.

Some may imagine that there are two worlds, one "out there" and a separate one inside the skull. But the "two worlds" model is a myth. As we have seen, only one visual reality is extant; it is the one that requires consciousness in order to manifest. As Nobel physicist

John Wheeler once said, “No phenomenon is a real phenomenon until it is an observed phenomenon.”

A major handicap in adopting this new viewpoint is that language was created to work exclusively through symbolism, and to divide nature into parts and actions. Even if well acquainted with the limitations and vagaries of language, we must be especially on guard against dismissing biocentrism too quickly if it doesn't at first glance seem compatible with customary verbal constructions. The challenge here, alas, is to peer not just behind habitual ways of thinking, but to go beyond some of the tools of the thinking process itself, to grasp the universe in a way that is at the same time simpler and more demanding than what we are accustomed to.

GONE FOR KEEPS

Quantum mechanics describes the tiny world of the atom and its constituents, and their behavior, with stunning if probabilistic accuracy. But quantum mechanics in many ways threatens our absolute notions of space and time. When studying subatomic particles, the observer appears to alter and determine what is perceived. The presence and methodology of the experimenter is hopelessly entangled with whatever he is attempting to observe, and what results he gets.

In 1964, Irish physicist John Bell proposed an experiment that could show if separate particles can influence each other instantaneously over great distances. First it is necessary to create two bits of matter or light that share the same “wave function” using a special kind of crystal (so-called “entangled particles”). Now, since quantum theory tells us that everything in nature has a particle nature and a wave nature, and that the object's behavior exists only as probabilities, no small object actually assumes a particular place or motion until its “wave function” collapses. What accomplishes this collapse? Messing with it in any way. Hitting it with a bit of light in order to “take its picture” would instantly do the job. But it became increasingly clear that any possible way the experimenter could “take a look” at the object would collapse the wave function. As more sophisticated experiments were devised it became obvious that mere knowledge in the experimenter's mind is sufficient to cause the wave function to collapse.

That was freaky, but it got worse. If the wave function of an entangled particle collapses, so will the other's — even if they are separated by the width of the universe. This means that if one particle is observed to have an “up spin” the act of observation causes the other to instantly go from being a mere probability wave to an actual particle with the opposite spin. They are intimately linked, and in a way that acts as if there's no space between them, and no time influencing their behavior. Experiments from 1997 to 2007 have shown that this is indeed the case, as if tiny objects created together are endowed with a kind of ESP. They truly seem to prove that Einstein's insistence on “locality” — meaning that nothing can influence anything else at superluminal speeds — is wrong. Rather, the entities we observe are floating in a field — a field of mind, biocentrism maintains — that is not limited by the external spacetime Einstein theorized a century ago.

No one should imagine that when biocentrism points to quantum theory as one major area of support, it is just a single aspect of quantum phenomena. Bell's Theorem of 1964, shown experimentally to be true over and over in the intervening years, does more than merely demolish all vestiges of Einstein's hopes that locality can be maintained.

Before Bell, it was still considered possible (though increasingly iffy) that local realism — an objective independent universe — could be the truth. Before Bell, many still clung to the millennia-old assumption that physical states exist before they are measured. Before Bell, it was still widely believed that particles have definite attributes and values independent of the act of measuring. And, finally, thanks to Einstein's demonstrations that no “information” can travel faster than light, it was assumed that if observers are sufficiently far apart, a measurement by one has no effect on the measurement by the other.

All of the above are now finished for keeps.

As we saw earlier, the profound influence of the observer is also clear in the famous two-hole experiment, which in turn goes straight to the core of quantum physics. If one watches a subatomic particle or a bit of light pass through slits on a barrier, it behaves like a particle and logically passes through one or the other hole. But if the scientists do not observe the trajectory of the particle, then it exhibits the behavior of waves that retain the right to exhibit all possibilities, including going through both holes at the same time — and then creating the kind of rippling pattern that only waves produce.

These waves of probability are not waves of material, but rather statistical predictions. Outside of that idea, the wave is not there. From the beginning, Copenhagen adherents realized that nothing is real unless it's perceived. This makes perfect sense if biocentrism is reality; otherwise it's a total enigma.

At present, the implications of these experiments are conveniently downplayed in the public mind because, until recently, quantum behavior was limited to the microscopic world. However, this has no basis in reason, and more importantly, it is starting to be challenged in laboratories around the world. New experiments carried out with huge molecules called "Buckyballs" show that quantum reality extends into the macroscopic world we live in. In 2005, KHC03 crystals exhibited quantum entanglement ridges a half-inch high — visible signs of behavior nudging into everyday levels of discernment. An exciting new experiment has just been proposed (so-called 'scaled-up superposition') that would take this even further.

GOLDILOCKS' UNIVERSE

The world appears to be designed for life, not just at the microscope scale of the atom, but at the level of the universe itself. Scientists have discovered that the universe has a long list of traits that make it appear as if everything it contains — from atoms to stars — was tailor-made just for us. If the Big Bang had been one part in a million more powerful, it would have rushed out too fast for the galaxies and life to develop. Result: no us. If the strong nuclear force were decreased two percent, atomic nuclei wouldn't hold together, and plain-vanilla hydrogen would be the only kind of atom in the universe. If the gravitational force were decreased by a hair, stars — including the sun — would not ignite. In fact, all of the universe's forces and constants are just perfectly set up for atomic interactions, the existence of atoms and elements, planets, liquid water and life. Tweak any of them and you never existed. Many are calling this revelation the "Goldilocks Principle," because the cosmos is not "too this" or "too that," but rather "just right" for life.

At the moment, there are only four explanations for this mystery. One is to argue for incredible coincidence. Another is to say, "God did that," which explains nothing even if it is true. The third is to invoke the anthropic principle's reasoning that we must find these conditions if we are alive, because, what else could we find? The final option is biocentrism pure and simple, which explains how the universe is created by life. Obviously, no universe that doesn't allow for life could possibly exist; the universe and its parameters simply reflect the spatio-temporal logic of animal existence.

No matter which logic one adopts, one has to come to terms with the fact that we are living in a very peculiar cosmos. Biocentrism fits very neatly into the late physicist John Wheeler's participatory universe belief in which observers are required to bring the universe into existence. In short, you either have an astonishingly improbable coincidence revolving around the fact that the cosmos could have any properties but happens to have exactly the right ones for life, or else you have exactly what must be seen if indeed the cosmos is biocentric.

No time to lose Since quantum theory increasingly casts doubts about the existence of time as we know it, let's head straight into this surprisingly ancient scientific issue. As irrelevant as it might first appear, the presence or absence of time is an important factor in any fundamental look into the nature of the cosmos.

The reality of time has long been questioned by an odd alliance of philosophers and physicists. The former argue that the past exists only as ideas in the mind, which themselves are solely neuroelectrical events occurring strictly in the present moment. Physicists, for their part, find that all working models from Newton's laws through quantum mechanics have no need for time. When people speak of time, they're usually referring to change. But change is not the same thing as time.

To measure anything's position precisely, at any given instant, is to "lock-in" on one static frame of its motion, as in a film. Conversely, as soon as you observe movement or momentum you can't isolate a frame — because momentum is the summation of many frames. Sharpness in one parameter induces blurriness in the other. To understand this, consider for a moment that you are watching a film of an archery tournament. An archer shoots and the arrow flies. The camera follows the arrow's trajectory from the archer's bow toward the target. Suddenly the projector stops on a single frame of a stilled arrow. You stare at the image of an arrow in mid-flight, something you obviously could not do at a real tournament. The pause in the film enables you to know the position of the arrow with great accuracy — it's just beyond the grandstand, 20 feet above the ground. But you have lost all information about its momentum. It is going nowhere; its velocity is zero. Its path, its trajectory, is no longer known. It is uncertain.

It soon becomes apparent that such uncertainty is actually built into the fabric of reality. This makes perfect sense from a biocentric perspective: Time is the animal sense that animates events — the still frames — of the spatial world.

Everything you perceive — even this page — is actively and repeatedly being reconstructed inside your head in an organized whirl of information. Time can be defined as the summation of spatial states; the same thing measured with our scientific instruments is called momentum. The weaving together of these frames occurs in the mind. So what's real? We confront a here-and-now. If the next "image" is different from the last, then it is different, period. We can award that change with the word "time" but that doesn't mean there's an actual invisible entity that forms a matrix or grid in which changes occur. That's just our own way of making sense of things, our tool of perception. We watch our loved ones age and die, and assume an external entity called time is responsible for the crime.

The demotion of time from an actual reality to a mere subjective experience, a social convention, is evidence against the "external universe" mindset, because the latter requires a space and time gridwork. In biocentrism, space and time are forms of animal understanding — period. They are tools of the mind, and thus do not exist as external objects independent of life.

When we feel poignantly that time has elapsed, as when loved ones die, it constitutes the human perceptions of the passage and existence of time. Our babies turn into adults. We age. They age. We all grow old together. That to us is time. It belongs with us.

SPACE-OUT

There is a peculiar intangibility about space, as well. We cannot pick it up and bring it the laboratory. This is because, like time, space is neither physical nor fundamentally real. It is a mode of interpretation and understanding — part of an animal's mental software that molds sensations into multidimensional objects.

In modern everyday life, however, we've come to regard space as sort of a vast container that has no walls. In it, we cognize separate objects that were first learned and identified. These patterns are blocked out by the thinking mind within boundaries of color, shape or utility. Human language and ideation alone decide where the boundaries of one object end and another begins.

Multiple illusions and processes routinely impart a false view of space. Shall we count the ways? 1. Empty space is in fact not empty. 2. Distances between objects can and do mutate depending on a multitude of conditions like gravity and speed, so that no bedrock distance exists anywhere, between anything and anything else. 3. Quantum theory casts serious doubt about whether even distant individual items are truly separated at all, and 4. We “see” separations between objects only because we have been conditioned and trained, through language and convention, to draw boundaries.

Now, space and time illusions are certainly harmless. A problem only arises because, by treating space as something physical, existing in itself, science imparts a completely wrong starting point for investigations into the nature of reality. In reality there can be no break between the observer and the observed. If the two are split, the reality is gone. Space, like time, is not an object or a thing. Space and time are forms of our animal sense perception. We carry them around with us like turtles with shells. Thus, there is no absolute self-existing matrix in which physical events occur independent of life.

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

Biocentrism offers a springboard to make sense of aspects of biological and physical science which are currently insensible. Natural areas of biocentric research include the realm of brain-architecture, neuroscience, and the nature of consciousness itself. Another is the ongoing research into artificial intelligence. Though still in its infancy, few doubt that this century, in which computer power and capabilities keep expanding geometrically, will eventually bring researchers to confront the problem in a serious way. A “thinking device” will need the same kind of algorithms for employing time and developing a sense of space that we enjoy.

Finally, one must consider the endless ongoing attempts at creating “grand unified theories.” Currently such efforts in physics have typically stretched for decades without much success. Incorporating the living universe — and allowing the observer into the equation as the late John Wheeler insists is necessary — will at minimum produce a fascinating amalgam of the living and non-living in a way that should make everything work better. It should provide stronger bases for solving some of the problems associated with quantum physics and the Big Bang. Accepting space and time as forms of animal sense perception (as biologic), rather than as external physical objects, offers a new way of understanding everything from the microworld (for instance, the reason for Heisenberg’s uncertainty principle and the two-hole experiment) to the forces, constants, and laws that shape the universe.

Currently, the disciplines of biology and physics, and all their sub-branches are generally practiced by those with little knowledge of the others. Without symbiosis between them, attempts to unify the universe will remain a dead end.

Now...More Than Ever!

It is a grand and terrible thing that the hero should be the only one to see his heroism from the inside, to see into its very vitals, and that everyone else sees it only from the outside, in its external features. It is for this reason that the hero lives alone in the midst of men and that his solitude serves him as comforting company.—Unamuno

We shall not cease from exploration,
And the end of all our exploring
Will be to arrive where we began
And know the place for the first time.
Through the unknown, unremembered gate
When the last of earth left to discover
Is that which was the beginning;

—T. S. Eliot

There are moments in life when everything changes. We turn a corner, make a choice, and the path we were on is left behind, discarded and unexamined in the unprired deep, dark wells of our minds.

In Airman Larry Warren's life, that moment came when he arrived at RAF Bentwaters. For years he'd been shown a dream in which every detail of his life and, in particular, this moment, was clear, but he had no idea of its importance. And he never realized that some force was at work, shaping his life for unknown purposes. When unusual things had occurred before, Larry simply dismissed them from his mind, for there was no larger context into which they fit or to which he could connect them that made any sense. He had even come to believe that his encounter with the enigmatic beings and their strange, glowing craft must have been merely a cruel dream. Others, after all, hadn't responded with the same emotion as he.

Many of the other witnesses believed that the image seen in the mirrors of their minds was merely a reflection from the silver under the glass. But to Larry Warren, the image was being cast from the far fields of the cosmos and he simply had to learn the truth.

Larry Warren came to Bentwaters and the door to his past closed forever.

A First-Hand Account of the Bentwaters-Woodbridge Ufo Incident, Its Cover-Up, and Investigation (Paperback)

Warren and Robbins raise a lot of questions in this narrative of Larry Warren's experiences at R.A.F. Bentwaters base in late 1980. Reading this book leaves you feeling no doubt that something of extreme importance happened to at least twenty military policeman at the base over the course of three nights. There were local witnesses from outside the base also who observed strange light anomalies in the area during those nights. What really happened at Bentwaters? We don't know exactly but something related to UFOs occurred there leaving indelible, bizarre memories in the witnesses.

Reading this book makes you sympathize with experiencers like Warren who have nowhere to go to share their experiences. They are subject to ridicule, psychological stress, and threats from the military and government black operations. Surely, we as a society can do better than treat UFO witnesses with such utter disdain. After all, when he went out to that remote clearing in the woods that fateful night, along with his comrades, Larry Warren was doing his job which was to protect the base, one of the largest storehouses of U.S. nuclear weapons in Europe.

This is the most complete book on the Bentwaters case and clearly demonstrates the need for us to get to the truth about UFO phenomenon. The vivid and startling narrative covers every aspect of Warren's encounter in detail. Coauthor Peter Robbins adds a voice of credulity to the whole affair. Overall, this book will inform you, make you angry, and leave you curious and wondering how large our universe really is and who inhabits it with us.

READ IT ALL, COVER TO COVER.

"This is a powerful and compelling book. For me, its implicit central theme is the authors' personal courage and relentless search for truth in the face of official deception and attempts at direct intimidation. Warren and Robbins narrative has the force of a well-told mystery novel, yet it is all disturbingly true. A major contribution to the literature."
—Budd Hopkins

"Larry Warren's first-hand account, combined with Peter Robbins' in-depth research and scholarship, provides us with a unique insight into the extraordinary events which characterize the Bentwaters-Woodbridge incident of December 1980, as well as its devastating aftermath. I highly recommend this vitally important book." —Timothy Good

"... Expertly crafted with co-author Peter Robbins – who provides an absolute wealth of investigative input, commentary and observation – the book is one that should be read by anyone even remotely interested in the UFO mystery. Warren and Robbins are to be applauded for having the courage to provide us with the ultimate account of a remarkable case that refuses to go away." —Nick Redfern

Brad Steiger and Tim R. Swartz tackle an intriguing subject and provide evidence that the ancients had supernatural powers that were often lethal. For the first time, here is a detailed analysis of the mysterious Ark of the Covenant. Learn how the Ark was built and housed, and how the priests that tended it were required to wear protective clothing to shield them from what we know today as nuclear energy. Moses even used the Ark to create a "controlled earthquake" to punish a rebellion by some of the Israelites. The desert ground opened up and swallowed the rebels. The Ark is also said to have been responsible for the collapse of the walls of Jericho.

Discover astounding air battles, and a very advanced type of "Thunderbolt Energy" that caused catastrophic disasters. There are also the legends of Magical Swords and superior aircraft mentioned in various ancient texts. This work contains fascinating insight into high-tech, death-dealing devices that predate our own by millennia. Did humankind develop such an "advanced technology" on its own?
Or are beings from other worlds, we have come to identify as Ancient Astronauts, responsible for such wondrous but catastrophic advances in the military sciences and weaponry?
