SCAPE GOAT MAGAZINE

is influenced by Dr. Anton LaVey's Social Darwinian think tank, the Church of Satan.

However, Scape Goat is not a religious organization mouth piece. It is a bold, independent voice of the Left Handed Path. Scape Goat covers every topic dealing with the Satanic and Pagan lifestyle. They interview some of the top names in the Satanic\ Neo-Pagan music scene, write pieces on counter culture icons, explore Satanic erotica and morality, expose Christian hypocrisy, review the newest releases in occult music, and much, much more!

Scape Goat recently has interviewed such underground notables as Church of Satan leader, Social Darwinian, and Industrial musician Boyd Rice, the Gothic band Type O Negative, the outrageous Electric Hellfire Club, heavy metal rocker Glen Danzig, the Third Positionist American Front leader James Porrazzo, Satanic rockers Acheron, the Eurocentric Pagan band Death In June, underground publisher Adam Parfrey, and a whole lot more!

Do You Know This Quote?

Many issues back of Pagan Revival, I don't recall the issue number, I wrote an article about Chieftain Calgacus and his small army of Pictish warriors who were ravaged in the Battle of Grampian Mountains by overwhelming numbers and superior technology. 30,000 of his men died in this battle. Nonetheless, the Romans retreated south, behind their fortified walls. Even though the Battle of the Grampian Mountains was a Roman victory, the Pictish (Scottish) resistance convinced the invaders that occupation of the Scottish mountains would be too costly. The Battle of Grampian Mountains showed the rest of the British islands that the army of Rome could be beaten. Calgacus helped spark the flames of rebellion that eventually drove the invaders out. My article was called: SITTING ON THE EDGE OF HISTORY. It, also, appeared later in the WAR newspaper. There was a quote by Chieftain Calgacus:

"We who live on the edge of the Earth and who are the last bulwark of freedom, have to this day been protected by our remoteness and by the mystery and fear created by our name. But now the frontiers of Britain are open and beyond us are no other people, nothing but the sea, and still the Romans come. Their usurpation is not to be escaped by flight, self-abasement, nor appeasement. These plunders of the Earth are now invading the seas because, having devastated everything, they now have no more land. If their enemy is wealthy, they are greedy; if he is poor; they will be after glory--this race whom neither east nor west is home. Alone among people they have looked with equal greed of both rich and poor alike. Stealing, murdering, and plundering they call government; and where they created a desert they call it peace."

I got the quote from a History of the Celts type book and can't recall the title nor author. He was quoting an ancient Roman historian I think around the first century C.E. However, I can't recall which Roman it was either. Is it from Tacitus' Agricola? It would be too late to be in Caesar's The Gaulic Wars, right? If you know, could you send me the info? If someone is on the net, could you try to find it because a brother needs it for a project. Thanks, Wy-

200 Muslims, Christians Attack 12 Pagans In Lompoc; Christian Guard Blames Pagans

Many of you know this story already. 12 members of an Odinist kindred in Lompoc Prison were minding their own business, when they were violently attacked by a mob of 200. Since we live under a democracy where the mob forces its will on the minority, and since America is a Christian country, the Christian majority who run the prison decided to punish the Pagans for being battered. Minority people can never find justice under democracy.

Dear Wyatt:

Greetings Kinsman! I hope this finds all going well for you. Thanks you for the Yule card. I also want to thank you for the support you have given me and the other eleven Whites in the hole with me. Yes, I am still in the hole waiting my disciplinary hearing, so far seven of us have had their hearings. Five were found not guilty of rioting and had their incident reports expunged, but they remain in the hole, waiting their administrative transfers. The other two were found guilty and given 60 days disciplinary segregation, loss of good time and will be getting a disciplinary transfer. The only difference between those who were found guilty and those who were found not guilty is that their incident reports were written by two different guards.

Some Whites had to be found guilty in order to be Politically Correct and not show any "favoritism". My incident report was written by the same guard who wrote the reports on the two men found guilty. This guard also wrote a report which states he saw me punching and kicking blacks.

As much as I wish this were true, the fact is it's not. The melee started when I was hit from behind, knocked out, and stomped on, while I lay unconscious on the ground. I didn't get a chance to raise my hands in self-defense much less make an act of aggression towards anyone.

They had me in the hole for a few months this summer and attempted to send me back to Marion for no other reason than the blacks dropped a bunch of notes on me for they were afraid of the White unity our Odinist gatherings were bringing about.

I didn't get sent then, but now they have "a reason", and I figure that after I do my disciplinary segregation time I'll be sent back to Marion....

...with that I am going to sign off. Give my best wishes to all. I hope your Yule went well. 14 words, Richard Scutari

Notice:

The Pagan Revival publication is a voice of the Eurocentric polytheistic communities. Opinions expressed within Pagan Revival do not necessarily reflect the policies and views of the publisher nor this magazine.

Pagan Revival magazine is strongly Odinic and its main goal is to promote the religion of Asatru which worships the living Gods Odin, Thor, Tyr, Frey, Njord, Heimdal, Ull, etc. and the living Goddesses Frigga, Sif, Jord, Freyja, Zisa, Ostara, etc., but Pagan Revival supports all Aryan Pagan and Eurocentric traditions.

The magazine's goal is to promote the survival and advancement of the Folk by... (1.) Re-uniting our people with their true spirituality and to combat Europhobia and xenophilia by teaching our people how to love themselves... (2.) Building an economic base for the Odinic community through the encouragement of Odinic run businesses and urging Odinists to invest in the stocks of legitimate, mainstream companies... (3.) Creating public outreach programs... (4.) Assisting White couples in having large Odinic families and to enlighten White children in the art of rejecting the self-hate which democracy casts on our people. ETC.

Advertising Restrictions

Pagan Revival is sent all around the world to nations with very strict laws. It is sent to U.S. prisons which also have strict rules. I already have one newspaper stand in Virginia which is selling Pagan Revival on the street corner, and I'm trying to get more, so I'll sell ads to anyone except I won't run ads which prevent Pagan Revival from getting into, say, Germany nor which would keep it off of mom and pop owned news stands. If you aren't smart enough to figure out what images and symbols will prevent the distribution of a magazine, then you aren't smart enough to advertising in Pagan Revival.

WarHorse calls their brand of melancholy metal: Apocalyptic Stoner Doom. If you're too cranked up on speed metal, WarHorse's tranquil Doom will bring you down to Earth. This is intensely Dark metal. Seriously leaden melodies of extreme Stoner Doom. The murkiness of WarHorse brings back memories of Iron Butterfly's Metamorphose album, or perhaps, even early Black Sabbath. WarHorse grows on you. The first time I heard this CD I wasn't impressed by it, but the more times I played it, the better it got. I have played it about 50 times now, and it's God damn good. I'll be playing this WarHorse CD for many full moons before I get burnt out on it. WarHorse is well worth $7.

Blot: Sacrifice in Sweden, Blood Axis, Cold Meat Industry, P.O. Box 1881, 581 17, Linköping, Sweden. 12 songs. Type of music Apocalyptic Pagan Folk music. Blot is a live recording of the band's Swedish concert. Blood Axis is a Euro-Pagan band. Blot opens up with a speech calling for national revolution. Lord of Ages, a remarkable song about the Roman God Mithra, Reign I Forever, an important song about the Norse God Thor, and Between Birds of Prey, a musical reading from Friedrich Nietzsche's spiritual book Thus Spoke Zarathustra are my three favorite. All the songs are great, and I like how they use the echoed howls of wolves to introduce the next song. The CD has many varied styles from the Celtic folk sound of The March of Brain Boru to the Church organs on The Gospel of Inhumanity. The cover art is cool it shows a Blot to the God Thor in an ancient (Hof) temple. Man, how I long for the good old days! The CD ends with the folk song the Hangman and the Papist, which is about the Christian killing of a man who refuse to give loyalty to a Christian King and the false Christian God. Blot is a great addition to your Pagan music collection.

Wyatt:

Hey, thanks for the copy of Pagan Revival. I like the variety and wide ranging scholastic approach. Here's a copy of Paniscus Review #2. I have #3 finished, so a review of your pub will be in #4. Thanks again. T. Crites

Hi Tom:

Thanks for your zine and the art work. I'll try to use the art in the next P.R. Your reviews are a lot better than mine. I like how you use photos of what you are reviewing. It has a bigger impact. I noticed you mentioned Robert Ward's Fifth Path magazine. It amazes me that Robert has not put out Fifth Path for many years, and he only did about five issues and people are still talking about that zine. That was a great zine. Robert is now with the Asatru Alliance and puts out their Vor Tru magazine. I've never seen the new Vor Tru, but if Robert is involved, it must be good. Anyway, looking forward to seeing your next issue. Wyatt

Sir:

Thank you very much for issue #41 of Pagan Revival which is excellent. I hope you have had time to read the current issue of The Scorpion. I have just sent you two back issues of The Scorpion as a gift...

I followed the e-mail with great interest. Perhaps you'll feel interested enough by the debate in the pages of The Scorpion to contribute to it? I am thinking especially of the Jordan/Harrington debate....Yours sincerely, Michael Walker, The Scorpion, Postfach 850505, 51030 Köln, Germany

Brother Michael:

Thanks, in advance, for the copies of your zine. The Scorpion sounds interesting. Most Americans don't know a thing about what is happening overseas. I know of both Jordan and Harrington. I can imagine what their debate would be like. Wyatt

Dear Friend:

Thanks you for Pagan Revival # 41-enclosed is the five dollars I owe you for it....

Interesting what you had on Zoroastrianism. It is mainly from down loading text off the Internet that one is able to recite the Yashts, etc. We try to do the month/day Jashans (Despite some Yashts being lost. I am working on "reconstructing" them.), but we don't do the Gohomers, rather we do the seasonal Sabbaths(a Celtic/Persian synthesis, sort of). David Brock, Magister, ULL (Brythonic), P.O. Islamic Terrorism Is Turning Black Africans Back Home To Paganism

In the summer of 1998, Islamic terrorists bombed two American embassies, one in Kenya and the other in Tanzania, Africa. These bombings killed and wounded a few Americans, but over 240 Black Africans died and over 5,000 were wounded. Many of the survivors were disabled for life. Black children left blind. Black fathers missing limbs. Black mother's suffering permanent brain damage. The United States' retaliation by bombing targets in both Sudan and Afghanistan had the expected results (1.) These strikes took the American public's mind off of Clinton's sex scandal for a few moments, and (2.) The American air strikes united the Muslim world against the United States, Zionism, Christianity, the White race, and, also, stoked the flames of Islamic nationalism. However, one unexpected consequence of America's counter-terrorist attacks is it caused many Africans to denounce Islam and return home to their native African pagan religions.

How could the American counter bombing of Islamic terrorists cause a Black Pagan Revival? The Muslim response to the American air strikes enraged most Black Africans. Eight Islamic terrorists were killed by the Americans and every Muslim nation condemned the attack. The Muslim world sent food, money, and medical supplies to help the families of the eight dead terrorists.

Not one Muslim nation condemned the bombings in Kenya and Tanzania. Not one Muslim nation sent rescue teams. Not one Muslim nation sent food, blankets, nor medical supplies when over 240 Blacks were killed and over 5,000 Blacks were wounded. Most of these Blacks were not connected with the American embassies and were just pedestrians.

Even more vexatious was that the Muslim world sent messages to mosques in both Kenya and Tanzania, ordering them to join the rest of Islam in public condemnations of the America attacks. This communiqué was even sent to mosques which had members with love ones lost in the bombings. Needless to say, this lack of sympathy for African suffering didn't play well, even among Black Muslims.

One story that got a lot of press in African newspapers is the insensitive tale of one bombing suspect by the name of Mohammed Saddiq Odeh.

Mohammed Odeh is a Palestinian who was ordered by Islam to move to Mombassa, Kenya and get close to the American embassy. In 1994, with the help of Muslim money, Odeh bought a fishery and married a young Kenyan woman named Nassim, whose family had ties with the embassy. Mohammed Odeh helped bomb the Kenyan embassy. Some of his wife's family members were victims of the bombing. Afterwards, Odeh abandoned his pregnant wife and fled to Islamic Pakistan. Mohammed didn't care enough about his pregnant wife to even say good-bye, and for many days after the bombing Nassim had feared her husband either died in the blast or was trapped in the ruins of the embassy. It never occurred to her that he was involved.

Black Africa felt the Islamic world had knifed them in the back.

Then on August 26 came the Cape Town bombing of the Planet Hollywood restaurant, which killed one and injured 27. A group calling itself Muslims Against Global Oppression planted the bomb in retaliation for the American strikes.

According to Professor George B.N. Ayittey, president of the Free Africa Foundation and author of the book "Africa In Chaos", now many Africans are asking: "What sort of religion would teach its disciples to commit such barbaric acts of terror?" Some African Muslims have vowed to renounce Islam and revert to native religions. A few threaten to expel the 'Arab infidels' from Africa and demand reparations for slavery."

Anti-Arab feels in Africa is nothing new, but the growing hatred of the Muslim religion is a fairly recent occurrence.

Muslim disrespect of native African tradition showed itself in Morocco with the passing of the 1996 law which outlawed all African first and last names and ordered that they be replaced with Arabic and Islamic names. In the Sudan, the Muslims passed laws outlawing all native African religions and established Islam as the state religion. This provoked Black Pagans in southern Sudan to take up arms. However, the greatest effrontery Muslims commit against the native African religions is the continuing of the slave trade. Albeit the United Nations has outlawed slavery, during the 1990s alone, Muslims have captured millions of Black Pagans and sold them on the Arabic slave market.

In Mauritania, Rwanda, and other African nations with large Pagan populations, Muslim slave traders have taken entire towns and sold the people to the Islamic world. In Sudan, besides being a training ground for terrorists, the Muslim dictator Lt. Gen. Omar Bashir has his Islamic shock troops round up members of the Dinka tribe and put them on the auction block. Women and children bring in the highest price, for not only can they be used as laborers, but also, the Arabs use them for sex. Black slave children are a real prize and a twelve year old virgin boy or girl can bring as much as 15 America dollars.

While in the West, Liberals paint a picture of African slavery being created by White Christians. Some Black nationalists in America say Jews created the African trade. However, among a new generation of African historians, the Arabs are seen as equally guilty. The only difference is the Arabs never stopped taking Black slaves.

A new breed of African nationalists see both Christianity and Islam as foreign cults that raped their continent. Both cults invaded their homeland, established foreign colonies, exploit Black labor and natural resources, took Black slaves, oppressed native African religions, and forced masses of Africans to convert to foreign cults. Islam and Christianity did to Africa what Judaism and Christianity did to Europe.

Even though Jews played a considerable role in the African slave trade, mainly as bankers investing in the trade and ship owners who moved the merchandise, they never colonized Africa. This is not because they were more moral than their Christian and Islamic kinfolk, but because the Jews were not numerous enough and Judaism was not as powerful during the Renaissance and Age of Reason as it was in Biblical times.

White and Brown Christians controlled the slave trade in West Africa, while the Arabic Muslims monopolized the Northern, Central, and Eastern African market. More than 20 million Black slaves were sent to Arabia alone, greatly changing the racial makeup of that area. An additional nine million Black slaves were shipped to Northern Africa, also, darkening the face of the region. Compare this with the United States where no more than a few hundred thousand Black slaves were ever brought in. Most of the Black slaves brought to the Americas were shipped to South America, especially the slave rich nation of Brazil, and the Caribbean by brown skinned Latino Christians from Spain and Portugal. Any fair read of African history will reveal the fact that brown people both Christian and Muslim are to blame for most of the Black race's plight. Even though Christians and Jews played the major roles in Black slavery in the United States, it is Islam which hurt the Black race the greater. A growing number of Africans are beginning to see this truth.

The American Left's racial strategy in the 1950s and '60s was to have a united front of Jews, homosexuals, women, and people of color against White Christian men. All the so-called oppressed minorities of the world were to come together and fight The Man. The scheme was international. It not only united the Black African independence movement with the American civil rights movement, but it also made for some strange unions. The Islamic slave traders joined the Black communities' fight against White people, as did the former Latino slave masters. Spanish and Portuguese people who committed the greatest acts of genocide against the American Indians, now joined the Indian crusade to wipe the White race off the face of the Earth. Homosexuals, children molesters, and feminists coupled their assault against straight White men. Democracy encouraged White women to turn against their men and kill their children. Left wing Jews and Muslims allied against the so-called White male Christian establishment. This un-natural coalition couldn't last for long.

African Blacks sought aid from Arabs, and in return, took a stand against Zionism. American Black nationalists denounced their "White slave master" names and replaced them with Islamic ones. American Blacks, also, broke with their Jewish allies in support of their Arab brothers. They denounced Israel and Zionism as racist and just another form of European colonialism.

The Arab and African union began to decay shortly after the White forces lost Africa. The native Africans began to realize that the Arab Muslims were just as corrupt as the Christian Europeans.

The little crack which now is growing into a canyon began to separate with the 1973 Arab oil embargo. The rich oil producing Arab nations stopped production in order to jack up the price of oil. This caused long lines at the gas pumps in the United States and Europe, but it was literally murder on poor and underdeveloped nations. While Arabs raked in billions with their embargo scam, tractors in Africa couldn't plow fields for lack of fuel. They couldn't harvest their crops nor get them to market. Many Africans died. The Muslim world gave Africa no relief. The Arabs and American Left blamed the White race for the suffering the embargo caused. When ever non-Whites have trouble, no matter who is responsible, the White male is to blame.

In Ethiopia, and else where, Muslims blocked food shipments to areas with heavy Pagan populations in order to intimidate Africans to convert to Islam. Most of the hunger in Africa is man made...Muslim made. The propaganda machines of the Left and of Islam blames the West (This means White males) for starvation in Africa. The truth is the West has sent billions and billions in aid to Africa. Whatever hardship Christianity caused Africa, Whites are now Africa's best friend. The Muslim world has never tried to help Africa and are still exploiting her. And the Left, all they ever do once they take power is murder people by the millions. An increasing number of Africans are beginning to see this. The twin embassy bombings are opening up many eyes to the true nature of Islam. The native African religions are appealing to the younger generation. Hopefully, Africa will wake up and drive all the alien cults off her soil. Africa will never be free from the alien yoke until she finds her racial soul, until she returns to her own Folk ways.

Asatru - The Nordic Subtradition of the Verbena

By Anders Sandberg
nv91-asa@nada.kth.se

(Editor's note: I don't agree with a lot of what Brother Sandberg says. For instance, I believe in magick, but I don't practice it often. You need the Gods to make magick work. Most people who use magick try to order the Gods around for their own selfish needs.

To me, this will just get you in bad Wyrð. I believe deeply in Wyrðic law. Wyrðic law is the Aryan Ideal of a gift for a gift and an eye for an eye. In India, the idea of Wyrð got confused as the Aryan culture got mixed up with the Negro and the new mulatto culture turned Wyrð into the touchy, feely concept of karma. The idea of karma is a passive acceptance of divine punishment and reward, whereas the original Aryan Wyrð is the guardian spirits of three sisters who reward those who help and punish those who hurt the Folk, also, the Wyrð sisters have the power to inspire non-Pagans to dish out Wyrðic justice. The Christians murdered us by the millions, demonized our Gods, burned our holy books, dishonored White females, destroyed our temples and groves; Joe Stalin killed over 30 million Christians: that's divine justice! The Jews murdered us by the millions, they cut open pregnant Pagan women and smashed their unborn babies against rocks, they mocked our Gods, and burned our temples; the Wyrðs sent Adolf Hitler to punish the Jews and straighten out their bad karma. The Muslims murdered us by the millions, burned our books, raped and killed our women, mocked our Gods, destroyed our temples; the Wyrðs sent Vlad the Impaler to shove poles up their asses and let the ravens pick out their eyes; now that's girl power!

Wyrð is trans-generational. It does not matter if it takes a million years; one day the Wyrds will bring all who have ever oppressed us to justice. Never forgive, never forget! This is the essence of Wyrd. The pages of the Koran, the Talmud, and the Bible drip with the sainted blood of martyred Pagans. Our Wyrd is avenging Pagan suffering.

Another great Aryan Ideal that is connected to Wyrd is the Blood Feud. A Feud is a trans-generational fight between families, tribes, or races. Feuds are a religious act and in ancient days sometimes went on until one side's seed were wipe off the face of the Earth. The monotheists started a Blood Feud with us when the demon Abraham first began smashing Pagan religious artifacts and their 5,000 year long genocidal war against our people has gone on and on, until all our temples were destroyed, all our holy books were burned, all our priests were murdered, and all our land was occupied by an alien diseases. We, Pagan Folk, have risen from the grave to avenge the Folk, regain the West, and purge the alien disease from the soul. Adolf Hitler said the reason the Jews and Christians defeat the Pagans for control of Europe is that when the Pagans were strong they were very liberal and tolerant towards the Jews and Christians and allowed them to practice their religion in relative freedom. However, when the Jews and Christians were strong, they were very intolerant and bigoted towards the Pagans and outlawed Pagan religion and tortured to death any one who dared to be a Pagan. We must learn from the Jews, Christians, and Muslims how to be religious bigots. We must read the Talmud, Koran, and Bible and learn the art of hating people because of their religion. The only way to fight monotheism is to become as evil, as fanatical, as narrow-minded, and as lethal as they have been for the last 5,000 years. The New Paganism is an militant crusade to regain the West: our land, our people, and our soul.

Blood sacrifices were a part of the old religion. Asatru is a living religion, therefore it is always evolving. In days of yore when the Folk were agronomists, slaughtering animals was a part of life. Today, less than 10% of the White race are farmers. It is only natural to incorporate every day events into our religion. However, harvest rituals and the butchering of the livestock are as alien to the Computer Age Aryans as big screen televisions and pagers would have been to the Aryan Folk of old. If Asatru is to remain relevant to the Folk, it must grow and change as the Folk evolves. For example, horses were sacrificed to the God Frey and the blood, lungs, kidneys, entrails, and other un-edible parts of the animals were offered to the God while the meat of the horses were roasted and the Folk feasted on the flesh in the God's honor. Horse offerings were fine for the Viking Age, but we no longer live in the Viking Age. If you live on a farm and need to butcher your livestock, by all means incorporate that event into Asatru, but if you normally buy your meat from a super market, it would be un-natural to go out to buy a cow, a pig, or what have you just to sacrifice it. Secondly, we live under the oppression of democracy. The mob rules and forces it will on the weak. We are a minority religion and democracy in its ideal form is a dictatorship of the majority. Democracy in its real form is a corporate con game. All the laws we are forced to obey by the majority are monotheistic laws. The monotheists can kill millions of animals a year in their slaughter houses and it is no big deal. However, could you image how hard fucking democracy would stomp its Iron Heel on us if the pigs found out we were praying over animals before we killed them? The pig media would treat it as if it were the crime of the century. The pig-lice department would use it as an excuse to do another Waco-style baby roast. The only way we can have religious freedom is to destroy democracy, or to become the majority so we can democratically oppress our opposition like the pigs do to us. Democratic rights is a big lie. The only right we have under democracy is the right to be fucked over by the majority.

I believe in the literal existence of the Gods, but I also believe myth is man made. Some Norse myths were invented by Christians to mock the Gods, others were invented by Pagans to make the Gods more human and understandable. Still other myths are based on dreams holy men and women had. The Gods speak to the Folk through our dreams and dreams need to be interpreted.

Anyway, this was just meant to be a brief note saying I don't agree with everything Brother Sandberg said about Asatru. Here's Sandberg's piece:)

The Speech of the High One:

I know I hung on that windswept tree, Swung there for nine long nights, Wounded with my own blade, Bloodied for Odinn, Myself and offering to myself, Bound to the tree That no man knows Wither the roots of it run.

None gave me bread, None gave me drink, Down to deepest depths I peered Until I spied the Runes. With a roaring cry I seized them up, Then dizzy and fainting, I fell.

Well-being I won And wisdom too. I grew and took joy in my growth: From a word to a word I was led to a word, From a deed to another deed. From the Poetic Edda

History of the Asatru

The Verbena have always been regional, and differ much from area to area. In Scandinavia, the Verbena have been the protectors of the old religion and the old ways against the tide of Christianity and the Technocracy. Actually, the Verbena was behind the Old Faith of Asatru which ruled before Christianity. Asatru means the "belief in the Aesir", the old Pagan Gods.

During the pre-Christian times they were the priests and counselled the leaders about the will of the Gods. Their magick was devoted to practical things like helping the crops, fishing and hunting, protecting the people from wild animals and worse, controlling the weather and protecting the universe from the forces which sought to bring about Ragnarok, the destruction of the world.

During this time magick was more common than today, and most people knew a few minor magics. These were often of a simple protective nature and used to protect against spirits, the faeries, the dead, injuries, accidents and bad luck. These magics consisted often in inscribing a special rune (The runic alphabet was regarded as magical, and to be able to inscribe runes was regarded as a kind of magic), or singing the galders, songs sung in a high-pitched voice These rites were passed down through generations, or given to people by the priests or sibyls. All in all, minor magic seems to have been quite common, a bit like how most people today know a few tricks with technology.

Year 829 AD a monk named Ansgar arrived in Sweden. He was sent out by emperor Ludwig to convert the Vikings of Sweden to Christianity (perhaps to lessen their raids and make them easier to trade with). The attempt failed, but soon other missionaries arrived. The Celestial Chorus were probably among them, and a struggle ensued between the Pagans and the Choristers. The struggle continued for several centuries, but Christianity slowly became the religion of the kings and leaders and later the rest of the inhabitants. Both groups adapted to each other, and it seems as the Asatru went underground and continued its activities with support from the people, while the Choristers left them and their beliefs more or less alone as long as they weren't visible. Then came the Technocracy, which defeated the Celestial Chorus. Asatru remained hidden.

Asatru Today

Today the Asatru has survived in remote corners of Scandinavia. During its long persecution by the Church and Technocracy its members have become adept at hiding, often in plain sight. Much of the old faith has survived as old superstition and local customs, and the secret priests have carefully protected the faithful. Most of the believers live in rural or wilderness areas far from civilization. They live in small settlements in the forests of Sweden, in small fishing villages in Norway or in the remote corners of Iceland (their current stronghold). Some of them emigrated to America during the 1800s and built their own small communities there, far from civilization. They often keep to themselves, and avoid outsiders. The belief often goes in the family, tying the tradition together with bands of blood.

While their enemies control the political world and society at large, the believers in Asatru work on the local scale, with practical methods. They promote their own and similar beliefs, often spreading the old superstitions to undermine the new faith. They have succeeded very well with spreading respect and affinity to nature among the masses in Scandinavia. They infiltrate agricultural organizations and influence their work, often using them as tools to strike at the projects of the city-dwellers. They promote a healthy xenophobia to protect their old customs from the influence foreigners and city-dwellers. In fact, many of them are supporting local low-level nationalism and racism to encourage the sleepers to become more tied to their roots and to mistrust anything else.

Their relations to environmental organizations are a bit ambivalent. On one hand they support them, since the protection of nature is one of their own most important tenets, but on the other hand they regard the environmentalists as do-gooders from the city who don't know anything about the real problems and only care about cute seals or flowers, not the uglier aspects of nature. In fact, many of the believers work against the environmentalists, seeking to protect their land and way of living against environmental laws or restoration programs which they regard as yet another way for the masters to try to wipe them out.

Recently some New Agers have begun to worship the old Gods and form different groups more or less based on Asatru. The real mages view this with scorn, and generally dislike them. The New Agers have just borrowed much of the names and myths, and then turned them into yet another fuzzy and nice mythology. The real Asatru believers scornfully remark that most of them don't even sacrifice blood on the blots. However, some of the real believers have begun using these groups as places to recruit people and a way to gain a foothold into the cities. Since most of the New Agers are so easily manipulated, they provide quite useful pawns. The same is true about neo-nazis, which the believers subvert by their magick and their grasp of ancient myth. They can be used in a similar manner, and are a very good method of harassing their enemies or diverting the attention of media and government from their own activities.

The Faith

Asatru revolves about the worship of the old Gods, the Aesir. They represent the forces which have formed the universe, and still uphold it. By worshipping them the believers help upholding the universe against chaos and destruction, and may also gain help from them. Unlike modern monotheistic religions, does not demand that the believers should serve the gods. Instead the Gods will help those who ask them for help in exchange for following their ideals and respecting them. This doesn't have to be much, a salutation or a small sacrifice of some food and drink is often enough to make the Gods friendly. Anyone can perform the small acts of devotion to get the help of the Gods.

However, the mages are more advanced than this. They are the priests of the cult, and arrange the larger celebrations, the Blot. Blot are by tradition held at the Sabbaths, especially at the four equinoxes. The blot are mostly held in remote places, where the worshippers can meet without suspicion. In Sweden the cult-places are often glens with one or more oaks around it, on Iceland old stone-circles are used. The blot generally involve the ritual sacrifice of animals whose blood are used to ensure fertility, harmony and the old ways. The priests collect the blood in the hlautbowl, consecrate it to the Gods and sprinkle it using evergreen twigs at the trees, on the idols of the Gods and on the participants. Afterwards the blot turn into a feast where the meat from the sacrifices is eaten.

The tree is a sacred symbol to the Folk, symbolizing the World Tree Yggdrasil. Yggdrasil is a great ash, which grows through the worlds of the dead (Hel), the living (Midgard) and the Gods (Asgard) and upholds creation. It must be protected from the forces which seek to kill it, because if it dies the world will be destroyed. That's why the priests carefully water it with the blood of the blot, and seek to heal any damage to it they are able to heal.

The Gods are not representations of abstract forces, but powerful beings which happen to be good at different things. They are not the ultimate lords of the universe, merely the creators of it and the currently most powerful beings. They might be powerful, but they have a human side and can become angry, drunk, fall in love or otherwise behave like normal humans, just on a higher level. The most important Gods are:

Odin is the oldest and most powerful God. Together with his brothers Vile and Ve he killed the giant Ymir and shaped the universe out of the dead body. He is the God of wisdom, magick, war, death and leadership, riding on his eightlegged horse Sleipnir to oversee battles together with the Valkyrias. If he throws his spear Gagner over somebody, that person will die in the fight. Odin has two ravens, Hugin and Munin, who spy on everything that happens and whisper it into his ears. He is also one-eyed, since he gave his right eye in deposit in the Well of Wisdom.

The sacred animals of Odin is the horse and raven, and he is also the god of the hanged ones (because he voluntarily hanged himself on Yggdrasil as a sacrifice to himself to gain the secret knowledge of the runes). At blots in his honor in the autumn the priests hang horses and people in the trees as sacrifices. They are left hanging so the ravens can gorge themselves on the carcasses.

The God of thunder, Thor, is rather well known. The red bearded God races across the heaven in his chariot drawn by goats, throwing his hammer Mjolnir at the trolls and giants, protecting mankind and Gods from the forces of evil. He is the God of strength, fighting proventus and the forces of nature, especially lightning, but also farming and marriage. The sign of his hammer scare away the trolls and elves, and give protection from lightning.

Frey and his sister Freya, are the Gods of fertility, growth and love. Both are extensively worshipped to ensure the harvests, good weather, health and virility. Both are described as blond and fair, and Frey is often depicted as a sitting figure with a drinking horn and large phallus. The sacred animal of Frey is the boar and of Freya the cat. They are the most often invoked Gods at the blot, and while Odin and Thor are generally mentioned first, Frey and Freya are the ones that most worshippers really love. The Blot of Spring is celebrated in honor of Frey, so that he will bless the crops and livestock and make the weather good during Spring and Summer. Horses and boars are sacrificed in his honor, and usually the worshippers select a young, blond man who will represent Frey during the celebrations. The God is then carried around with great adoration, and he blesses the fields and worshippers. The Blot of Midsummer is celebrated to Freya, so that she will make the men virile and the women fertile. The participants sing bawdy songs and engage in ritual sex.

Balder is the God of light and peace. (Editor's Note: there is great doubt if Balder was a God, but merely a Christian invention. At the beginning of the Viking Age, Bebe wrote that Balder was, not a God, but a Viking hero. There were never temples in Pagan times to Balder, nor were there ever any blots held in his name. The Christians made him a God around the 13th century) He is said to be the most beautiful and shining of the Aesir, and both wise, eloquent and helpful, although a bit impractical. His sacred plant is the mistletoe, because he was killed by an mistletoe arrow fired by his blind brother Höder (who was fooled to fire by the treacherous Loki). It is to his honor the Blot of Midwinter is celebrated, so that the light will return to the world.

There are many other Gods revered by the worshippers. Heimdallr is the perceptive sentinel of the Gods, standing watch at the rainbow for any intruders into Asgard. Skadi is the wild Goddess of hunting, roaming the mountains in the winter with her bow and her wolves. Her husband Njord is the God of the sea, fishing and travel. Loki is the God (Editor's note: I question that Loki was ever thought of as a true God) of fire, deceit, wits and theft who causes and solve problems. Idun is the Goddess of health and longevity, and her husband Brage is the god of poetry. Frigg, the wife of Odin, is the Goddess of home and motherhood. Tyr is the God of war and bravery. Hel is the dark Goddess of death. And so on, there are many lesser deities revered in special situations.

Philosophy

(Editor's Note: A lot of this is taken from the Eddas. The Eddas were written by Christian monks who wanted to belittle the Asatru religion. The myth of Ragnarok was invented by Christians to argue that the Gods were doomed to die, and the Christ-like Balder was destined to replace them with a new religion. The Christians burned all books written by Pagans, and then the Christians wrote the Eddas and Sagas and pretended they were authentic Pagan accounts. The Ed-das even go as far as to trace Odin's family tree back to the Jewish myth of Noah's Ark. Un-fucking-real! The Eddas and Saga are just Christian bullshit. They should be read with a very large grain of salt!)

"Once upon a time there was only the great void of Ginungagap. When the ice from Nifelheim (the world of ice and mist) and the fire from Muspelheim (the world of fire and heat) met in the void, they created the immense giant Ymir. The three brothers Odin, Vile and Ve, the grandsons of Bure, killed him, and formed the world out of his body. His blood became the seas, his bones became the mountains, his flesh became the earth and his skull became the sky. However, Bergelmer, one of the sons of Ymir, survived the cataclysm of his fathers death. He swore revenge against the Gods, and his descendants, the giants, still seek the undoing of the Gods and to destroy the world. They are helped by the giants from Muspelheim and Nifelheim, the traitorous Loki and his three children Hel, the Fenris wolf and the Midgard serpent. One day Ragnarok will come, when the world and most of the Gods will die. (Editor's note: Ass fucking Christian bullshit!) Before it there will be the great Fimbulda-winter, three winters in a row without any summer between. War and violence will spread across the world, and the three roosters will signal the final day to the Gods, the giants and the dead. All bonds break, the dead invade the world, the Gods and giants kill each other in battle, the sun darkens and the World Tree Yggdrasil catches fire and falls, taking the world with it. But from the wreckage a new world will emerge, with clear waters and lush vegetation. The fields will bear crops without any planting and Balder will rule with peace and light.

That is why we must protect the world as long as it stands. We must fight the forces that seek to bring it down, be they supernatural or mundane. We must keep Yggdrasil healthy and strong, heal its wounds and fight its enemies. We must keep the giants and the dark forces at bay. We must protect the old traditions of the blot and the runes, so that the people will not forget the Gods entirely and the Gods will not forget us. We must strengthen the people so they will fight bravely against the forces of death and destruction, or the giants will surely win."

Organization

The believers congregate around sacred sites and are led by their priests. These priests are generally equal, although the oldest and most respected of them lead the others. Different groups have little contact, but sometimes priests contact neighboring groups to discuss mutual problems.

Meetings

Mainly at the equinoxes, especially Midwinter, Spring and Midsummer. Also some ceremonies at the other Sabbaths and at special occasions (often just to celebrate and thank the Gods for success, or to ask them for help). Beside the blot, many worshippers hold small "prayer meetings" where the participants toast the Gods, sing the ancient songs and sacrifice some food.

Initiation

The initiates are mostly chosen among the faithful. One common way to awaken the initiate is to ceremonially hang them in a sacred oak, and let them hang there. The delirious initiate will undergo the same visions that Odin saw when he hung himself, and will thus become awakened, or the initiate will die and become a sacrifice to Odin.

Chantry

Asatru has no true chantries. There have been no real chantries in Sweden since the burning of the temple of Uppsala around year 1100, and probably no others in the rest of Scandinavia. Instead the believers often form small isolated communities, where they can practice their religion in peace. The acolytes most often come from these communities.

Acolytes

Farmers, survivalists, neo-nazis, fishermen and hunters.

Sphere

Life. The priests especially devoted to Odin generally learn about Mind and Prime, while the priests of Thor learn Forces and Matter. Female priests tend to concentrate on the preparation of potions, and the singing of galders, while male priests learn the art of the runes. The völvás are the only mages who deal mainly in Spirit and Time (see below).

Foci: Blood: Life, Prime

This is the most important focus. The blood of the sacrifices is especially powerful, and the sacrifices from the blot is the best. Human blood is naturally powerful, and the blood of voluntarily sacrificed believer have amazing power. The bloodline is important, and royal blood is of course the most powerful (in the old days the priests used to sacrifice the king to stave off famine if it looked really bad). In using the blood, it is important for the mage to give at least some to the Gods to show respect, otherwise they might become angered. However, in Life magick other bodily fluids can be used, especially in magick regarding to the giver.

Bowl: Entropy, Spirit

This is known as a hlautbowl, where the blood or drink is first poured and consecrated by the priest. It is often a wooden or silver bowl with intricate ornaments. Hlautbowls are often inherited through generations in families of believers, and regarded as sacred.

Herbs: Matter

This works as normal for Verberna, but substances from the animal or mineral kingdoms are sometimes used. Some specially important substances are oak leaves, mistletoe, salt, yeast, earth, iron, snake venom, ice and poisonous mushrooms.

Hammer: Correspondence, Forces, Time

This is the hammer of Thor, Mjollnir. Most often it is a small stylized hammer worn around the neck. Currently this is rather popular fashion in Scandinavia, so it is easy to hide. In earlier times the mages sometime used crosses to hide their true faith.

Circlet: Mind

This circlet imitates to the Brosingamene, the silver necklace worn by Freya. According to one myth, she has to let Loki wear it half of the year after he stole it and tricked her into his debt. During this time nature vanes and darkness reign, but in the spring she will wear it again and become happy, thus ensuring spring and summer. It thus represent both the allurements of Freya and the cunning of Loki, a fitting symbol for Mind.

Concepts

Recluse, local politician, eccentric, sect leader Quote: "What are you doing to protect the World Tree, Yggdrasil? Don't you see how the dragon Nidhögg gnaws at its roots, how the frost giants of Nifelheim and the fire giants of Muspelheim just await the right moment to bring about Ragnarök? You might think this is just old myths, but we know they are real, far too real..."

Stereotypes

(Editors note: I edited the living hell out of this section. It was meant as a sort of "Can't we all just get along" chant. It was written as a collection of stereotypes between different Pagan groups and, also, between Non-Pagans as well. It was so universalistic that I almost blew chunks. So I chopped the shit out of this part, but left some things I liked in).

Akashic Brothers: "They might be good warriors, but spending all day thinking is not good for any man."

Celestial Chorus "Their god of light and caring is a worse tyrant than any mortal king! They mercilessly crush anything in their path just to make sure nobody dare to disagree with them! They burnt our temples, bribed the leaders and defaced the runes! They deserve all misfortunes they have suffered, and more."

Cult of Ecstasy They celebrate the joy of living like we do, but without any respect.

Wild, powerful and scary. Those people are dangerous, and more than a little insane. You would probably be a bit insane too if your faith had been prosecuted for thousands of years, I guess.

Dreamspeakers: Like us they respect nature, but they don't control it. They believe that Erda will help them and give them orders, unlike us, who knows that we must fend for ourselves. The Gods help those who help themselves.

Euthanatos: Noble in their own way, but easily misled. They seek out those fylgia has reached them, and do what needs to be done. We have done the same ourselves through generations without having to build elaborate theories about it.

They have understood that death is just a beginning, and most of them don't fear it. While their ceremonies and myths may be good or bad, their mindset is very balanced. Many of them have the fatalism of true warriors.

Order of Hermes: Typical city dwellers. They spend all their time in their houses looking in books, instead of looking at the reality that surrounds them.

They have some primitive understanding of the importance of the balance of the forces of nature, but are trapped in primitive beliefs and their religion. They must learn that the world around them is just a small cog in the great wheel.

Sons of Ether: Useless gadgeteers. They could learn much from the dwarves.

Virtual Adepts: What's the point? They have lost contact completely with the ground and are living in their nice castles of air. What will they do when the storm comes?

Technocracy: They are our enemies, and must be crushed in the long run before they bring about Ragnarok in their own way. However, while they control the cities we are taking over what really matters, the countryside.

Marauders: The followers of Loki. Like their master they will one day show their true allegiance and turn to the forces of destruction completely.

Nephandi: These are the servants of the giants. They seek to help their masters to undermine the World Tree, weaken the people and betray the gods. These are our true enemies, and on the day of Ragnarok we will destroy them.

The Undead: We have known for a long time of the existence of undead beings, ghosts, wraiths, vampires, wights and whatever. These beings should be sent back to Hel where they belong to protect the living from their evil.

The Werewolves: The children of Fenris are our enemies. These grandchildren of Loki attack our villages, kill the livestock and destroy our sacred places. They must be hunted down and destroyed for the preservation of the Tree!

These Wyrn-spawned breeders are a blight upon the land and must be cleansed away! They deal with dark forces and protect the humans against our righteous wrath! By Thor, we will not rest until every one of these accused mages are left dead!

The fey: These beings are too diverse to be judged. Some, like the dwarves, can be our grudging allies while the trolls and giants are our enemies. But every one of them is an individual, and most of them are capricious. Be careful in dealing with them, and remember that they flee the iron of Mjollnir.

Funny figures... have danced in their sacred spots a rather long time now. We would really like to play more with them, but they have so much cold iron around them all the time...

Rotes

Heritage of the Blood (Time 2 Life 1)

In ancient time, the God Heimdalr traveled the land, and sired the thralls, the bards, the farmers and the jarls (the leaders). The trace of the God is still upon the people, and a priest knowledgeable in the ways of the blood can still see it. By feeling the force in the blood, the mage can follow the lineage back through time to its source, and see which group someone really belongs to. This is also used to trace the lineages, and find those special bloodlines which contain the life of the people.

Brew Venom (Life 2 Prime 2 Entropy 1)

While the Vikings regarded poison as foul, some of the modern mages use it in the defense of their homes and traditions. By boiling together a foul mixture of blood, salt, yeast, earth, iron, ice and some drops of snake venom under invocations of the powers of death, they create a potent and untraceable poison. The poison can be applied in food or drink, placed on weapons or even on surfaces.

The poison will seek out the weakest point of the victim and make him very sick or kill him. [The poison works as an infection or other disease, completely coincidental. Typical effects can be heart attacks, allergic reactions or food poisoning. It will find the weakest point in the body of the victim using an effect like Dim Mak and then strike. It does three times the number of successes damage levels.]

Magic Mead (Matter 2 Prime 2 Mind 2)

By adding special herbs and some blood to mead and then brewing it together, the priestess can create a mead which will infuse the drinker with the emotions of the her choice. This is used to create the mead drunk during the blot, or a subtle way of influencing people.

Mead of blood (Life 3 Prime 2)

This rote may have started as a kind of travesty of the Catholic Mass. By pouring mead into the bowl and adding a few drops of blood, the priest can turn it into blood. However, it doesn't have to look like blood or taste like it, the priest can make it appear to be normal mead. Afterwards, the mead can be used instead of blood as a foci, be imbibed as a source of strength or even used as sustenance for vampires (although practically no modern kindred know about this. Only the oldest Scandinavian Methuselahs have tasted such mead).

Galders

Galders are magickal songs sung in a peculiar high pitched voice, with simple and practical effects. These were the most common type of personal magick during the old days, and were completely coincidental. However, as reality became more rigid, they became harder to sing with effect, and today only the priests can use them. They have some peculiar advantages and disadvantages; on one hand they do not require any foci except the song itself. However, the only galders which work today are those which have been sung since the old days, and it is impossible to create new galders with power. It seems as if they have become locked into static reality and cannot change anymore. Naturally, the mages have spent much time preserving and researching the old songs, but unfortunately only a few are known. Here are some typical examples:

Ettergalder (Matter 1) This galder was used by the legendary Egil Skallagrimson when he suspected that his drink was poisoned. He sung it to the mug, and it shattered, showing that the contents were poisoned.

Frostegalder (Life 1) This galder protects from cold and freezing.

The mage sings the galder to his flesh and limbs, making them liven up and get warm again.

Runegalder (Prime 1) This galder makes the runes in the vicinity of the singer to shine with their light, making them easy to read. By the intensity of the light the mage can see how powerfully they were inscribed.

Gastegalder (Spirit 2) This galder protects from ghosts and other denizens of the night. By singing it the mage can scare away most of the lesser unbeings.

Bragdegaldar (Mind 2) This is a rousing galder which inspires frenzy and bravery among those who hear it.

Giljegaldar (Mind 2) This galder evokes loving feelings from a person of the opposite sex.

Lösegaldar (Matter 3) This is a galder which helps mages who have been imprisoned. The mage sings the galder to the bonds, which will release him.

Runes (Prime 3)

The art of carving runes is one of the best kept secret of Asatru. Even Odin had to pay dearly for the secret. Once anybody who knew how could carve the magical runes, but today they require quite powerful magick to create. The physical shape of a rune is no problem, but creating the secret pattern inside which gives it power is hard today after the activities of the Church and the Technocracy. Each rune has to be consecrated with a drop of blood by the carver while he whispers its secret name and concentrates, and the inscription must be charged by tass. However, when finished, the text of runes will work as a kind of talisman, retaining its powers as long as it is charged. If they are recharged or placed on a place where they can recharge from the environment they will last nearly forever. (Like on the runestones, which are often placed on ley-lines or nodes. Many retain their power even today)

Vigrunor (Entropy 1 Mind 2 Prime 3)

These are runes which are inscribed on a weapon under invocations to Tyr, and will give the wielder success in battle. He will be able to see the weaknesses of his enemies, become brave and fearsome to his foes. [The Entropy effect will make the user notice the weaknesses of his foe, while the two Mind effects will make him brave and fearless while his foes will become nervous.]

Bränningsrunor (Entropy 2 Prime 3)

These runes protect ships at sea from accidents and wreckage. They are inscribed on the bow and on the helm.

[The runes will protect from all random accidents and give the helmsman a subconscious ability to find the best course through storms and reefs. Each success will add to his skill.]

Lemrunor (Life 4 Prime 3)

These runes are the most potent way of healing somebody there are today in Asatru. Once this type of healing was quite simple, but it has turned hard. The priest writes the runes on the bark of a tree, usually with the blood of the patient. This creates a potent healing force that will seek to heal the patient continuously, thus overcoming and hindering even the most serious diseases as long as the runes are inscribed on the tree. However, the runes can also be used to curse, causing wounds or sickness in the same way as they can heal. By adding or deleting a rune, the inscription can be turned around, which makes it important to keep them secret from enemies.

[The runes will seek to heal any wounds and sickness of the person they mention. Each time he is hurt or become sick, the runes will get a chance to heal him. If they cannot heal him completely, they will at least prevent any worsening of the condition.]

Protection Runes (Varies, Prime 3)

These runes are inscribed on the runestones marking and protecting the old nodes and ley-lines. Usually they consist of nasty and powerful curses (generally the most powerful the present priests can invoke). If the runes are destroyed, the flow of power through the stone is disrupted or somebody moves it, the curse will activate. This has given the Technocracy in Sweden a lot of problems in the past when they have wanted to move the ley-lines. Currently they simply let the stones stand (and actually protects them, to avoid having any spurious magick getting loose) and lead new ley-lines around them.

Edsrunor (Varies, Prime 3)

These runes are used to seal oaths, deals and curses. When finished, they force the parts to obey to the text. If any part breaks it, he will suffer the effects described. These are usually the worst possible curses the priest can do, and it is not uncommon to add curses beyond the ability of the mage just for effect. In the case of pure curses, the victim is forced to obey the caster or suffer the full curse. These texts are usually inscribed on stone or wooden boards, and then often placed in sacred places for safekeeping. The only way to remove a curse is to find the runes and erase them, but some really cunning mages write them on pine-needles and scatter them in the forest.

Seid (Spirit, Time)

The magick of the Asatru does not deal much with the world of spirits or advanced forms of divination. That was the realm of seid, a kind of magick not done by the normal priests and mages. It was originally a type of magick of the Lapp shamen of northern Scandinavia, and it was regarded with suspicion and fear. Today it is more accepted, but still it remains a slightly separate tradition. However, some elements have been incorporated into modern and is used by specialized priestesses, known as völvas. They are respected, but a bit apart from the priesthood of the Aesir. They are recognized by their magickal rods (völva means literally female bearer of a rod), which are their unique foci for Spirit and Time. Some völvas are even said to fly on their rods, or on wolves. Their link to this rod is so strong, that they are said to protect it even after their own death.

Seid involves ecstatic trances, where the völvá can communicate with the spirits and see the future and past. These are achieved by her sitting on a special settee singing certain ancient galders (or having acolytes sing them at her). These galders are reputedly both beautiful and terrifying, but seem to send the völvá into trance. Now she can go out into the spirit world, summon the dead, see past and future or reveal the hidden secrets.

Talismans

Idols (Talisman 1)

Iron or wooden idols of the Gods are placed around holy places or in shrines in the homes of believers. Some are enchanted and have special powers. They are often offered small sacrifices in exchange for working, and some believers even thank them with blood if they have done especially well. Most popular are idols of Frey, which promote fertility and virility when kept in the house and good crops when placed by the fields. Instead of a humanoid idol a phallus is sometimes used. Idols of Thor protect against lightening, faeries, ghosts and evil forces (sometimes just a stylized hammer is used). Idols of Odin are rare and regarded as a bit spooky, and most are placed as guardians around sacred places (especially where oaks grow). They will somehow alert the worshippers that somebody is coming. Idols of Heimdalr are used similarly, but are often placed in the home too. Idols of Skadi gives good hunting and Idols of Njord helps sailing and fishing. Idols of Frigg are placed by the beds of children to protect them and keep them healthy.

Bolverk (Talisman 2)

This is an old Viking sword, with a dull and dark finish which won't go away regardless of any attempts of polishing it. When it is drawn from its scabbard it emits a hissing noise, like a snake. Its name means "Bringer of pain/death", which is also one of the titles of Odin. According to the myth, the sword was forged on the autumn solstice by a priest of Odin, who had turned to the dark aspect of his god. It was later wielded by the infamous Ingjald Two-Tongue, and was reputedly buried with him. But it has reappeared since then, according to the legend wielded by the Wraith of the cruel Ingjald. Besides being eternally sharp, regardless of how dull it looks it has the nasty effect of causing excruciating pain from any wounds. There are also rumors that it actually seeks contact with living flesh to cause more pain, and will cut through the skin of anybody touching it carelessly just to cause pain. [A Matter 1 effect keeps it eternally sharp. A Life/Mind effect doubles all wound penalties made by the sword, and bruised is at-1.]

Spawn of Draupnir (Talisman 2)

One of the most prized possessions of Odin was the ring Draupnir, which every ninth night spawned eight similar rings. Some of these rings also had the power of multiplication, and a few seems to have been accidentally given to humans (or stolen). These rings look like a heavy Viking ring of pure gold, artfully ornamented into three dragonsnakes braiding together and biting their tails. If left alone, it will spawn eight similar rings every ninth night. It was originally made by the dwarves, and no dwarf can resist any chance of getting the ring, by whatever means.

Rod of the Völva (Talisman 3)

Some of the völvass enchanted their rods so that they could be used more easily. By holding the rod and going into a trance (or being sleepy, drunk or something like that), the wielder will get visions of the past, present and future. These visions are partially random, partially controlled by what the user want to see (not only consciously, but also subconsciously), and may be dangerously biased. Some rods are still strongly influenced by their makers, and will be biased towards their views. The link between the rod and the original owner is often so strong, that it is possible to communicate with her soul in the realm of death (note that most völvass have no grasp of modern languages). How she reacts to the mage who disturbs her sleep depends much on how she is treated and what he asks her. Some völvass are happy to help in any way they can, while others trick and curse people seeking help

Mead of Poetry (Artifact)

The Gods created a man called Kvaser as a part of a peace treaty after a civil war. Kvaser was the wisest man who has ever lived, and was able to answer any question. He traveled around the world giving advice and helping people, but one day he was invited as guest by two dwarves called Fjalar and Galar, who killed him. To the Gods they explained that Kvaser had gagged on his own wisdom, since nobody could ask him enough. The dwarves brewed the Mead of Poetry out of his blood, which was able to turn anyone into a great poet by drinking it. After many adventures the mead was finally stolen by Odin, who drank most of it and gave some to his fellow Gods and some humans. There may still be some mead left somewhere, and if anybody find it and drink it they will gain the gift of poetry.

(A small note: The old Nordic names are not easy to transcribe, and frankly I lack any linguistic knowledge in this area. I have used those names who fit my impression of old Scandinavian best or have appeared in my sources. Not to mention the problems with the national characters (which didn't exist before the 16th century). Another thing to remember is that the myths are contradictory in many places, and I have made no attempt to simplify things.)

Why the Vikings Were Powerful

The Vikings probably were descended from blue-eyed and blond invaders from the south of Scandinavia. There they found and conquered a short, dark-haired race. Long-limbed and muscular, with flaxen or red hair hanging below their shoulders, Norsemen were trained from childhood to be strong and self-reliant. Running, jumping, and wrestling took the place of reading, writing, and arithmetic. Their other subjects were skating, skiing, snowshoeing, swimming, rowing, and riding horseback. As soon as a youngster could carry a weapon, he was taught to thrust a sword, to swing a battle-ax, and to throw a spear.

Just as much of the race movement's failure is due to atheism or the mixed messages Christian Identity brings to the movement. Much of the Norsemen's success was due to their religion, for the Norsemen's Gods were warriors too. Thor the Thunderer made constant war against the ice and snow giants of the North. The chief god, Odin, presided over Valhalla, the warrior's heaven. Death in battle was considered the most honorable death.

Only by that death could a Norseman enter Valhalla. So the Norsemen battled unafraid and joyful, calling upon their Gods to help them.

The Norsemen were the most skilled and daring seamen of their day. Because the compass was still unknown, they navigated by sun and star. When fog hid the stars, their ships drifted until the weather cleared. Not fearing death, they took great chances. Their experiences and discoveries were therefore many. Compare the brave and successful Norsemen to the cowardly losers in the race movement. It is easier for people who believe in a pro-White warrior afterlife to be brave, than it is for people who are atheists and believe in nothing or racist Christians who must deal with the fact that almost all Christians believe Jesus is anti-racist, loves all races, and that Identity Christians are going to hell for misleading people about Christ's teachings.

The Norsemen dared not risk open fires aboard their wooden ships, and in those days there were no stoves. So, unless they were on a long sea voyage, they would anchor in a quiet bay each evening. Then they pitched tents on the shore, kindled fires, and cooked their food. Porridge with dried meat or fish was the usual diet. Sometimes they had bread, butter, and cheese. If they spent the night aboard ship, they unrolled their skin sleeping gear and stretched out on the rowers' benches. A successful Viking expedition might bring fortune, fame, and, perhaps, noble rank to those who took part. Many Karl and Thrall teenagers would join the crews of a Viking raider, so they could prove themselves in battle and earn a place within the Jarl or warrior caste. The famous Viking Egil Skalla-Grimsson was born a slave. He ran away from his master, joined the crew of a longship, who raided every Christian town they found, and, due to his bravery, Egil became a great Viking King; one of Odin's favorite sons. Many Thralls and Karls dreamt of fighting for the Folk and becoming a great King. So by the time they were 15 or 16, Norse boys were eager to try their luck in battle. Compare this to today's worthless, lazy, pot smoking, M-TV watching youth, and you can see just how far our race has fallen under Christianity and all its universalistic kin.

The Aztlan Reconquista

It takes no great imagination for a visitor to Southern California to feel witness to a great tide of history. Heading south toward Los Angeles on U.S. 101, a valley opens up near Oxnard: with coastal mountains surging magnificently on the left, and the Pacific on the right, a driver can see flat green fields stretching for miles. There, stooped at the waist in orderly lines, are hundreds and hundreds of Mexican laborers.

Such a scene, with the mountains and speeding cars and lush fields, was visible thirty years ago as well, but without the same resonance. Americans could think, and many did, about the tedium and difficulty of the farm work and the poverty of the workers, all in a state of such plenty. But today this tableau gives rise to more powerful interpretations. These are more often explored by Mexican intellectuals or Mexican-American activists, but they should be in our minds as well.

Listen to the late Carlos Loret de Mola, writing in one of Mexico's leading newspapers: "A peaceful mass of people, hardworking, carries out slowly and patiently an unstoppable invasion, the most important in human history. You cannot give me a similar example of such a large migratory wave by an ant-like multitude, stubborn, unarmed, and carried on in the face of the most powerful and best-armed nation on earth." The result of this migration, he continues, is to return the land "to the jurisdiction of Mexico without the firing of a single shot." For despite the wealth of the United States and its historic ability to absorb immigrants and convert them into Americans, these workers "continue to be Mexican and even to impress their personality on their surroundings." The American upper classes live "in increasing splendor, [but] their luxury . . . marks the beginning of their decadence." The land, Loret de Mola concludes, "ends up in the hands of those who deserve it."

An exaggeration? A flight of romantic nationalist rhetoric? One would like to think so. But it cannot be shrugged off as easily as it might have been 15 years ago, when it was first published.

Since then, the immigration debate in the United States has grown from infancy to adolescence. Legislation to curb illegal (primarily Mexican) passage across the southern border has been introduced, debated, and passed — with little decisive effect. Competing lobbies battle in Washington. Many politicians huddle somewhere in the middle and, if asked to speak out, stick to well-worn grooves.

Usually, a congressman or senator will oppose illegal immigration — at least in principle. As for legal immigrants, the congressman will tell you, they should assimilate. Assimilation has become the new magic word in the immigration debate, brandished like a cross before a vampire at those who worry out loud about the impact on American national cohesion of large numbers of newcomers from not always compatible cultures. Assimilation evokes the misty past of Ellis Island, through which millions entered, eventually seeing their descendants become as American as George Washington. For those who insist on viewing the present through the Ellis Island prism, today's immigration is full of promising parallels. David Rieff, in his insightful book, Los Angeles: Capital of the Third World, tells of the West L.A. bourgeois who sees in today's Mexican immigrants a likeness to the Italians who came through New York early this century.

Meanwhile, the simile goes, the well-educated and highly entrepreneurial Koreans and Chinese resemble the Jews (the speaker's own forebears) from Poland and the Pale of Settlement. It is such a reassuring comparison, and these days one hears it often.

But such analogies prove shaky if examined. This one in the first place suffers from a pronounced lack of historical imagination — as if there could be no other relevant model for a mass migration of peoples than the one which took place from Europe to the United States between 1880 and 1924. Furthermore, it ignores such fundamental factors as today's vastly different American economy, with its narrower paths to upward mobility. It gives short shrift to the history and geography of the American Southwest, and to the proximity and population of Mexico today, as compared to Italy then. Most negligently, it ignores the ideas and attitudes of the Mexican and Mexican-American politicians and activists who speak to — and on behalf of — the new immigrants.

Some who tout assimilation at least acknowledge how large is the wager being placed on it. Peter Salins, whose Assimilation, American Style has become a lodestar for Republican advocates of high immigration, admits that intergroup harmony in a multi-ethnic state is fragile and, historically speaking, rare. Only through vigorous assimilation of new immigrants has the United States avoided the strife which has plagued multi-ethnic states throughout history. Meanwhile, not enough assimilation is taking place, Salins contends; the process needs reinvigoration.

He recommends a retreat from bilingual education and re-emphasis on teaching English in the schools, a rooting out of multicultural curriculums to encourage immigrants to adopt a primarily American political identity, and a reinvigoration of the Protestant ethic — which he boils down to a readiness to work hard, make money, and get ahead. Worthy goals all, but given the circumstances of today's immigration, far more easily proposed than accomplished.

However, a revival of "traditional" assimilation practices will hardly suffice, examine California. The 1990 Census indicated that 38 per cent of America's foreign-born are from Latin America, and well over half of those are from Mexico. The real percentages are probably higher, since illegal aliens avoid the Census, and most illegals come from those regions. If assimilation can be revived it has to be revived among Latinos. The obstacles are daunting.

Economic and material conditions cannot account for the politics of individuals, or of larger groups. But they give important clues. About the circumstances of Mexican-Americans and other Latinos, two points stand out, plain to any observer in Los Angeles, and buttressed by reams of recent social-science data: as a group Latinos are hard-working; also, they are poor. Last year, federal data showed that, for the first time, the Hispanic poverty rate had begun to exceed that of American blacks. In 1995, in the midst of a powerful economic recovery, household income rose for every ethnic group except Hispanics, for whom it dropped 5 per cent. Latinos (the terms Latino and Hispanic are used interchangeably) now make up a quarter of the nation's poor people, and are more than three times as likely to be impoverished than whites. This decline in income has taken place despite high rates of labor-force participation by Latino men, and despite what some researchers hopefully describe as an "emerging" Latino middle class. In California, where Latinos are now approaching one-third of the population, a recent Rand study, Immigration in a Changing Economy, reached gloomy conclusions about the economic prospects of immigrants from Mexico and Central America. Their education levels were far lower than those of other immigrants, and they earned about half of what native-born Californians earn.

Thus, for the first time in the history of American immigration, hard work is not leading to economic advancement. Why? Immigrants in service jobs face unrelenting labor-market pressure from more recently arrived immigrants, invariably eager to work for less. In clothing and furniture manufacture, where Mexican immigrants are concentrated, wages have dropped $6,000 a year in real terms since 1970; they are dropping for truck drivers and janitors as well. The warnings of the Rand report are echoed by a new Urban Institute study on farm workers, which concluded that "rural poverty in California is being re-created through immigration" and that a constant flow of new low-skilled workers pouring into California's labor camp "colonias" would make such poverty more difficult to root out than in the past. (Both Rand and the Urban Institute have long been enthusiasts for immigration.)

The narrowing of the pathways of upward mobility has implications which immigration analysts are only beginning to come to terms with. The Rand study is one of several recent volumes to express worry about the so-called "second generation" — the children of recent immigrants. Alejandro Portes, editor of a just-published book on the subject, asks whether "today's children of immigrants will follow their European predecessors and move into the middle-class mainstream, or whether, on the contrary, their ascent will be blocked and they will join children of earlier black and Puerto Rican migrants as part of an expanded multi-ethnic underclass." Portes's insinuation that it is the responsibility of the host society if immigrants fail to advance ("their ascent will be blocked") is not unusual in this literature, and indeed some scholars recommend that the United States adapt its economy to the needs of the Latino immigrant stream (e.g., by creating more jobs for uneducated workers) rather than shape its immigration policies to American needs.

Portes and his colleagues argue that the modern American economy is shaped like an hourglass — there are a good number of jobs for unskilled people at the bottom, and a fair number of jobs for the educated at the top. But for those without a college education or special skills, jobs in the middle are scarce. Historian Fred Siegel, in his recent study of three American cities (Los Angeles among them), The Future Once Happened Here, notes that first-generation immigrants compare their circumstances to what they left. In the case of those who came from grinding poverty they adjust to the falling wages, sometimes making efforts to hold families together with two or three menial jobs.

But their children and grandchildren will not compare themselves to those they left behind in Michoacan or the slums of Santo Domingo, but to other U.S. groups. They are unlikely to be content as maids, gardeners, or fruit pickers. But unionized factory jobs, which once provided a step up for the second generation of past waves of immigrants, have been disappearing for decades. Rand, pointing to a growing divergence between skilled and unskilled wages, forecasts that 85 per cent of California's new jobs will require post-secondary education.

And although many Latino immigrants possess an impressive work ethic, the pursuit of higher education has not been a strength of theirs. The Hispanic high-school dropout rate nationwide is 30 per cent — three times the rate for whites and twice the rate for blacks. This has puzzled researchers. Perhaps language is the problem — either failed bilingual-education programs or (as others argue) an insufficient number of them. But the dropout rate for Hispanics born in the United States is even higher than for young immigrants. Among Mexican-Americans, high-school dropout rates actually rise between the second and third generation. This is an astonishing fact, which portends that Hispanic poverty rates will not diminish as the immigrants "assimilate." Scholars who have done field work among young Latinos say that many in the second and third generations see themselves as locked in irremediable conflict with white society, and are quick to deride successful Mexican students as "wannabes." For them, to study hard is to "act white" and exhibit group disloyalty.

The parallels to the well-chronicled cultural patterns in African-American ghettos are plain enough. And it is worth remembering that it was not generally the black Americans who migrated from the rural South to Northern cities who took part in riots and civil insurrections in the 1960s, but their children and grandchildren.

The assimilation problem is not simple economics. Even if it were possible to ensure that Latino immigrants would experience the upward mobility that equally unschooled European immigrants managed a hundred years ago, their political assimilation would by no means be assured. The Latino sense of the United States has always been different. As David Rieff puts it, Mexicans arrive with the title-deeds to the land already in their pockets; someone fresh off a pick-up truck in Los Angeles comes to a city where a main boulevard is named for a former Mexican governor, and where most place names reflect the state's Hispanic past. Earl Shorris, in his eloquent panegyric, Latinos: A Biography of the People, writes, with evident satisfaction, that Latinos have been more resistant to the melting pot than any other group. Their entry en masse into the United States will "test the limits" of the American experiment — a forecast which is hard to dispute.

Two words, "Aztlán" and "Reconquista," hover over the Mexican immigration issue, sometimes at a safe height, sometimes swooping uncomfortably low. Generations of American children have skipped over the Mexican-American War of 1846-48 as a brief skirmish, a blip in a history that includes the Revolutionary War, the Civil War, two World Wars, Korea, and Vietnam. But for Mexicans and Mexican-Americans with a sense of history it was a monumental event. Mexico lost half of its territory to a self-confident and expanding United States. It is true that the territory ceded by Mexico in the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo was barely populated, and not really administered by Mexico City; it is also true that Mexico itself was a chaotic despotism in 1848.

Nevertheless, Mexicans know in a way that few Americans do that California, Arizona, and New Mexico were lost to them through that treaty; Texas had won its independence 12 years before. The opening pages of Rodolfo Acuña's Occupied America — probably the most widely assigned text in the nation's burgeoning Chicano Studies programs — displays a map showing "the Mexican republic" in 1822 reaching up into Kansas and Oklahoma, and including within it Utah, Nevada, and everything west and south of there. The United States' rapid victory in the war has left a mark between the two nations which, as Shorris puts it, few Americans think about and few Mexicans are able to forget. For the latter the conflict is a "devastating loss of face" — in the aftermath of Guadalupe Hidalgo, Americans would speak of Mexicans as docile, and the latter would describe themselves as a people able to endure. To "correct" these perceptions, writes Shorris, has been the primary task of every Mexican-American social activist.

In the late 1960s, a nascent Mexican-American movement adopted for itself the word "Chicano" (which had a connotation of low class) and broke forth with surprising suddenness. Compared to Black Power and to the white New Left, the Chicano movement was a small part of 1960s radicalism (and it has been virtually ignored in many of the recently published histories of that era). But "Chicanismo" left its mark on today's Mexican-American leaders — a group whose power has grown rapidly as their community has swollen in numbers.

In 1968, tens of thousands of Chicano students walked out of barrio high schools in East Los Angeles. It was widely believed that the Brown Berets, a militant group styled on the Black Panthers, had organized the walkout. Similar protests soon followed in Colorado, Texas, and Arizona. This was a new kind of Mexican-American politics, with demands and rhetoric neither linked to the power struggles within Mexico nor focused simply on securing civil rights for Mexican-Americans. Instead, the Chicanos were developing a politics of ethnic and racial identity with a territorial edge. Rejection of assimilation into the American cultural mainstream was its main point. Chicano activists took pride in denying that Columbus "discovered" America; they held up the Aztecs and Mayans as their founding fathers. In 1967, the former professional boxer Rodolfo "Corky" Gonzales published an epic poem, I Am Joaquín, a telescoped rendering of thousands of years of Chicano history. Read out loud at meetings throughout the Southwest, its message was: "I will never be absorbed." In 1969, the Chicano Youth Liberation Conference convened in Denver; there, amid a flurry of nationalist rhetoric and manifestos, Gonzales declared in defiance of the archaeological evidence that Aztlán, the mythical homeland of the Aztecs, was in the American Southwest.

Later that year MEChA, or Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano de Aztlán — a group which exists today on college campuses in ten states — was established. In 1970, in one of the most concrete manifestations of the movement's aims, a political party called La Raza Unida won control of the small town of Crystal City, Texas. As Ignacio Garca, a sympathetic observer, describes its reign in Chicanismo (a new text for Chicano Studies courses): "Bureaucrats, clerks, teachers, administrators, policemen, and a host of other governmental and educational professionals lost their jobs and were replaced by Chicanos sympathetic to the new party. Army recruiters were unwelcome, only UFW lettuce was eaten." After one of the party's leaders won a county judgeship in 1974, court sessions were conducted in Spanish and Chicano criminals were given lenient sentences. The courts also harassed non-supportive Mexican-Americans and intimidated White farmers and businessmen.

La Raza Unida did not last, and, like many other radical movements, Chicanismo fell plague to personal rivalries and ideological splits. Its greatest institutional legacy may be the Chicano Studies departments now sprinkled around the country. Radical works like Acuña's Occupied America (now in its third edition) are read (in English) by Chicano students; it is rare to find a Chicano Studies text today that does not treat the decline of the movement with remorse.

Some Chicano leaders migrated to the Democratic Party, where, to be sure, they toned down their ethnic rhetoric. But who can doubt that the sentiments expressed in I Am Joaquín — which reach deep into the wellsprings of group memory and pride, while rubbing salt into old wounds left by the White race — are more alive today than the Port Huron Statement or anything said by Abbie Hoffman? Why should those sentiments evaporate as Latinos see their share of California's and America's population rise? In 1970 Latinos made up 12 per cent of California's population, and Hispanics were not even counted as a distinct category in the national Census. In 1990, Hispanics made up 9 per cent of the nation, and they are expected to be more than a quarter of the U.S. population in two generations. More than 30 per cent of the population of California — the key electoral state — are Latinos; the figure will rise to 40 per cent before the year 2,000.

And, sure enough, among both activists and elected leaders, a good deal of Chicanoist rhetoric lives on. Peter Skerry, one of the country's shrewder analysts of contemporary Mexican-American politics, has labeled Mexican-Americans "the ambivalent minority." He describes them as torn between the impulse to organize and present themselves as an aggrieved racial group, following the model of African Americans, and the countervailing impulse to view themselves as part of the American immigration story, as an ethnic group that will blend in its own way into the United States, as Italians and Irish have. In purely political terms, the aggrieved-minority position has won hands down; one is hard put to find a Mexican-American political leader of consequence who rejects racial quotas for Hispanics, for instance.

But the legacy of Chicano nationalism and Mexican history raises a third possibility: that Mexican-Americans will see themselves as part of the continuum of Mexican civilization. Mexico's proximity makes this a plausible option, in a way that it really is not for American blacks vis-a-vis Africa.

Mainstream Mexican-American politicians use rhetoric laced with a racism that no White politician these days could get away with. Former State Senator Art Torres paid no great price in public obloquy when he deemed California's Proposition 187 "the last gasp of white America." Torres, now chairman of the state Democratic Committee, had long been viewed as one of the more moderate of Latino politicians — chosen, for instance, as statewide spokesman for the Mondale presidential campaign.

In a way, such rhetoric may be simply common sense: why should a Latino politician, representing a district heavily populated with non-citizens who speak little or no English and who have flouted American laws to enter the country, identify with the retreating White culture? Already by the late 1980s, the concept of "MexAmerica" had acquired a certain legitimacy in academic circles; the term underscored an uncertainty about where Mexico ended and Southern California began. Politicians like Torres began speaking of "reclamation" — asserting that "our modern metropolis is returning to the enduring Pueblo of Los Angeles of years past." Was this not a more realistic assessment of the meaning of the Latino migration than the sunny talk about "assimilation"?

Other leaders speak even more aggressively. Rodolfo Acuna is given to referring to Whites as Nazis. At a MEChA conference last year, he told listeners, "Right now you are in the Nazi United States of America." His textbook, which dresses up such sentiments in Marxist language, shows that the nation's changing demographics makes White-bashing good business for publishers. Elsewhere on California campuses, the descendants of the Chicanismo generation keep the flames alive. Last year the MEChA student publication, Voz Fronteriza, greeted the Republican Convention in San Diego by observing that "a large gathering of racist and fascist European settlers" is planning to convene, in order to forge plans for "genocide and deportation of the Mexicano, African, and other oppressed people." The authors declared: "Every Mexicano must become an enemy of the colonial settler state." Voz Fronteriza gloats when Border Patrol officers are killed in the line of duty; it refers to them as "migra" pigs trying to defend "la frontera falsa." So speaks the tax payer-funded Latino student press in the California university system.

Slightly bowdlerized, the same attitudes are spread in high-school textbooks. One such work, Five Hundred Years of Chicano History in Pictures, edited by Elizabeth Martinez, is used in over three hundred schools throughout the West. Written in Spanish and Spanglish, the work seeks to "celebrate our resistance to being colonized and absorbed by racist empire builders." The authors reserve special venom for the Border Patrol and the Immigration and Naturalization Service, described as "the Gestapo for Mexicans." Nevertheless, the book is optimistic about the future: "Latinos are now realizing that the power to control Aztlan may once again be in their hands." Your tax dollars at work!

The book's widespread use in California has gone unchallenged. Any challenge against these Chicano activists by Whites would be viewed as a hate crime.

Chicano activists find solace in the rising numbers of Latinos in "Aztlan," they can also draw satisfaction from the Mexican government's growing reach across the border (unrestrained, apparently, by its financial dependence upon Washington). Mexico once disdained its northward migrants as "pochos" whose culture had been coarsened by residence amidst the Whites. No longer. Mexico's major political parties agree in principle that migrants should no longer forfeit their citizenship by becoming U.S. citizens; they are taking steps to let them vote in Mexican elections. President Ernesto Zedillo recently warned that Mexico will not tolerate "foreign forces enacting laws on Mexicans" — an apparent reference to stepped-up efforts by the U.S. to prevent illegal border crossings. Latinos are responding. California politicians now lead delegations to Mexico City, where they echo such complaints about efforts to stem immigration.

Picture a large and growing population, predominantly Spanish-speaking, wooed by the politicians and voting in the elections of two countries. It is hard to see where this might fit into the assimilation paradigm celebrated by those who favor continued mass immigration.

Even where politics plays no large role, assimilation is slowing or reversing itself. In Los Angeles, immigrant neighborhoods that were once stepping stones into the broader United States are being "re-Mexicanized" (in Fred Siegel's phrase) by a continuing flow of new immigrants, as long-established Mexican-American residents are forced to adapt to the newcomers. This re-Mexicanization is a cultural fact, involving things like the language spoken in public and the music played in the streets. It proceeds without the hard edge of anti-White resentment, but this is often not the case amongst the more Americanized, English-speaking Latino politicians and educators. Assimilation is by no means a one-way street.

A recent study of undergraduates at Berkeley — a group which necessarily includes some of California's most academically successful Latino students — bears this out. The Berkeley report found that many young Latinos, having grown up assimilated in predominantly white neighborhoods, lacked any sort of strong Chicano/Latino identity before entering college. Berkeley changed that — spurring a process of racialization and reawakening ethnic consciousness. Some Latino students described themselves as being "born again" as Chicanos, and finding themselves resentful over what they had lost of Mexican language and culture. Such remorse among third- and fourth-generation immigrants has ample precedent in American history, and need not have political implications. What is new is that such feelings are reinforced and given a political twist by organizations like MEChA, by Chicano Studies departments, by the intrusions of Mexican politicians, and above all by an unceasing flow of new immigrants.

The assimilation of a wave of new immigrants would seem to require that several things go well at once. Upward mobility may be a necessity. In this century at least, material advancement has become an inextricable part of the "American Dream." Assimilation also requires (as writers like Peter Salins acknowledge) that immigrants and particularly their children use English as a primary language, give their political loyalties to the United States, and embrace the ideals of the Founding Fathers as their own.

This triple bankshot was pulled off brilliantly with immigrants from Europe, in a different era. It seems unlikely to happen with America's Chicanos because of the gradual ascendancy of Spanish over English in East L.A., the declining wages in jobs held by immigrants, and the culture of resistance forged by Chicanos all suggest that something quite different from the old American pattern of assimilation is taking place. Even in relatively mainstream political venues like the National Council of La Raza, delegates courted by leading national Democrats and Republicans chant Viva Mexico! No one blinks when a moderate like Arturo Vargas, executive director of the National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials, points to our changing demographics and says, "We will overwhelm."

And indeed such expressions are, in their way, the most normal and predictable of political sentiments; nationalism after all has been history's vital engine for centuries. What seems off key and nearly inexplicable is the insistence of so many of America's political and intellectual elite that such phenomena are really just an updated version of the Ellis Island experience.

The Icelandic Sagas

Although less well known than other writings, the Icelandic sagas were some of the finest pieces of literature produced in Europe during the Middle Ages. The word saga is derived from the Old Norse verb meaning "to say" or "to tell." A traditional form of household entertainment in medieval Iceland was reading stories aloud. In this saga entertainment all kinds of written narratives were used.

As written literature developed in Iceland, it fell into several categories. Some books were translations of other European works, including lives of the saints, ancient epics, and French romances. By the end of the 11th century, Icelandic historians were writing about their own country's past. A Latin history of the kings of Norway by Saemund Sigfusson has been lost, but 'The Book of the Icelanders' by Ari Thorgilsson has survived.

Another work, the 'Icelanders Saga' by Sturla Thordarson describes in vivid detail the personal and political feuds of the 13th century.

The major sagas that survived are those that tell of the lives of kings, legends of heroes, and stories of ordinary Icelanders. The royal sagas are mainly about Norway. These sagas reached their greatest literary height in the work of the Icelandic poet Snorri Sturluson (1179-1241). His 'Heimskringla' describes the history of the kings of Norway from their legendary descent from the god Odin to Magnus Erlingsson in 1184.

The legendary sagas are about the pre-Christian past of Iceland. The 'Poetic Edda', compiled in the second half of the 13th century, is a collection of poems based on the Norse gods, and it contains a retelling of the Nibelung legend. Some of these sagas were also heroic tales of the Viking exploits in Europe. Many are romantic stories. They were influenced by similar French romances of the period. Late in the 12th century, Icelandic writers began to fictionalize the early history of their island. The central characters are mainly farmers, some of whom were also local chieftains. The authorship of these sagas is unknown.

The period from 1230 to 1290 is considered the golden age of the saga. Some are tragic stories, as is 'Njals Saga', the best of them. In some sagas love is the main theme. Other masterpieces of the time include 'Egils Saga' (probably written by Snorri Sturluson), 'Grettis Saga', 'Hrafnkels Saga', 'Haensa-Thoris Saga', 'Havardar Saga', 'Viga-Glums Saga', 'Gisla Saga', 'Laxdaela Saga', and 'Vatnsdaela Saga'. Many are available in English translation.

The Jesus and Mary Passion Play

To show that Pagan Revival holds no hard feeling against our Christian brothers and sisters, we have decided to run this lovely play about The Lord Jesus and his virgin mother. Just because the monotheists murdered our people by the 100s of millions, burned our books, destroyed our temples, fell our groves, put our children in pots of boiling water until their skin peeled off their bodies, roasted our women alive, took our land, annihilated our world, mocked our Gods every motherfucking chance they could, doesn't mean we should hate them. I say we should love those who torture to death our children. Why can't we all just get along? What's a little genocide among friends? The Jesus and Mary Passion Play is our olive branch of peace to our Christian play-mates. Christian brothers and sisters, please be our friends. We love you. And we forgive you. If the Passion Play helps build a friendship bridge between Pagans and Christians, you'll see more pro-Christian articles in the pages of Pagan Revival.

Act One: Scene One

As the curtain opens and the stage lights slowly brightens, the audience can see a man and a woman sitting next to one another on the corner of a bed inside a seedy motel room in North Hollywood.

The Lord Jesus: Sainted Virgin, Sacred Mother, you are my hallowed heart.

The Virgin Mary: And you are my darling Son, heavenly Father, and eternal Husband.

The Lord Jesus: How could there be any other woman for me? Oh, sweet Mother of God! As the Bible teaches us, when you die, you will join me in holy matrimony in the Kingdom of Heaven. Gracious Bride of God! I, God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost are going the fuck the hell out of you on our wedding night.

The Virgin Mary: However, first off, we'll have to do the talk show circuit. Middle Eastern Messiahs and the Mothers who love them on the next Jerry Springer!

The Lord Jesus: Mother, you don't know how lonely I've been since my twelve Apostles went celibate.

The Virgin Mary: Son, why do so many of your followers elect to go celibate? Do they feel that pleasures of the flesh are merely detours on the road to spiritual fulfillment?

The Lord Jesus: That's an interesting way of putting it, Mom. But in truth, when men start hanging out with me, sex becomes nothing more than a giant pain in the ass.

The Virgin Mary: My lovely, lonely boy. My Master and Lord, my Son and Lover, my Father in Heaven, I will be your dutiful harlot. I hear vice is nice, but incest is best. We will own all the equity in the Kingdom of God. I worship you, my Lord. I am your devoted servant. Precious martyr, you understand how much I relish being your seductive stay at home Mummy. I will do anything for my child. Son, I will suck your dick hard just like Saint Peter does. My God, you are my angelic Father, I am a child of God. I am your little girl, your innocent little daughter, your eternal sex toy. Daddy, come deflower me! Fuck me like a drunken step daughter!

The Lord Jesus: Child, I'll buy you candy and a new dolly. Passionate Mother, I will make you a Saint. I will build Churches to honor you. Great choirs will sing praises to thee! Forgive me Father for I have sinned. Three Hail Marys. Mother of God, how I long for your tight ass! Disrobe now!

God's Bride stands up and disrobes for her son.

The Lord Jesus: Holy Mother! Where's the beef? Those evil Roman Pagans did this to you; didn't they! They cut off your penis! Those damn Pagans stole my Mother's penis! I'll create another flood and kill their women and children!

The Virgin Mary: Son, women don't have penises. Only men.

The Lord Jesus: When I fuck my bitches in the butt, I like to grab on to their penises for leverage. Mother, how can I pack your peanut butter properly if you have no penis for me to hold on to?

The Virgin Mary: Actually, Yahweh, I don't really like it in the butt. I was hoping we could have genitalia sex.

The Lord Jesus: Mother, have can we possibly have sex with our genitalia when you don't have a penis to rub against mine?

The Virgin Mary: Father, I want you to take your immense two inch fudge packer and stick it inside my untouched fuck hole. Son, come on and pop your Mother's cherry.

The Lord Jesus: You want me, King of the Jews, God of Israel, Savior of the Meek, to put my penis inside that putrid catfish crater of yours? What kind of pervert do you take me for?

The Virgin Mary: Father, Son, and Holy Goat....

The Lord Jesus: That's Holy Ghost, not a goat. I am a Ghost and Divine Sheep Herder. Satan is the goat, trying to lead my sheep out of the flock.

The Virgin Mary: Holy Christ, fuck the sheep!

The Lord Jesus: Been there. Done that.

The Virgin Mary: Oh, Christ, fuck me like an alter boy!

The Lord Jesus: Alter boy? Hell, bitch, I'll fuck you like a Christian holy man. Now, fish cunt, shut the fuck up, get on the bed, spread open your butt cheeks, and bare your poop chute for...

JESUS CHRIST IS COMING!!!

News From the Lost Identity Movement

Whackoes The World Over All Claim To Be Mythical Lost Tribe Of Israel

Of all the weirdoes announcing their "lost tribes of Israel" lineage, the talking lamp shades known as the Christian Identity movement have to be the most bizarre. The main dogma of the Christian Identity movements states that (1.) Jews are not White people (2.) Jews are the children of Satan, (3.) Jews are the greatest enemies of the White race, (4.) All Jews must be killed, and (5.), {now, this is the central idea behind the Identity movement}, Christian Identity people are the true Jews. Logically, if Christian Identity people are the true Jews and all Jews must be killed, shouldn't we kill everyone who is Christian Identity in order to save the White race from Satan? It seems only logical to me. What kind of a nut would believe in Christian Identity? The same booger eating White trash that we see on the Jerry Springer show that's who? My dear lost Hebrew friends, eat a big, juicy, green booger for YAHWEH and you will go to the great trailer park in the sky.

All Christian Identity people are idiots, however, not all imbeciles live in Idaho. Nor is every crackpot, who believes to be a member of the mythical "lost tribes of Israel", White. Screwballs come in all races and colors. The south African Lemba tribe, numbering 100,000, don't eat pork (the Bible forbids cannibalism) and butcher their sons' penises and offer the foreskins to YAHWEH as a savory snack on the eighth day. The Lemba claim they are the true Jews, descended from the "lost tribe". As evidence, they cite the rite of penis mutilation and their Hebrew-like alimentary decree.

The Lemba tribe laugh at the Aryan Nations Jewish pedigree. The Negro Jews believe that, albeit the lost trailer park tribe of Israel are in deed lost halfwits, they doubt if they are lost kikes. The Negro Jews even go so far as state that Aryan Nation Hebrews can't possibly be "the true Jews" because you can't make a good bar of soap out of a Klansman. I must confess every time I have tried to wash with Christian Identity soap it left a dirty, slimy film on my skin. However, I have had better luck with the shampoo made out of Identity children. It leaves my hair soft and silky. In the Aryan Revolution, we will even find a good use for the lost Hebrews among us. I once knew this big, fat lost Identity Jew boy in the American Nazi Party who I always felt would make a really nice pair of black leather jack boots. Negroes or crackers? Will the fools who lost their Identity ever get the fuck off of our Pagan land? Israel in the trailer parks. Israel in the Congo. The lost Jew idea is more popular in Africa than in America.

Zambia, Rwanda, Zanzibar, Dahomey, Zimbabwe, Sierra Leone, Sudan, Nigeria, Senegal, and other African countries are saturated with tribes of "true Jew" Negroes, waiting for their turn to migrate to Israel, find their true Identity, and take their share of the welfare state.

Africa and America aren't the only places full of lost Jews. In Pakistan, a group of 15 million Sunni Moslems named the Pathans declare King Saul among their ancestry. The Pathans practice over some 30 Hebrew customs, such as butchering their sons cocks with sharp knives and having sex with their wives through a hole in a bed sheet. In Northern India, there are five million Kashmiris, who claim to be "true Jews" and seek a free ticket to the "holy land". On the India and Burma border, two million Shinlung tribesmen allege an Israelite pedigree from the Hebrew clan of Manasseh. According to the Shinlung tradition, when the Aryan people known as the Assyrians smashed northern Israel, the Manasseh ran to Aryan Persia, then to China, Vietnam, Thailand, Burma, and India.

Chala, a Shinlung farmer, in 1950, had a dream that his people were really the "lost tribe of Israel" and should begin preparations immediately for a mass emigration to the brand-new welfare State of Israel. The Israelite Law of Return is an open door to all who claim Jewish lineage. Oy Vey, all you Christian Identity kikes, what are you waiting for, the S.S. to give you each a loaf of bread and a jar of marmalade to climb into the box cars? The train is leaving for Israel by way of Auschwitz. All aboard! Lost Hebrews returning to the Holy land. Praise YAHWEH! And don't forget to take a nice long shower. I have long felt if we could just shove all Identity Christians in the box cars and ship them off to Auschwitz...I mean Israel that the Promised Messiah will return and bring the Kingdom of Heaven to Earth. Praise be YAHWEH!

Work may set the Christian Identity Hebrews free, but the lost Hebrews from the Third World are looking towards Israel for a free ride. Chala and his people found a friend in Israeli rabbi Eliyahu Avichail, who was a disciple of the lost tribe myth and began bringing the Indian tribesmen to Israel. Rabbi Avichail's motivation is to return all Jews to Israel, so, as the Talmud teaches, the Jewish Messiah can come and save his people from pussy eating sin.

Rabbi Avichail now dedicates his life to finding "lost Jews" and returning them to Israel. He has found missing Hebrews on every continent, except North America. If YAHWEH is willing, perhaps Rabbi Avichail will round up all the Christian Identity "lost Hebrews" and take them back to Israel where they belong. The Second Coming of Christ will not happen until all Jews, especially the "lost Jews" in the White Power movement get the fuck out of the Aryan homeland and go back to Israel. This is what the Bible says. Not to obey the Bible is to disobey the word of God. Identity Christians, you hooked nose mother fuckers, YAHWEH wants you to return to the Holy land. It is Satan who is tricking you into moving to the Pacific North West. It is the destiny of all lost Hebrews to get their bagel eating asses back to the Middle East. Oh, Children of Israel, would you stand in the way of Bible prophesy? YAHWEH calls you home to Israel. Satan calls you to Idaho. Think about your eternal souls. If you die on Pagan land will your kike souls find their way to heaven? I think not.

Lost Hebrews need to get the fuck lost!

All these "lost Hebrews" can be categorized as nothing more than freaks, fakes, and fortune hunters. In fact, most Israeli citizens regard them as alien invaders.

Rabbi Avichail and his "lost Jews" may prove to be a real time bomb when the flood gate opens and tens of thousands of gold-digging third-world mud immigrants from the Earth's slimiest shit holes swarm down on Israel like a Biblical plague of locust. Jews worry that third world converts will take advantage of the so-called family reunification provisions in the Law of Return and bring in enormous numbers of their non-Jewish mud relatives.

Of course, the mud invaders could be stopped at Israel's borders if all the true Jew Christian Nazis, Klansmen, and Aryan Nations types would open up their ears and hear Yahweh's word, return home to Zion, and defend their Hebrew homeland.

If the anti-Jewish, pro-Aryan Israelite, pro-Zion, anti-Zionist true Jew cult of Lost Hebrew Identity Christian Nazism isn't the weirdest fucking shit on Earth, I'd like to know what is. When Aryan Israelites join a pogroms, do they go home and smash the windows in their own house? Do they beat themselves up? Do they rape their own daughters? How bizarre reality becomes when one has lost his true Identity.

At Home With The Marquis de Sade by Francinedu Plessix Gray Simon & Schuster, 491 pages, $27.50

A while back, I rented a movie called the Black Prince, which was about The Marquis de Sade. I didn't know much about de Sade except that he lived in France some 200 years ago, the word Sadism was coined after him because supposedly de Sade got much pleasure from the pain of others, and I knew Marxists, feminists, and Christians all hated him. De Sade sounded like an interesting guy, so I rented the flick. The movie kicked ass. It was totally anti-Christian. My favorite part is when the Christian courts sentenced de Sade to be behead for writing the erotic book Justine; de Sade walked out, placed his head in the guillotine, and right before the blade struck, he reached up and grabbed a fucking Christ puke preacher and threw the fagot's head in the guillotine, WHACK!!! Man, I 'm so fucking glad VCRs have a re-play button. I had to read up on my new hero.

The movie had a happy ending. Besides the preacher getting beheaded, the city's law men and religious leaders were arrested for murdering a girl, and our hero de Sade rode off into the sun set with the lovely girl Justine. A perfect ending for a romantic movie.

Except when I read the book, "At Home With The Marquis de Sade" by Francinedu Plessix Gray, I found out that this gifted writer was persecuted by the Christ puke tyrants and died in an insane asylum. You know if shit like this keeps up, I am really going to start disliking Christ pukers.

The Marquis in the movie was very into sexual experimentation and S & M role playing games. The film showed him as a sexual revolutionary in a very hypocritical and sexually oppressive age. However, Gray's book is less generous to The Marquis. I haven't read any of de Sade's books, so I don't know which account is legitimate.

The profoundly insightful and controversial "anti-feminist" feminist author Camille Paglia said "...de Sade is a great writer and philosopher whose absence from university curricula illustrates the timidity and hypocrisy of the liberal humanities." Camille Paglia is one of the few feminists I like. Her book, The Sexual Persona, floored me. So, if Camille Paglia thinks de Sade is an important writer that's endorsement enough for me.

Most people think Marquis is de Sade's first name, it is not. A Marquis is a rank under Christian feudalism just above a count or earl. For the majority of Aryan history our people have lived under some form of meritocracy, some meritocracies are far superior to others; it wasn't until the capitalists and free masons started the American and French revolutions a little over 200 years ago that all this equality and justice for the scum of the earth shit really took off. Meritocracy made the White race strong and the strict caste system guard the racial health of the Folk. After a little more than 200 years of democracy our race is being over run by non-Whites, our youth are rotting their DNA with drugs, and any one in the West who is pro-West is branded a hate criminal. The baby boomer generation may very well be the last White generation the world will ever see. All the grief our people now face was caused by the creeping Christian morality of love and equality and our turning our backs on the Gods and the Pagan warrior caste system. Jesus Christ has done more to spread communism than Karl Marx. Atheistic communism is a failure. However, religious communism has enslaved the West for nearly 2,000 years. The greatest threat the White race faces is the fact that religious communism, or better known as the cult of the fagot on a stick, is rotting the souls of the Aryan people. The cancer of religious communism, this powerful mixture of spirituality and politics, is so seductive that it even contaminates the Aryan movement in the form known as the Lost Identity movement. The Jews created the Lost Identity so White racists would have a hard time attacking Christianity without offending our Lost "allies". Christianity makes the Folk weak with its gospel of universal love. The true Children of Zion are building the New Israel on American soil. No, shit! No, fucking shit! Christianity is creating a new tri-racial American people. The New Americans will be the same racial make up as the Jews of the Bible: part Aryan, part African, and part Asian. How else could the Hebrews build the New Israel without turning America into a tri-racial melting pot as our free mason forefathers so long ago planned.

One reason the Left hate The Marquis is that he was born of a noble family. Liberals often use de Sade as an example of the "depravity" of a system based on nobility, duty, and honor rather than a Marxist/Christian system that is based on equality between stupid, lazy, good for nothing bums and those great people who work and sacrifice for the good of society. The Marquis is used as a symbol of how out of control the elite White man can get. When the liberals teach us about the naughty Marquis de Sade, it is a lesson in the need for universal equality and brotherhood for all of God's creatures.

Europe's system of elite rule, noble blood lines, and warrior aristocracy set the stage for White racism and the anti-Christ.

Donatien de Sade... The Marquis was born into French nobility in 1740 and died 1814.

The movie portrayed The Marquis as a corrupt looking man with raven black hair and dark, evil eyes, however, in real life, he was said to be very handsome with wavy blond hair, sky blue eyes, and text book Nordic facial features.

It is very interesting the parallels between how both Adolf Hitler's and de Sade's enemies describe their childhood. His opponents claim de Sade became the "violent, sexually depraved, ego driven monster" they paint him as because he was raised by an lonely aunt who spoiled him rotten and could never say no to him. This is the same thing they say about Hitler. Even though Hitler had several siblings, the anti-Hitler mob usually say that Adolf Hitler was created because he was the only child, spoiled by a lonely mother. The movie The Boys From Brazil used this false "fact" as a central point of the movie. The movie's plot went like this: the Hitler clones must be raised in a single child home in order to spoil the child enough to be a great Nazi leader. I read one anti-Hitler book that repeated the "spoiled, single child" lie in the first chapters of the book and in the middle of the book the author repeated an equally popular big lie that Hitler had a love affair with his biological niece. If Hitler was an only child where did his biological niece come from? Most of you have seen the photo of Hitler sitting next to his niece on a lawn. I guess that photo kind of topples the Boys From Brazil syndrome, right? Most Hitler haters use this photo as "proof" of incest. An uncle sitting next to his niece must mean incest. What else could it mean? The liberal logic goes: if Hitler wouldn't have been an only child, then he would never have fallen in love with his sibling's kid. What twisted reasoning! This is the logic of liberalism.

In truth, one of Hitler's siblings, a brother, owned a bar that was used as a meeting hall for National Socialists in the 1920s and became a very fashionable tourist hang out in the 1930s. Hitler's brother was famous for doing tricks while serving drinks like catching glasses behind his back. He was kind of the Billy Carter of the Third Reich, a good old boy who became affluent and prestigious off his brother's ability and name. Intellectuals don't care about the facts, especially when the facts get in the way of their attacks on White males.

Miss Gray ascribes The Marquis' sexual hunger to his uncaring mother, his elitism, "and his education by Jesuits, because of their emphasis on corporal punishment, their reputation for sodomy (in laymen's terms Gray is saying Catholic priests tend to butt fuck little boys), and their tradition of staging lavish theatrical productions."

De Sade's uncle was a Catholic priest, who, unlike the rest of his ilk, liked women, and he took the young Marquis to the finest cat houses in Paris. De Sade got into sexual experimenting. From his tom cat days, de Sade wrote the book "The 120 Days of Sodom", a scientific work which explores every orifice on the female body.

De Sade had a reputation for using Christian religious objects as props in love making. He once had a prostitute dress up in a nun's habit, and he took a Christian cross and sodomized the "Mother Superior". Talk about symbolism! Shoving the holy emblem of Christianity up a nun's ass. It makes you wonder what the Jesuits did to him in boarding school. Perhaps if the Christian priests hadn't sexually abused The Marquis as a little boy, he would not have become the "libertine Christ hater" in adulthood. It never occurred to me that the Marquis de Sade might have been a victim of Christian Sexual Abuse as Miss Gray implies.

As a historical reference, The Marquis' sexual adventures were on the twilight of the Great Witch Trials and the Inquisition. During the Witch Trials of the 1600s over 120,000 "witches" were tortured to death in Germany alone. The majority of the people Christianity tortured to death were Aryan women. The people who were doing the torture were male members of the Catholic priesthood. These men worshipped an asexual Jew God named YAHWEH who had a Jew son who was also asexual. In the first story of the Jewish Bible, the book of creation, the foundation of hatred for women is set. The story goes: on the sixth day the Jew god created man in his own image and put him in the Garden of Eden. Eden was paradise. Just YAHWEH and his boyfriend Adam. There was no sin, no hate, no knowledge, no pussy. Male celibacy. Asexuality. Perhaps homosexuality. No women around is the Bible's ideal utopia. Who would write such anti-heterosexual bullshit? Celibate male monks that's who. And the Bible goes on to tell how Adam got bored with being Yahweh's boy toy and told the Hebrew god that he wanted a playmate. Now what happens next is a major event in monotheistic myth, for this event shapes the Christian, Jewish, and Islamic view towards women. Albeit YAHWEH created man in his own image, he made woman out of one of Adam's ribs. Man is the image of God, but woman is just a part of man. An inferior to man. Now the Jew god told Adam and Eve that they could eat the fruit from the tree of life, but not the tree of knowledge. Why is YAHWEH so afraid of knowledge? Because if humanity had knowledge, they would realize monotheism is bullshit. Monotheists defend Yahweh's fear of the tree of knowledge by claiming that what YAHWEH really feared was carnal knowledge. Carnal knowledge? That means sexual intercourse. That means fucking! YAHWEH fears heterosexuality. The Bible teaches Satan appeared as a snake...a phallic symbol. Many pictures of Eve show the snake/penis working its way up Eve's leg. So Eve eats the forbidden fruit from the tree of carnal knowledge and she brings sin into the Garden and YAHWEH gets pissed. God's asshole is on fire! "You smoke cunt you fucked my boyfriend!" The Hebrew god was hysterical and kicked the two of them out of paradise. Paradise was lost because of woman. The monotheists call this original sin, and they believe man has separated himself through the act of original sin. Heterosexual fucking is the original sin in the monotheist cults. Fuck is Yahweh's enemy. Fuck is the anti-Christ. Fuck is the devil. To the monotheist, FUCK is the most evil word in the English language. God fearing people hate and fear FUCK! Kill FUCK! Eve brought FUCK into the Garden of Eden. Eve tricked Adam into FUCKING like a heathen. Celibacy is purity. Fucking is sin. Read the Bible. All through that silly Middle Eastern book evil, horny, sinful women are poisoning the purity of men with FUCK. Was it not the Whore of Babylon who turned the Jewish men away from God? Was it not Lot's daughters who got their Father drunk on wine and tricked him into fucking them? Not once, but twice! Was it not Delilah and her hot Pagan pussy who turned the righteous Samson against God. Most of the stories in the Jewish Bible show men as the virtuous servants of YAHWEH and women as the temptresses. Numerous times the Bible and Yahweh refer to all women as temptresses. Look up temptress in a large thesaurus and you get words like: greedy monster, bitch, whore, harlot, harpy, demon, ogress, devil, sphinx, monster, vampire, hag, witch, battle-ax, bag, haridan, hellcat, bat, she-dog, gorgon, snake, serpent, biddy, beldam.... This is what the asexual god of Israel thinks about women. Is it any wonder that since Christianity came to Europe, Aryan women have been treated like second rate human beings.

Is it any wonder that when the Catholic Church ordered the Inquisition and the Witch Hunts to rid Europe of Satan's temptations that women, the great temptresses, would be the main target?

One of the most popular charges the asexual Church Fathers accused women of was having sex with the devil. I have never found a case of a male "witch" being accused of having sex with Satan. I guess the priests didn't see homosexual sex with Satan as being sinful.

To a monotheist, anyone who doesn't have a twisted Middle Eastern view on human sexuality is a pervert. Christianity, Islam, and Judaism are all Semite cults that idolize the celibate male and view heterosexual FUCKING as a sin against their asexual god. Christianity has poisoned the Aryan movement with Middle Eastern fuckphobia. For the Aryan race to survive, we must purge all alien ideas from the Folk. Fuckphobia is Jewish. If you were to have told our Aryan Pagan progenitors, ANYTHING, and I mean ANYTHING a White man and a White woman did together in bed was evil, dirty, and nasty, they would have caved your skull in and rightly so!

The Great Witch Trials is an ample example of how Middle Eastern fuckphobia has hurt our Folk. One illustration of the Semitic fuckphobia cancer is the case of Greta Hoffman.

Little Greta Hoffman was a five year old Aryan girl living in Germany in the 1600s who was accused of witchcraft and having sex with the devil by the Catholic church.

Catholic priests took and tied her to a wagon wheel and spun her around and around until she got sick. The asexual priests told her to confess to being a witch and having sex with Satan. Just think how frightened, friendless, and alone little Greta must have felt surrounded by a mob of hate-filled Christian sodomites. Imagine a five old girl or boy that you know and love being in poor Greta's place, being brutalized by a cult of psychotic, asexual Christian monsters. The sexually demented Christians wanted Greta Hoffman to confess to fucking Satan. What mental disease would cause adults to fantasize that a five year old girl was fucking the devil? Christianity is the disease which turns normal people into sexually deranged monsters.

Greta was a typical little girl and had no idea what these pukes wanted her to confess to: what five year olds know anything about sex? Right before the Christians burned Greta Hoffman alive for witchcraft, the pukes took an iron poker and stuck it in a fire until it was white hot, then the Children of Israel shoved the white hot poker inside of her until she confessed to every sexual perversion the insane Christian mind could imagine. The sources don't tell which of Greta's cavities the Christians shoved the White hot poker in, but logically, it could not be her mouth, since if the priests burnt her tongue off, then our darling little Valkyrie couldn't confess to the Christian's lies. Considering the Christian priests love for Sodomizing little children, I seriously doubt that a Catholic would do anything to stretch out the tightness of a child's asshole. So you can rule out they would have harmed her butt. The Christians must of shoved the White hot poker up Greta's vagina. The female sex organ is the source of original sin. It's what got Adam kicked out of the Garden of Eden. What other place on a little girl's body would be hated more by a hysterical mob of asexual priest than her vagina with, as the Bible states, its "unclean smell of the harlot." In the New Testament, the book of Revelations tells us that the "unclean smell of the harlot" will bring on Armageddon. This is the temptress myth run full circle. Adam gets kicked out of Eden because he had KNOWN Eve, and the "smells of the harlot" causes the end of the world. Yahweh sure hates pussy!

In the refreshingly anti-Christian novel, Candide, the book opens up with a savage war between Catholics and Protestants. Voltaire tells us Candide was an alter boy who was raped by Christian warriors. Voltaire says that homosexual rapes committed by Christian warriors had nothing to do with sex, but are the product of Christian hate and bigotry. Catholic warriors raped Protestant boys, while Protestants raped Catholic boys. It was just one big fudge pack for Christ. If you haven't read Candide, do so; very good insight into Christianity during the Witch Trials and Inquisition.

Once Voltaire was asked: what could be done about the Catholic problem? Whereas Voltaire responded that we should wait until Sunday when all the Catholic churches were full, board up all the windows and doors so no one could escape, then burn all the Catholic churches to the ground. My only question is: what can we do about the Protestant problem?

With this background of the Sodomites for Christ committing 100s of 1,000s of the most cruel and torturous murders in history, how the hell did the Marquis de Sade become the poster boy for sexual depravity and cruelty? The Marquis never killed anyone. The only thing he was ever guilty of was enjoying eccentric sex games with willing prostitutes. Instead of being called Sadism, shouldn't the love of sexual cruelty be called Christism? Shit, man, it was the Christian church that got off on torturing to death little White girls, not de Sade.

De Sade served in the French army where, as Gray tells us, "mores were notoriously loose". De Sade is portrayed as the ultimate hedonist: getting drunk and banging whores. Oh, my! Imagine that. A soldier drinking booze and having sex with women. The horror! The horror! Again, how in the fuck did de Sade become the symbol of debauchery? He never fucked little White boys nor did he ever torture to death little White girls like the Christians did, so what gives? Oh, yes, the Marquis de Sade included anti-Christian "blasphemy" in his sex games, the beast!

The Marquis got in trouble the day he got married. De Sade's wife was not the problem; she was a loving and devoted wife. Or as Miss Gray so hypocritically put it: "a monster of devotion" for the "monster of immorality", what historically blind bullshit!

The nobleman de Sade got his dick in the ringer because his mother-in-law was a nosy Christian bitch. She worked over time to get her "anti-Christ" son-in-law tossed in prison. The fucking she-puke got her evil wish in 1763. The mother-in-law got De Sade arrested after he spent the night in a cat house with a hooker. The Marquis and his prostitute friend engaged in a lecherous night of flagellation, Christian inspired Sodomy and "sacriligious" acts with a "Holy Communion" host. I am not into flagellation and Sodomy really stinks, but I guess you have to, as Gray implies, chalk that stuff up to what the Jesuits did to him in boarding school. However, who can't enjoy de Sade's anti-Christian blasphemy? In Catholic France, on the tails of the Great Witch Hunt, de Sade took a Communion wafer, did the Catholic sacrament of the Last Supper, "The bread you are about to eat is the body of Christ", then he took the "body of Christ" and "fed" it up the fanny of a "Nun". Hell, I wonder what de Sade did with the bottle of wine? If Christianity wasn't so sexually oppressive, it wouldn't create people like de Sade. Ted Bundy, who claimed to have killed over 200 White women, was created by a Christian mother who smothered his sexuality. However, de Sade was no Ted Bundy. De Sade never killed nor raped anyone. A lot of falsehood has been built around de Sade. Even the scene in the movie where de Sade kills the preacher is untrue.

The only victim here would be the hooker, and she didn't mind that de Sade was putting Christian crackers up her rear, so what right did the police have to jail de Sade? What a White man and White woman elect to do behind closed doors is no one's business but their own.

De Sade was in the stockade for three weeks before his first defiant jail break. From now on The Marquis's life is the paragon of "heroic" outlawry. Repeatedly de Sade's life fell into this pattern: anti-Christian sex, arrested for blasphemy, thrown in jail, daring escape, back to the whore houses to nail a harlots in a Nuns' habits, arrested again for mocking Jesus, back in jail, escape, orgies, jail, escape, orgies....

Finally, the Christians got de Sade and locked him up for thirteen years in the Bastille. De Sade wrote his most famous novel, Justine, in prison. Whereas The 120 Days of Sodom explores the female body, Justine explores her mind. It is about, Justine, a fine, upper class Christian virgin who is kidnapped by a brute who locks her up in his basement and tortures her both physically and psychologically until she becomes his willing sex slave. Justine is basically a whacky guide on how to brain wash Christian women into becoming your sex slave. The virtuous Justine escapes her keeper only to have God strike her down with a bolt of lightning.

De Sade's writings are a lot like The Turner Diaries or the Hunter novel. They are so beyond the pale of decency, morality, and reality that they are funny as hell! The big problem with all three novels is some people see them as something more than a goofy joke and try to bring the silly fantasy novels to reality. These three nutty novels are a great way to end up in prison if you take them too seriously. Read them as the bullshit they are, and these novels are harmless fun. Read them as reality, and kiss your life good-bye! De Sade was a prolific writer. The Christians destroyed much of his work, but still much has survived.

At Home With The Marquis de Sade by Francine Plessix Gray is a very interesting book. As I said earlier, I have never read any of de Sade's writings, only what his detractors have wrote. It may be worth our while to explore the works of this much hated man.

Just promise me you're not going to lock up a virgin in your basement.

The Big One (1998)

Michael Moore of TV Nation fame produced, directed and starred in this comical documentary which follows Moore on a book signing tour for his newest book, Down Size This! Albeit this film is flawed and some times comes off as a commercial for Michael Moore: Champion of the Working Folks, Inc., the flick does have its moments. If you cut out 45 minutes of this 90 minute documentary, you could have a fairly good film about the de-industrialization of America. The film has three formats. The first revolves around Moore's book signing tour. The second shows Moore speaking to what appears to be college audiences; each of these speeches are blessed with long, tiresome applause for Moore, Working Class Hero. The third format is a camera crew who follows Moore around as he goes into corporate offices and tries to confront the CEOs on why they are moving all the well paying American jobs to Third World nations. If the movie would have cut out all of Michael Moore's ego masturbation and focused on the issue of job flight, he would of had a great movie. One of my favorite parts in the movie was when Moore went into this company's corporate office that just recently moved numerous American jobs to Mexico, and Moore gave the public relations woman a check for 80 cent in order to pay for the first hour's wage of one Mexican workers. It took this lady forever to figure out Moore was making fun of her. Moore has some good insight to the economic decay of America. He is aware that the rich Capitalists feel no loyalty to the American worker. It's only too bad this film didn't focus more on the plight of American jobs and focus less on what a great guy Michael Moore is.

PHOTOGRAPHING FAIRIES (1998)

This is the second movie this year that deals with the fairy photographing crazy around the First World War. This movie stars Toby Stephens as a professional photographer who specializes in photo touch ups. He gets married, and on his honeymoon, his wife is killed in a freak accident. He questions the meaning of life and whether or not there is an afterlife. In his line of work as a photographer, he runs into the local chapter of a Wicca like occult group who fake spiritual occurrences. He begins to debunk occult fakery, but a woman shows him a photo of her two daughters holding a fairy. At first the man thinks this too is a fake, but once in the lab, he starts wondering if it might not be for real. He journeys to the woman's house in the woods, and after eating a magic flower, sees the fairies first hand. The fairies are well done. Hell, and they are buck naked! Peter Pan would have been a better movie if Tinker Bell was nude. The photographer befriends Sir Conan Doyle, who created master detective Sherlock Holmes. Conan Doyle lost his son in the war and his wife of many years recently died. The writer was obsessed with the occult and the afterlife. The two men exchange ideas of what the fairies are. One theory is that they are the guardians to the afterlife. Not to wreck the movie for you, all I'll tell you is the fairies turn out to be guardians. Ben Kingsley is also in this movie and plays a Christian who gets killed. This was a cool scene. Of interest to Pagans, this movie supports the Pagan view of the afterlife. Monotheists teach that the afterlife is not physical, but only spiritual. In their heaven, there is no physical touching, no fucking, no eating, Yuck. You are just a formless, bodiless spirit. On the other hand, Pagans believe that the afterlife is very much like this one. You can touch other people. Eat food, drink water, pee. You can even get drunk and have sexual intercourse. Why would any one want to go to a monotheistic heaven?

The movie shows the afterlife to be a Pagan place. The photographer is united with his dead wife in the life after death, and they make love like a couple of lovely March hares. A wonderful family movie. Sex after life, what a groovy concept!

DANGEROUS BEAUTY (1998)

The enchanting Catherine McCormack stars as a 16th century Aryan woman who was forced into becoming a Venetian courtesan by the oppressive, Christian society. This is a great movie that shows the wickedness of Christianity and how this corrupt Hebrew cult has poisoned the minds of Aryans with its hatred of healthy heterosexuality. During the Renaissance, Christianity arranged it so White women could only be free if they became whores. Courtesans or prostitutes were the only women the Christians would allow to become literate. This was do to the Biblical myth of Eve in the Garden of Eden. Man was in paradise when he was asexual, ignorant, and womanless, then the woman Eve came along and introduced him to the fruit of the tree of knowledge and brought sin into the Garden. According to monotheism, women are easily corrupted by Satan and will be the down fall of mankind.

Women aren't the only creatures Yahweh hates; he, also, despises felines. Cats are the totem spirit of the Goddess Frigga. The Jewish Church had demonized the Aryan Gods. The kooky Christians put cats on trial as witches and burned them. Christianity almost made European cats extinct. Cats eat rats. Rats spread the black plague. The Christian witchcraft craze helped spread the plague because the Church killed cats.

However, all Christians are lying, demented freaks and the Church sees the truth as an anti-Christian hate crime. The Church blamed Aryan women for the black plague. The Bible teaches women bewitch men with their lust and sexuality. Women do Satan's work by spreading open their legs to damn men's souls. Yahweh hates sex! He, like all losers, hates what he can never have. The Church created the Inquisition to punish its greatest enemy, women, for spreading the plague. In DANGEROUS BEAUTY, the God fearing town's people turned on the harlots and brought them before a witch trial. DANGEROUS BEAUTY is a great way to spend an evening. Scenes of strong sexuality and nudity make this movie unfit for our sexually debased Christian Identity friends, but it is highly recommended for normal people.

ROMEO IS BLEEDING (1994)

Gary Oldman, Juliette Lewis, Annabella Sciorra, Lena Olin Gary Oldman stars as a corrupt cop who is hired by the mob to whack a foxy hit woman. The main stream movie critics I read really panned this movie. I'm a fan of Gary Oldman, so I liked the movie. The only problem I had with the flick was the actress playing the mob hit woman was hard to swallow as a killer. I've known my share of criminals, and believe me, this wench is no criminal. She belongs in Show Girls, not a mob hit movie. Other than that the movie has a lot of good twists.

A BRIGHT SHINING LIE (1998)

Adapted from Neil Sheehan's Pulitzer Prize winning book. Bill Paxton stars as the real life commander Lt. Col. John Paul Vann, who tried unsuccessfully to get the U.S. military to ally itself with the Vietnamese peasants instead of the corrupt South Vietnamese government. As Platoon showed the Vietnam war from the foot soldier's view point, this movie reveals the insanity from the leaders point of view. The South Vietnamese army is really shown as the corrupt, inane, and cowardly Third World goof balls they were. This is a good rental. Well worth a buck.

LETTERS

If you don't want your letters published, say so in each letter.

If you do want your full name and/or address published, say so in your letter.

Other wise, only the first name and state or nation (if not American) will be used to i.d. the writer.

Pagan Revival may edit your letters if they are too long, too private, or too full of gossip. Where letters are edited an eclipse (....) will be used.

Dear Mr. Kaldenberg:

...I heard about Pagan Revival from Tom Metzger. I appreciate your powerful essays in W.A.R. and hope you keep it up.

14 words! Chris, New York

Dear Wyatt Kaldenberg:

...To elaborate on myself, I have been trying to research and gather information on the old Teutonic/Germanic Pagan Aryan religions, particularly the actual rituals, fire ceremonies, and how to correctly perform them. Information on Wotan/Wuotan/Odin (sometimes spelled Othinn) is also of interest. I plan to do scholarly research on these important subjects, and I like you, I would like to see a strong return to the Aryan Teutonic religion. However, I do not advise us to return to the polytheistic religions of ancient Rome or Greece, only the polytheistic religions of the Teutons. I plan to do further scholarly reading on these subjects and I thought your magazine would provide some useful input into my quest for knowledge. I plan to write a self-published work, giving the actual descriptive and illustrative detail of a traditional BET-LAINE {May-Day} Fire Ceremony, as well as what it means and represents. I would also include Solstice fires and other noble festivals of the Teutons and giving their in-depth meaning, as well as small safety precautions for when dealing with fire.

As one of German and Austrian decent, I feel that you are on the right track when you state that the Folk should return to the original ancient religion of their ancestors. Odin/Wotan is a God who is a strong supporter of his Folk. He, and his true messages are not necessarily "racist" mind you, in the sense you mean racist. He has never espoused or spoken of starting a "race war" or some of the things, but maybe not all, that you or most of the so-called skin head movement advocate, even through other people's visions. I strongly feel that Odinist/Wotanist Pagan religion is healthy for the Folk.

Having a strong sense of pride in one's Aryan past is very healthy, especially with the revival of the religion with its ceremonies and their meaning intact.

In Pagan Revival #40, you've brought out a point about some religions and their attitudes towards sex, such as the Monotheists, etc, and even though I would have written perhaps a very similar point of view with language less vulgar, it's something I've been thinking for a long time! ...the Catholic church and Vatican establishment with its religious laws for their Priests and Nuns regarding sex and other matters is very un-healthy!

Maybe that is why so many Catholic priests become pedophiles, sexual freaks, and acquire homosexuals tendencies! You are right! Some of the established religions like the ones you spoke of in issue #40 have a lot of sexual hang ups. Hang ups about sexuality, nudity, women's bodies, and in some cases women in general. These sexual hung ups are entrenched. Their bizarre beliefs of a high level of morality is not only spiritually and psychologically unhealthy. It's un-natural! I'm not saying that decadence or extreme promiscuity is the answer, certainly not! Nor am I saying that full nudity should be excepted in every place, point, and time, like the office, the supermarket, or at school. But Europe historically has had a much more healthier and more mature attitude towards sexuality than the U.S. So I think the revival of the true Aryan Pagan religion would be very beneficial to both men and women alike. I don't believe, however, it should be a well established religion. What is your views on this?

In order to have this revival, it will require some deep understanding into each of the various festivals and rituals, and their meaning, as well as what forces of nature and cosmos they are associated with, and why we commemorate them! As a potential scholar may I, if you're not already familiar with, refer you to some very noteworthy books on the subject that one should have. The book "The Pagan Book of Days: A guide to the Festivals, Traditions, and Sacred Days of the Year" by Nigel Pennick (1992) Destiny Books (a division of Inner Traditions International) ISBN #0-89281-369-5 You might want to call their sales department at: 1-800-246-8648 or get their catalog to obtain and sell unlimited quantities of book. The Pagan Book of Days is a must! It contains all the actual dates of festivals obtained through reliable sources. It's totally Euro-centered, in that its contents are only derived from the Teuton, Celtic, Norseman, and Druid Pagan calendars of notable days, as well as some or all of the Roman and Greek days that fall through out the solar year. There is also some Kemetic or "Egyptian" days commemorated by ancient Kemetic or "Egyptian" people, but not a lot. These are the only ones non-Euro-centered. The part I've found to be most interesting was called "Runic Half-Mouths", which our forebears made note of specific designated periods each month, in which a particular corresponding quality of a particular Rune designated for that period is said through ancient Teutonic legend, to be especially active for that duration period or half month.

The 29th of June till July 13th is the Runic half-month of Feoh. The Feoh rune is the rune of money, wealth, and financial success. From my own personal perspective, I should state that the Runic half-months although maybe a Teutonic or Norse legend, but it's a legend that has a lot of validity. During the Runic half month of Feoh, I had noticed that some luck or forces of good will did come my way with money matters around this period of the solar year that period. I am not saying that if you were to play the state lottery around this period of the solar year that you'll get rich and hit the jackpot! I tried this just for argument sake and that particular time it came true. But you'll never know next time, it very well could make me rich someday. There is a lot of secret forces hidden in the cosmos that are just beginning to surface, and the Runes are a major slice in the whole pie.

Did you know Christopher Columbus arrival in the "new world" on October 12th, which was a sacred day of the ancient Roman Goddess named Fortuna Redux. She was regarded by the ancient Romans as the Goddess of successful journeys and safe returns, who was commemorated or worshipped on that same day, October 12th. How ironic! This was in the Pagan Book of Days. The book also gives charts of all the solstices and equinoxes up the year 2,000! As for the day of Samhain, (beginning on the eve or night of 31 October-Halloween through 1 November), has nothing really to do with Satan or Satanists. Satan or "Lucifer" as he's sometimes called, is a character created by the practitioners of Satanism and Christianity alike and was really originally derived from one of the Norse Gods and modified.

You should also read another book called "A History of Pagan Europe" by Prudence Jones and Nigel Pennick (1995) by ROUTLEDGE. They're on 29 West 35 Street, New York City (Hymietown), NY 10001. The ISBN# 0-415-09136-5. This and the other book is a great lead for scholars of faith, even though they don't always go into descriptive details as to how these actual rituals ceremonies are performed. It is highly recommended!

Another book which I'm presently reading is "The Secret Of The Runes" by Guido Von List, translated from the German by Stephen E. Flowers, Ph.D. (1988) also out by Destiny Books. Call 1-800-246-8648. In Von List's book, there's a section in the first chapter under the "The Occult Master" (1902-1919) paragraph where, it mentions where upon recovering from an eye operation in 1902, bandaged and in a virtual state of blindness and utter darkness, Von List is said to have envisioned the hidden meanings of the Runes. This reminds me of Odin. As for my own theories about this, perhaps the Gods or one of the Gods. Odin/Wotan himself might of helped give Von List the vision or insight as to their true hidden meaning. Von List's various works and beliefs have had a somewhat influence on Germany as far back as 1908, even among some Germans prior to and during World War One and Two.

I believe the Guido Von List Society still might exist in Germany this very day as it once did before 1919. They were even allowed to exist through out the Third Reich years. There is another work by Von List called: "DIE RELIGION DER ARIO-GERMANEN IN IHRER ESOTERIK UND EXOTERIK" Leipzig Burdeke (1910) Eng. Transl. "The Religion of The Aryo-Germanic Peoples in Its Esoteric and Exoteric Aspects". This work details the Armanic theories of Astrological lore, theology and numerology. There are also other books by Von List that one might want to have and look into in order to put the pieces together. I intend to seek out and locate these and other English translations of Von List's work, or to have them translated from the original German by someone or some company in the translation business, who is much more thorough and fluently versed in their German than I. I must find out if the Guido Von List Society still exist....

Best regards, May Odin be with us all! For The Folk, I am, Timothy Drechsel, Queens, New York

Brother Tim:

I'm a Pan-Aryan Odinic Pagan. By this I mean my main belief is Odinism, and I worship the Norse Gods. I believe since the Vikings were way up North, far, far away from non-Aryans and their cultural influences that the Northern religion is the purest form of the Aryan Ideal. Other Aryan Pagan religions are tarnished by alien contact. However, this doesn't mean that all other Aryan Pagan religions are bad. Through religious comparison between different Aryan faiths, you can find the common religious truths of our Aryan Folk. Also, many things in Odinism were lost, misinterpreted, and destroyed by the Christian Occupational Government (C.O.G.). By studying say the Romans and Greeks, or Zoroastrianism and Vedic Hinduism, you can find common truths to fill in the gaps the Christians created in Asatru. I believe the New Odinism must study all Aryan and, to a much lesser degree, non-Aryan Pagan religions in order to create the New Religion. There is much to be learned from Mithraism, Druidism, Satanism, and even Hitlerism as a religious force, albeit I am an Odinist first. Even Egyptian Paganism had Aryan ties. The First Kingdom of Egypt had many founding fathers who were Aryans, and Aryan Sumerian and Aryan Mesopotamian Paganism acutely influenced Egypt from early times on, and, also, the Third Kingdom from at least the time of Alexander the Great, and up to until the Aryan Romans took over, was ruled by Aryan Greeks. So Egypt is worth some study.

There are many, many, many Odinic and Asatru rituals floating around. Ed Finch's book The Rites of Odin is full to the brim with Nordic rites. I don't care much for magic and rituals, so I didn't like the book all that much, but you would most likely enjoy it very much. Finch is the one who wrote the Wiccan ritual Bible in the '60s or '70s. I think it is called the Pagan Books of Rites or maybe Rituals. Many Wiccans call this book the Book of Shadows, which the T.V. show Charmed is always talking about. Sometimes Buffy The Vampire Slayer alludes to Finch's book. Finch is the king of rituals, and some years back he converted from Wicca to Odinism. There are a lot of Odinic rituals on the Internet. The Asatru Folk Assembly publish a lot of Odinic rites, as does the Asatru Alliance. The Ring of Troth has mail order courses in Asatru rites. There are many Norse pagan groups and most have tons and tons of rituals already written. Keep in mind that none of these people or groups are racial and will freak out if you use the word White.

Wicca and most modern pagans celebrates the "eight" fire fests, but the eight fests are a modern idea. Albeit, being modern doesn't automatically make it bad. Most Germanic tribes, generally, made major holidays out of the two Solstices and the two Equinoxes, but viewed the so called cross road fires fests as minor holy days. Most Celts had just the opposite view. Yule and Summer Solstice, generally, were the two biggest Germanic holy days. May Day and Samhain were the two big Celtic days. The Germanic peoples celebrated Walberg Night on April 30th. Freyja, Frey, and the Vanir were little known in Southern German, so Frig, Fricka, or Frau Wotan was the leader of the Valkyries or Walkyries and she took the fallen to her husband, Wotan. Walberg means mountain of the slain. On Walberg Night, Frau Wotan collected all the souls and took them to Walhalla. So Walberg Night was to the Southern Germans as what Samhain was to the Celts. It is of some interest to know that Hitler and crew died on Walberg Night.. April 30th, 1945.

Some Nordic tribes had a minor holy day on May 1st. They had a ritual of Odin and Frigga getting married. They were the May King and May Queen. Thor was the God who married, or more correctly, re-married Odin and Frigga. This was a welcoming of summer ritual. Except it was not a very wide spread holy day among the Norse. Pennick wrote some on this.

If I remember right, Green Egg magazine, P.O. Box 488, Laytonville, CA 95454-0488, about two years ago, had a great piece on Beltaine/May Day. It said that on the old Celtic Pagan calendar May Day/Beltaine did not fall on May 1st, but was determined by the arrival in the Northern skies of the Bel star, what the Romans called the Mae star. The Bel star arrived usually on April 20th. The Celts didn't believe in Mae, but the God Bel and they saw the arrival of the Bel Star as the birthday of the Great Warrior King. King Bel was believed to conquer the darkness of winter and bring on the New Summer. So April 20th, sometimes the 19th, was thought of by some Celts as the first day of summer, the birthday of the Savior King. It is of interest that Hitler came in with the Bel star and went out with the Valkyries.

If you are into Runic time, check out Nigel Pennick's books Practical Magic in the Northern Tradition and Runic Astrology from Aquarian Press, Thorsons Publishing group, Wellingborough, Northhamptonshire, NN8 2RQ. These are great books. There is so much in these two books that can't be found any where else. He has Runic day and month dials. Not only are there 24 Runic half months, but each half hour in the day has its own Runes. He also gives Runic year cycles. He has a drawing of an altar to Thor from 17th century Finland. There is so much in these books that each page is a treasure.

I have A History of Pagan Europe, but I've only had time to read the first few chapters. It talks a little bit about Odinism in America in the 1920s and '30s. This is a subject not explored much. I would be thankful if you could write a review of A History of Pagan Europe for Pagan Revival.

On sex and Aryanism. A good sex life is important to good mental health. People who fear and loathe sex are the true perverts. There is nothing wrong with Aryan heterosexual erotica. It is odd how many in the race movement believe that Jewish hatred for sex is an Aryan quality. People portray our ancient ancestors as if they believed in a Victorian morality. Pre-Christian Europe was a very sexually free place in many ways. Tribal marriages were common place. Group sex was common. Pagan orgies were a religious sacrament in fertility sects. There was one Viking who had 20,000 wives. However, since tribal marriages were common each of his wives may very well have had 20,000 husbands. I mean everyone in a tribe some times were married to everyone else. Albeit Frigga was Odin's number one wife, he had nine primary wives and countless minor wives. Frigga had other husbands than Odin. Adultery was frowned on, but that usually meant one could not have sex outside the clan or the tribe or his or her social caste. Adultery in the Pagan world didn't mean the same thing it did in the Jewish/Christian world. The Aryan view of sex is not what most people think it is. The White fear and hate of sex comes from the Bible.

I don't know what you mean by racism, but I want my people to live. If this is racist, great. Non-Whites don't care about the Aryan race. I don't care about non-Whites. They can all live happily ever after on their own land, and that would suit me fine. I'm not on a crusade to wipe them off the face of the Earth, but if I have to pick between them or the White race. I'll pick my own people over any one else. Why shouldn't I? Non-Aryans are like rattle snakes. If Aryans find rattle snakes on our homeland, we should get rid of them in order to protect our loved ones, but I don't think we should go out of our way to hunt them down. Even rattle snakes have a place. Non-Aryans have a place on Earth; their place is outside the Aryan homeland. Of course, when I talk of non-Aryans, Christians are Semitic enemy number one.

On the will of the Gods. The ancients knew what the Gods wanted because the Gods spoke to them through dreams. One of the main jobs of the Odinic priests and priestesses was to interpret dreams. The Pagan priesthood kept records of dreams. They determined which dreams were just dreams and which dreams were communications from the Gods. High Priests, Kings, and people who were valuable to the Folk had their dreams examined more closely than less important people, although occasionally Thralls had their dreams examined. Blind people and children, not infrequently, had their dreams interpreted. The Eddas and the Sagas were written by Christians 100s of years after Odinism was outlawed. Christians had burned all the Pagan books, and the writers of the Eddas and Sagas only had gossip and beer hall songs to base their writings on. Without the help of books, the History Channel, or schools, could you write an accurate account of what people 100s of years ago thought? I think not. But this is what we are to believe the people who wrote the Eddas and Sagas did. There is a very good chance that our Pagan ancestors could not recognize a single story from the Eddas. For instance, no pre-Christian references exist for the God Balder. No towns were named after him. I know no runic writings mentioning him as a God, no weapons inscribed with his name, nor are there any funeral stones calling for his protection. Why? Even minor Goddesses like Zisa had towns named after her. All the Gods are mentioned on funeral stones except Loki and Balder. I understand why Loki isn't mentioned, for he was considered a bad God. But, if Balder was a major God, why was he never mentioned as a God until 300 years after Odinism was banned? I believe it was Bebe who talked about Balder as a human warrior, but he was not thought of as a God. How correct are the Christian Eddas? Should we base the New Odinism on a Christian book? If the Gods spoke to the Folk directly in the old days, why would they not speak to us today. The Gods have spoken to people in modern times. As you mentioned, Wotan spoke to Von List. Many people believe Wotan inspired Hitler with the vision of a Folk revival. I believe the Gods talk to all uncontaminated Aryans regularly through our dreams, but we all ignore their messages or misinterpret them as just meaningless apparitions. We need to develop a priesthood, and one of the main duties of the new clergy would be to study Jung, Aryan myth, and other works that can aid in dream interpretation. This will help us to determine which dreams are just dreams, which dreams are merely falsehoods from Loki, Hel-hound, Allah, Jesus, Yahweh, and other demons, and which dreams are messages from the living Aryan Gods.

Odin has talked to many people recently. Odin told a rock star in Scandinavian to have his fans burn down Christian churches. There was an Icelandic prophet woman who said the God Thor will kill the demon Jesus Christ by crushing his skull in with his hammer and drive the alien cult back into the serpent's belly. Until Thor's Hammer crushes the demon's skull, Wyatt 14/88

Dear Wyatt:

Thank for the Pagan Revival. Good stuff. The impossibilities of Xianity are sure being exposed in the alternative press. There are several other Pagans here who will enjoy your publication, so I'll pass it around. 14/88 David Lane

Dear Mr. Kaldenberg:

I loved your magazine. Christianity is a disease rotting the soul of the White race. The forced conversion of our people to this evil, middle eastern cult has scarred our history and our racial sub-consciousness. You are right! How can we survive as a people when we have sold our soul to a foreign creed? Clark

Brother Clark:

The sooner we drive Christianity from our land; the sooner the wounds of the White race will heal. Christianity is a virus that causes gangrene of the Aryan soul... Wyatt

I would like to thank you for the issue that you sent. I must say I

BOOKS FOR SALE

Make checks out to Wyatt Kaldenberg. All the books reviewed below I pay the sales taxes and shipping.

Some of these books I have only one or two copies, so when ordering books always include possible substitutes. Most of these books are mainstream books, and not all the ideas expressed within them are White, but I feel if you use your mind for something other than pickling it with booze, then you can find a lot of useful info to help build a Pagan Revival.

FAMILY

The family is the cornerstone of the New Paganism.

TAKING CHARGE OF YOUR FERTILITY: The Definitive Guide to Natural Birth Control and Pregnancy Achievement by Toni Weschler, MPH Harper Perennial, 383 pages, Large soft cover, $22.00 Taking Charge of Your Fertility is a revolutionary book. Stop taking birth control pills! Birth control pills work only 94% of the time, which means they don't fucking work at all 6% of the time! They cause cancer. They cause birth defects. They increase your chance of having heart problems. They can make you sterile! They make pigs rich. They are made from male hormones and can grow facial hair on some woman. Fuck the pill! Taking Charge will teach the Fertility Awareness Method, which is a proven 100% effective method of birth control without using harmful chemicals or devices. It teaches you when you are at your fertility peak, for those wishing to have a baby, and how to increase the odds of choosing your baby's sex. Taking Charge has 8 pages of color graphics and is crammed full of charts and helpful examples. Powerful info the pill pushing doctors don't want you to know. It's sad how many White woman don't know what is happening within their bodies. I've seen three other books on the Fertility Awareness Method and this book is by far one of the best.

THE PREGNANCY BOOK FOR TODAY'S WOMAN by Howard I Shapiro, M.D., Harper Perennial, $17.00, Large soft cover, 530 pages. The Pregnancy Book is a gigantic book packed full of everything you could ever want to know about pregnancy. The author is one of the nation's leading obstetricians and the senior attending physician at Norwalk Hospital. This book gives answers to nearly every question you could ask about your pregnancy. Will interest in sex decline? Is there a safe way to control nausea. What is ultrasound? Amniocentesis? CVS? PUBS? Fetoscopy? Laparoscopy? Are there risks to you and your baby? How much weight gain is normal? Will breast feeding increase your babies I.Q.? (Yes!) Do birth control pills increase the chance of birth defects and mental retardation? (Yes!) The Pregnancy Book is 530 pages of info that can help make more healthy Aryan babies.

MARRIAGE AND THE FAMILY, Harper Collins College Outline, Author Norman Goodman Large soft cover, 344 pages $12.00 The Aryan family is the foundation of Odinism. Let's face it the so called race movement talks about family, but White families, even in the race movement are falling apart. Marriage And The Family is a great book for Aryan families, Kindred leader, and those training for the priesthood. The book is a well written college text which deals with a wide range of subject such as work and the family, divorce, re-marriage, raising children, dating, family violence, economic crisis, intimacy, and it even touches on polygamy and group marriage.

RESISTANCE and SELF-DEFENSE

DEFEND YOURSELF! Every Woman's Guide to Safe Guarding Her Life by Matt Thomas, Denise Loveday and Larry Strauss, Medium soft cover, $8.00, Avon Books 221 pages Odnic woman; don't be a victim! Defend Yourself! is a must for women living in the declining West. The book claims that women who stop rapes: have the drive to survive, know formal fighting skills, know how to street fight, exploit the surprise attack of a fighting woman's advantage, and exploit a male attacker's vulnerabilities. Defend Yourself! tells how to spot a rapist and when to be on your guard. It's full of photos to help explain moves and even gives you a warm up exercise. First line of defense is a good fighting stance. It has some good winning combinations. There are chapters on how to escape, fighting an armed assailant, fighting multiple assailants, what is legal, and how to believe in your self. It shocks me how many women in the movement don't know how to defend themselves against rapists. Defend Yourself! May save your life.

PAVN People's Army of Vietnam, Medium Soft Cover, 384 pages Da Capo Press $14.95 PAVN is a great book on how the Communist underground defeated the French, then the United States in Vietnam. A worthy history of the struggle and important details on the organization and administration of one of the most successful terrorist underground movements in history. The book deals with leadership, ideology, and how a people's liberation army can defeat the United States. Critical reading for any one serious about fighting evil.

PSYCHOLOGY and MYTH

FLYING SAUCERS by C.G. Jung, Hard Cover 150 pages Fine Communications $12.00 FLYING SAUCERS is a very interesting read by the master himself. Jung's concerned with the UFO's psychic aspect. Jung takes a look at history and finds that people always have had mass hallucinations at times of extreme adversity. People who believe in little green men may not like this book, for Jung believes that UFOs have to do more with people fears of the decline of the West than with life in outer space. Could it be that in this age of P.C. police and the fear of sounding too racist, when people talk about being invaded by aliens, it is really their natural disapproval of non-White aliens invading the West, manifesting itself in the only way possible? "Help! Help! Aliens have taken over our government, our schools, our newspapers, and no one will believe me!" Tell me about, brother! The problem is the aliens aren't from outer space, but from the Third World.

THE HANDBOOK OF FOLKLORE by Charlotte Sophia Burne, Medium soft cover, $15.00 Senate, 364 pages Folklore is a notable collect of traditional folk beliefs, ancient religious practices, stories, folk sayings, and customs the world over, but with special attention being paid to Aryan folklore. Folklore is crammed full of info about folk lore, social and political institutions in a folk culture, rites of the passage, calendar festivals, and a lot more. I only have two copies.

HEROINES by Norma Lorre Goodrich Medium sized soft cover $12.00 Harper Perennial 282 pages Heroines is written by the distinguished Arthurian scholar, Goodrich, who has put together a superior collect of heroic women. Many of these women are Aryan Pagans and all but a few fit within our Aryan world view. Heroines deals with legendary good women, lovers and women who loved demons, the White Goddess, Heroines and paganism, Viking Heroines of Iceland and Norway, the women warriors of the Amazons, and a great piece on Joan of Arc, which states one of the charges against her is she danced in a pagan ritual around a May pole on May day. Remember, the Bible outlaws dancing. In much of the Christian middle ages women and men were flogged and even burnt alive for dancing. Dance is a pagan thing. Heroines is a celebration of women and shows clearly that with the death of monotheism; the West will see a return to the pagan Golden Age of strong Aryan women.

THE HERO WITHIN: Six Archetypes We Live By, by Carol S. Pearson, Medium soft cover, $13.00, Harper Collins, 205 pages. The Hero Within expands on the theories anthropologist Joseph Campbell expresses in his classic THE HERO WITH A THOUSAND FACES. Pearson is a liberal, but her book can be turned upside down and used by racial pagans. Pearson uses six archetypes: Innocent, Orphan, Wanderer, Warrior, Martyr, and Magician. A lot of good insight on Aryan myths and literature. Although her world view is fucked up, and some of her heroes suck, her theories are of use.

KING, WARRIOR, MAGICIAN, LOVER; Recovering the Archetypes of the Mature Masculine by Robert Moore and Douglas Gillette, Large soft cover, $12.00, Harper San Francisco, 160 pages
K.W.M.L. is a popular introduction to the neo-Jungian idea of masculinity. The book has some great ideas about manhood. Deals with both pagan and Christian views of the male. The book is divided in two parts: From Boy Psychology to Man Psychology, and Decoding the Male Psyche, the Four Archetypes of the Mature Masculine. A New Agebook, but some good stuff for people who are smart enough to cut through the liberal bullshit.

THE CODE OF THE WARRIOR by Rick Fields, $16.00, Large soft cover, Harper Perennial, 338 pages
Fields' book deals with the warrior cultures and codes of the samurai of Japan, the American Indians, and the medieval knights of Europe. The warrior code is a whole school of thought on the nature of aggression, competition, struggle, and self-control. This is an important book for the Aryan movement. A warrior has self-control and too many skin heads are not Aryan warriors, but merely out of control drunken White thugs. The gangster rap culture has more influence on the "White power" skin head movement than any Aryan warrior code. Most skins have turned into such fucking gangsters that you can't have a White power show without a rapper style gang fight breaking out. This book deals with warriors before war and how warrior brotherhoods began, Warrior-Kings of Aryan Sumer, Indo-Europeans and the warrior dilemma, a great piece on Aryans and India, the Taoist solution on war, martial arts, Knights and chivalry, Samurai and Bushido, Sioux warriors, the lone warrior, and even a chapter on women warriors. The last chapter is about the warrior code and the business world. A great idea.

HEALTH

HOME REMEDIES HEALTH HANDBOOK by the Editors of Consumer Guide, Standard soft cover, Consumer Guide Press, 640 pages
This book is not an untested collection of "miracle" cures. The Consumer Guides people have tested nearly 100 home remedies for common illnesses and gives us the ones that really work. This is an alternative medical handbook that isn't written by a bunch of New Age kooks. A great book that can save you a trip to the doctor's office.

FAMILY HEALTH AND MEDICAL GUIDE by the Editors of Consumer Guide, Standard soft cover, Consumer Guide Press, 608 pages
Another great book from the people at Consumer Guide magazine. This book teaches you how to prevent such diseases as cancer, AIDS, infertility, etc. and what are the symptoms and treatments of 100s of common ailments. A good handbook for the Aryan family.

BUSINESS

The only way to beat the capitalist system is to become a capitalist. Being a wage slave and making some other bastard rich is not revolutionary; it is just stupid. The Jews are smart to link their religion to their livelihood. Christians become doctors, teachers, lawyers, while Jews become Jewish doctors, Jewish teachers, and Jewish lawyers. To a Christian, work is just a way to earn money and put bread on the table. To a Jew, work is a way to advance their world view. I admire that about the Jews. Most Jews see life as a means to change the world. Jews are a hard working people, and this is why they are so powerful. The secret to the Jewish conspiracy is they push their people to success.

If the Jews just got drunk and bitched about how hopeless the world is, like most people in the White Power movement do, then they would be losers too. The Christians don't incorporate their religion into their daily lives. Most Christians restrict their Christianity to Sunday Mornings, while the Jews are Jewish 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They have turned their religion into a Folkish mission. If the New Paganism is to regain control of our homeland, we must create an economic foundation for the Folk. We must make Paganism our racial mission. There can be no difference between our life and our religion.

COMPLETE GUIDE TO U.S. CIVIL SERVICE JOBS by Hy Hammer, Prentice Hall/ARCO Books, Large soft cover, 217 pages, $10

We need people inside of the Iron Heel. One Trojan horse inside the walls is more powerful than ten catapult randomly slinging missiles from a distance.

For over 50 years, ARCO has helped millions of people get Federal jobs. Why pay 100s of bucks taking the ARCO course when you can just buy the text book. This guide teaches you how to get Federal jobs at home and abroad. How to get hired in civil service jobs like computer programming, clerical, Law Enforcement, Fire Fighting, Health Care, Accounting, Budgeting, Fiscal management, Postal work, and much more. There are two full sample tests to give you an idea of what areas you're weak in. This guide has the addresses you need to get the job of your dreams.

LAWYER PROOF YOUR LIFE: A Do It Yourself Guide To Avoiding Lawsuits by Robert Bauman, Esq., Shot Tower Books, Large soft cover, 227 pages, $18.95

The enemy of the Folk has discovered the lawsuit. Let's face it. Democracy is bullshit. Democracy only works for the people in power. When we get sued, we lose. It doesn't mean shit to be innocent. Democracy only gives justice to the evil. Outside of bombing a court house or gunning down a judge, we will never get justice inside a court house. This book teaches you how to protect your home, land, and income. You can lose a multi-million dollar law suit, and if you plan ahead, the enemy will get little to nothing. If you plan to be a White activist, assume that some day you'll lose a civil suit. Any Aryan racist who does not build well thought out shelters, belongs in the poor house.

LEADERS: The Strategies For Taking Charge by Warren Bennis & Burt Nanus, Harper Perennial, Medium soft cover, 244 pages, $13
The greatest obstacle to White survival is this joke we call the race movement. If talking shit, getting drunk, fighting with your own tribe, and going to prison for stupid crimes made you powerful, then East L. A. would be the center of international affairs. We can't save the White race from extinction if we can't get control of our own lives. LEADERS is a great book which teaches you how to lead the masses by first learning how to manage your own life. LEADERS is one of the best selling business management books in print. Acting like drunken thugs has not advanced our struggle, perhaps if we acted more like the people who run the world we could help our Folk.

HOW TO OPEN A FRANCHISE BUSINESS by Mike Powers, Avon Books, Medium soft Cover, 278 pages, $12. 50

The Muslims and the Hindus are both building a religious foundation in America by buying quickie mart franchises. Money is power. Whites get drunk and tell jokes about the wogs at the local 7-11, but in 10 or 20 years it won't be so funny when these people control our economy. If Whites don't grab up America's wealth, other people will. The New Paganism needs financing and franchising is a great opportunity for the right people. This book teaches you which franchises are ideal for you and how to secure the best deal from the parent company. This book has lots of addresses and phone numbers which help you investigate companies. It even teaches you how to get financing for your new business and how to protect your business legally. It is easier to start your first business with a powerful organization behind you. The great thing about corporate franchisers is they profit from your success, and many franchisers "mother" people who buy their franchises. If the Jews stayed wage slaves and did not form a Jewish business community, then their religion would never have survived in a Christian world. Help build Pan-Aryan Paganism by making yourself rich. Being poor means being weak. And the weak are doomed. A rich Aryan is a powerful Aryan.

STARTING AND OPERATING A HOME BASED BUSINESS by

David R. Eyler, John Wiley & Sons, Inc., 241 pages, $17

Are you tired of traffic jams? Auto bills? Slaving to make some one else rich? Do you spend way too much time at work and not enough time with your family. If, yes, then maybe a home based business is for you. Home businesses are ideal for women with small children. This is a nut and bolts book which details many areas. It shows you how to set up a home office. How to prepare for business taxes. It teaches direct mail and telemarketing techniques.

THE CLERGY

SEXUAL ASSAULT AND ABUSE: A Handbook For Clergy And Religious Professionals by Mary D. Pellauer, Barbara Chester, and Jane Boyajian, Harper San Francisco, Medium, Soft Cover, 281 pages, $17

This book was written by three Christ puke cunts, and there is a lot of evil Jesus puke bullshit here. Believe it or not, the filthy fucking Christian cocksuckers can't even write about sexual abuse without including an attack on the White race. If you over look the typical anti-White lies of this evil alien cult, then there is much that can be useful in aiding the construction of an Odinic clergy. The New Paganism must learn to solve the problems of our Folk, or else, the aliens will remain our teachers, culture creators, trend setters, and leaders. If we don't help Whites who are victims of monotheistic sex problems, then they will be sucked into the alien camp by default. Christians, the people who caused all the White race's sex problems, giving advice on sexual abuse is sick and wrong. The filthy fucking Christians know no shame. This book is good for women and men who are interested in forming an Aryan clergy that can fight Christian Ritual Child Abuse. This is a book that should only be bought by people who are smart enough to pull the pearls out of the Christian bullshit.

Women

Wicca and Goddess worship are the newest fads among feminists who reject a male dominate world. Books like Riane Eisler's CHALICE AND THE BLADE, Marija Gimbutas's THE CIVILIZATION OF THE GODDESS, and Carol P. Christ's REBIRTH OF THE GODDESS have set the ground of a new theology (Thea = Goddess + logy = logic). The Wiccan Feminists rightfully condemn monotheism for casting out and demonizing women. By studying the Wiccan Feminists, we can make Asatru more women friendly. We will never get large numbers of women to join the Aryan movement if we remain a HE MAN WOMEN HATERS CLUB. We can recruit women to the New Paganism by pointing out that there is no breathing room for females within the Male Only cults of monotheism. However, the Goddess Revival is the other side of the sexist coin to monotheism. Feminist Goddess worship is as unfriendly to men as monotheism is to women. The New Aryan Paganism must celebrate both male and female spirituality in order to heal the wounds between Aryan man and Aryan woman that monotheism and feminism have created. Just as most monotheists tend to be homosexuals who don't like women, most feminists are lesbians who hate men.

The Wiccan Feminists go against the mountain of evidence from archaeology, anthropology, and environmental history when they claim that before the year 1,000 B.C.E. people lived in a communistic utopia run by strong women and obedient men. As Carol Christ put it: "...the peaceful and egalitarian matrifocal societies of the Neolithic period came to an end as agriculture began to be transformed through the invention of technologies such as the iron plow and centrally organized irrigation techniques, that allowed some individuals to control large plots of land that were worked by others."

The evidence shows that mankind was never a peaceful, egalitarian, nor matrifocal society. The Neolithic folks were as blood thirsty, war loving, and greedy as we are. And men, judging from grave sites, held a high position in Neolithic society.

Albeit, a lot in the Wiccan Feminist writings is pure bullshit, many of these book contain solid attacks of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam.

THE SKEPTICAL FEMINIST: Discovering The Virgin, Mother, and Crone by Barbara Walker, Harper Collins, Medium Soft Cover, 280 pages, $13 Walker's belief is that 3,000 years ago, (it is worth noting that there are two schools as to the age of Judaism: most Jews claim their religion is 5,000 years old while most historians, archaeologists, and anthropologists claim Judaism less than 3,000 years old), the followers of a patriarchal sky cult (the Jews) began to de-humanize, derogate, and demonize Goddess worship in order to devalue women and promote masculine supremacy in the form of monotheism. The totally male oriented Middle Eastern cults of Judaism, Christianity and Islam used lies, bribes, and military force to crush paganism, seize power over the West, and drive a wedge between Aryan man and Aryan woman. The folly of the Wiccan Feminists, and Feminists in general, is they view the anti-women hate crimes of monotheism as the creation of the White male and "his" culture, and White women must join the Third World assault against Aryan men. The reality is that in pre-Christian Europe women were valued and they made up half of the Gods of our people. The attack on women didn't begin in the White world until Jewish cultural imperialism forced the genocidal cult of Christ on our people. Monotheism is Jewish men attempting to enslave Jewish women, and Feminism is Jewish women attempting to blame Aryan manhood for the crimes of Jewish men. Monotheism and Feminism are two sides to the same Middle Eastern coin. The New Paganism must bridge the gap between Aryan men and women that the alien inspired sex war created. The White racist movement will never be strong until we purge alien ideas from our collective soul.

THE MOON AND THE VIRGIN: Reflections on the Archetypal Feminine by Nor Hall, Harper Perennial, Medium Soft cover, 284 pages $12 Hall sees women as having four archetypes: the Mother, the Maid, the Amazon, and the Seer. Hall explores pagan images of women. A lot of good stuff we can use to recruit Aryan women to the New Paganism, but, as with most main stream books, you have to weed through some crap to get to the gold.

WITCHCRAZE: A New History of the European Witch Hunts and the Legacy of Violence Against Women by Anne Llewellynn Bartow, Harper Collins, Medium Soft Cover, 256 pages, $13

Bartow shows that sexual violence and abuse against women are rooted in monotheism. She argues that violence against women began during the Christian witch trails where the majority of victims were women. Bartow calls the burning of Aryan women a sacrifice to the Christian god. Bartow's book describes in shocking detail the sexual torture Aryan women suffered under the iron heel of Jewish Christianity. There are many examples of how the alien cult violated our women. Barthow's big faults are, (like most Left wingers), that she rips Christianity apart while forgetting to condemn the equally evil Judaism and Islam. Also, she repeats the Left wing lie that Aryanism is to blame for the crimes of the Middle Eastern cults. The White race is a victim of the alien invaders and their Semitic cults. To blame the White race for the Christian tradition is like blaming a woman for being raped. In Germany alone, 20,000 Aryan women were tortured to death by Christians each year for nearly two hundred years. Keep in mind this isn't counting the number of our women murdered by Christians in other Aryan countries. 2,000 years ago, over 50% of the Earth population was White. Today, we are less than 8% and dropping like a rock. During the Pagan Golden Age, the White race controlled most of the world. The Aryan homeland once reached into China, Northern Africa, India, and beyond. After 2,000 years of the cult of the dead Jew, not one nation calls itself pro-White. Even Christian Iceland prides itself in being multi-racial. The White race no longer has a homeland, but we got Christian churches up the fucking ass.

"Contempt of sexuality is a crime against life." —

Friedrich Nietzsche

SECRETS OF BETTER SEX by J.D Block, PH.D., Parker, Hard Cover, 285 pages, $30 Block is a sex therapist who disrobes the secrets to passionate sexual fulfillment. Most men are awful in bed. The majority of women will go through life without ever having a orgasm. Christianity has fucked up fucking and made it a sin. Block's book can help you unchained the magic with his direct, no non-sense guide that answers nearly any question you have for enjoying a more pleasurable sex life. The book reveals over 500 tips and techniques that help you experience the kind of profoundly pleasurable sex most men and women only dream about. The difference between a poor lover and a fantastic one is often only a small amount of information, a slightly different touch, and the learning of one or two small tricks.

SEX: A Man's Guide by Stefan Bechtel and Laurence Stains, Rodale, Hard Cover, 500 pages, $30

SEX is a great sex handbook for men who are stable enough about their manhood to admit that no man is born a great lover. In fact, most men are born crappy lovers. Sex is not just a handbook on fun. It also has sections on family planing (YUCK!), sexual disease, and the affects of good health on sex.

Article And Letter Submission Requirement

Pagan Revival magazine is a voice of the Pan-Aryan and Eurocentric Pagan community.

We practice an US FIRST! policy or otherwise known as Odinic Meritocracy. The more you do for Aryan Paganism and the Pagan Revival the easier it is to get articles and letters published. The less you do the harder it is to be printed. Also, we believe in the nobility of great bloodlines and the inferiority of lesser bloodlines. People whose ancestors, relatives, or progeny are recognized by the Pagan Revival as people who have contributed to the creation of the Pagan Revival have a higher social status and an easier chance of being published and advancing up the world tree. Submitted manuscripts should be type written, double spaced, original, clear copies, so they can be scanned. However, if you can't type your stuff, please print clearly!!

Articles should be written from a Pagan view point. I am NOT interested in long anti-Jewish or anti-black rants. They have been done already and they don't do a whole lot to build the Odinic Community.

Review Of Pagan Revival

Here is a review of Pagan Revival which appeared in Nexus, P.O. Box 1627, Paraparaumu, New Zealand "Pagan Revival.... Published by Wyatt Kaldenberg, this has a radical, political Odinist orientation. Includes a CIA published manual on guerilla warfare, a comprehensive history of the Odinist revival in the English speaking world, starting with the Australian lawyer A. Rudd Mills during the 1920s; Zoroastrianism & the Old Aryan religion with an overview of the legends of the Iranians. Mithraic rites of the cult of the Roman soldiers. The goddess Ishtar."

NSW 2059 Australia. Porus is doing a lot of work rebuilding Zoroastrianism. He has a lot of ritual info. Also, Neville Gandhi, 2/25 Old Khareghat Colony Hughes Road, Bombay 7, India. Mr. Gandhi, also, is doing a lot to rebuild the ancient Aryan religion. Wyatt

Hail Wyatt:

Thanks for the magazine. I agree with you that monotheism has demonized our women. What a different world it would be if Christianity never was. The Bible has assassinated the White race. To be frank, I think the White race is lost. Christianity has contaminated the minds of White people so entirely that nothing less than a totalitarian police state will free their mind. Yours, Bill

Wyatt,

Great zine. I like the wide variety of Pagan traditions. It's great to read a White pub that doesn't waste space endlessly ranting about non-Whites. We need to focus on ourselves.... I was wondering why you don't review skin music....? Mike... No one sent me any skin CDs to review. Wyatt

Dear Pagan Revival,

Momentous! I've known about Odinism for two years now, but this is the first time I've ever heard about Zoroastrianism and Mithraism.. My background is Slavic. Did Slavs have their own brand of Paganism.....Ron

Brother Ron:

The Baltic people and Northern Slavs practiced a type of Wotanism, so did the Croats. Most people think Iceland was the last place to worship the Norse Gods, but many Baltic and "Polish" people were a type of Wotanists up to the 1600s. However, the Baltic people, also, appear to have had some Gods and Goddesses that were their own.

There may have been a lost Slavic Paganism, however, the Christians so destroyed Paganism in Eastern Europe that all the names of their Gods have been lost. No one knows if the southern Slavs worshipped the Germanic Gods under Slavic names, or whether there was a separate Slavic Paganism. Today, there is a Slavic Paganism floating around, but it was created in modern times. Even the names of the so called "Slavic Gods" were invented in modern times. The so called "Celtic Paganism" that is floating around is also a modern invention. While many of the names of Celtic Gods survived Christianity, almost no legends about them did. Nothing is really known about Druidism. It isn't even clear if most Celtic God names were male or female deities. The Celts have no surviving books like Eddas to record any info about the Gods. The Wiccians worship Morgan Le Fey as a Celtic Goddess, but Morgan was never a Goddess, just the half sister of King Arthur, and the King Arthur legend wasn't even a Celtic tradition, but an Anglo-Saxon one. The Wiccians worship Ostara as a Celtic Goddess, but she was Germanic. There is a Wiccan rune book by Ralph Blum, which claims the runes were Celtic. The Celts never used runes.... Wyatt

Live Rent Free, World wide

Become a caretaker of rich people's summer and winter homes!

A friend of mine does this for a living. It took him a while to figure out the ropes, but the last time I spoke to him, he regularly house sat for two separate families. His summers were spent in this giant five bedroom ski resort in Wolf Creek, Colorado, and his winters were spent in a summer resort on the shores of Lake Tahoe. He got paid over $1,000 a month for caretaking the Colorado home and a few hundred for the Tahoe place. Not a bad deal. Some people will let you bring your whole family so you can re-enact Stephen King's The Shining. "H-H-Here's Johnny!"

The best place to go to look for info on caretaking is THE CARETAKER'S GAZETTE. Only $27 a year. The Caretaker Gazette, Box 5887, Carefree, AZ 85377. 1-602-488-1970, www.angelfire.com/wa/caretaker

The newsletter has over 600 property caretaking opportunities each year. Everything from private homes, resorts, lodges, seasonal hotels, etc. But just remember:

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.
All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.
All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.
All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.
All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

Letters From 28

am extremely impressed (and I'm only half way through)! You have a very good writing style that allows you to bring your points across with devastating effectiveness. I agree with your view on the Identity issue and laughed my ass off on that crack about the Spice Girl. You are a true treasure, sir. I applaud you!

For Folk, Family, and Future,
Richard Miller

Dear Wyatt:

Greetings Kinsman! Since you don't like long letters, I'll keep this short. Thanks for sending me your Pagan Revival. It made for excellent reading and I could not put it down. Pagan Revival is now making its rounds with the other 11 Whites here in the hole with me. I'm sure all will find it a breathe of fresh air just as I did. Again, thanks for the support. Give my regards to all.

14 words, Richard Scutari

Brother Richard:

I can read your hand writing. So you can write as long as a letter as you like. In fact, all the letters I received from your Odinic kindred had writing I could read. So they are welcome to write as long letters as they wish. I appreciate them, since it is boring to only hear my own opinions. People in the hole and lock down can't use the library typewriters, so the type writer rule doesn't apply to them. It's mainly for people with awful writing. There is nothing more exasperating than trying to translate and then type up a long letter written with poor penmanship. I am one to talk, even my printing looks like it was penned by an inebriated orangutan.

This is why I never write letters. No one could understand them. And, like I have said, I type with one finger. It takes forever for me to type anything. I am fairly typed out for the day with what I do on the magazine.
Wyatt Hail Odin!

Heilsa Wyatt:

Hello! I just received your issue #41 of Pagan Revival and I must say that it is a very crisp and clear magazine. I am enjoying it tremendously. Thanks for your show of support. I particularly liked the short E-mail from Tom Metzger about Christianity. I am fairly new to the Pagan beliefs of our ancestors after being lied to most of my life. I was raised by parents who are Jehovah's Witnesses, and I am sure you know about that so called faith. Mr. Metzger hit the nail right on the head when he said Christianity is killing off our race. The religion I was raised in promotes the type of mentality that will be the suicide of all White people. They teach the Bible to the point of being extremists. When a child is led to believe that weakness, cowardice, and subservience are strong virtues, and the phrases, "Love thy neighbor" and "Turn the other cheek" are foundations of a good life, something has gone wrong. As if that was not enough, they take another step further by making the concepts of pride, strength, honor, and courage into sins that will send you to hell. This is totally ridiculous because it goes against the natural way things have been for centuries longer than the Christian way of thinking.

What's wrong with honor, duty, loyalty, knowledge, pride, control, protection, courage, and strength? But the Christians want to block these attributes from everyone except the Jews. Since I started studying the Pagan religion, religion isn't the right word, so let's say the Pagan way of life, I have had my eyes opened and instantly realized that Odinism was right. I could feel it in my blood! It wasn't alien to me and didn't seem unnatural. That's the whole point, Paganism is based on nature and therefore can not be wrong. I've said my two cents worth now and once again I would like to say thank you for the copy of your magazine.

14 Words, Jeremy Sneed, #052700-030,
3901 Klein Blvd, Lompoc, CA 93436

Brother Jeremy:

Pride or self-love is one of the seven deadly sins. A true Christian can not be proud of himself, his family, his race, nor his nation, for as the Bible teaches us, a proud person puts himself above the Jew "god". A good Christian must be lowly, humble, submissive, self-effacing, meek, and remorseful. Pride cometh before a fall, and all of that other self-hating Christian bullshit. Pride is a sin against the god of Israel. When Christian Identity people wear the words: White Pride on their T-shirt they are committing THREE sins against the god of Israel. Sin one: it is a sin to be proud of one's self, and the person wearing the White Pride shirt is proud that he was born White, and Jesus doesn't like that one bit! Walkth the path of humility sayth the Lord! Pride is vanity, and vanity is the devils playpen.

Sin number two: Jesus said that for a Christian to go to heaven he is to own nothing but the shirt on his back. A Christian can not own a book, a gun, a home, a car, or even more than one T-shirts. For a true Christian MUST turn his back on the material world and devote his life to the spiritual realm. Christians only obey the Bible when it suits them, so most Christian Identity people own a whole closet full of White Pride shirts. This is a sin against the Jew god. For Jesus said that a camel would pass through the eye of a needle before a man of means would get into heaven. Most Id-tity people own all kinds of things like guns, pick-up trucks, mobile homes, televisions.... The Bible says these objects will keep their souls out of heaven. Don't laugh. Right now hell is full of rednecks who turned their backs on Jesus and bought themselves a pick up truck. You can bet your soul Jesus never owned a pick up truck. Nor a horse, a wagon, not even an extra pair of sandals. When Jesus Christ walked around the country side, teaching people that their vaginas and penises were unclean, he didn't drag a suitcase behind himself with a clean change of underwear. No way! The Messiah only owned one pair of sandals, one robe, and Jesus Christ didn't wear underwear.

Sin number three of wearing a White Pride T-shirt is racism: the ultimate vanity! If the Bible hates individual pride just think how much Yahweh fears and loathes group pride. Nationalism and racism are the deadly sin of pride committed by a vast amount of people. A sin committed by more than one individual is a conspiracy. Racism is racketeering. Yahweh has RICO laws against nationalism and racism.

Racism is the conspiracy to love your own people. Racism elevates the status of one race to Godhood. Jesus Christ knows that the ultimate goal of White racism is to deify the Aryan race, and Yahweh is a jealous god. The Bible says put no other god before me. Any Christian Identity person who puts the White Race First is disobeying the Bible and turning his back on Israel. A true Christian must bow down to the vanity of his Hebrew lord and master. There is only room enough in the universe for Yahweh's ego, so everyone else is forced to hate themselves.

If an Christian puts the White race about his Jew god, then he will burn in hell for all eternity.

If a Christian Identity person puts his Hebrew god before the Folk, then he is a race traitor, because he would rather worship a Jewish fairy tale than his own people.

Christian racism is an oxymoron, because to be true to one god, you must betray the other. Let's be honest. White racism is a god that demands worship. Racism is a religion, and the monotheistic cults, unlike Paganism, don't tolerant other gods.

The thing I hate most about Christian Identity is that they have this mental illness which forces them to hang on to what I call the Jewish teat: Jewish traditions, Jewish laws, Jewish culture, Jewish religion, Jewish literature, Jewish morality, Jewish sex-phobia, Jewish self-hate, and so on.

However, if there is something about the Jew god's word that they don't like they'll spend days, weeks, months, years searching the ancient Jewish text for just one sentence, one quote that will justify their actions. If the Identity people have such low opinions of Yahweh's word, why don't they just trash the old, Jewish Bible and write their own book?

Hell, once, a long, long time ago, some smart Jew did just that with the so called "Holy Bible". Trash the Jew Bible and create an Aryan Bible. This way the Identity folks wouldn't have to waste so much time misinterpreting and down right lying about what the Jewish Bible says. They could just make up the word of Yahweh as they go. It would be a real time saver. Hell, they could toss out the Jewish book and create a new one. They could toss out the Jewish god Yahweh and bring in a new one around an Aryan God? If the Christian Identity people purged the Jew COMPLETELY from their religious law, then they would be where we are at, wouldn't they? For Christian Identity devoid of everything Jewish is the pagan revival.

There is nothing Christian about Christian Identity. Christian Identity is neither Christian nor is it our identity. Christian Identity people are just Pagans who don't have the balls to break away from the Jewish teat.

Christian Identity resembles the Zoroastrian religion more than it does Christianity. White people are so fucked up that we have demonized our native belief system and glorified the fables and mythology of foreigners. We know nothing about the Aryanism of the prophet Zarathustra, but the deranged rants of the termite Jesus devour the structures of our inner self. Christianity is the theology of self-hating.

You grew up in the demented Jehovah's Witness cult? That's worse than my cultist past. At least, my Christ cult allowed me to celebrate the Pagan holidays: Halloween, Christmas, Easter, etc. We weren't allowed to drink pop. You ever noticed that every Christian cult has a different bizarre taboo? God forbid us from drinking soda pop, coffee, and tea. You guys could not go trick or treating. Identity people can't eat pork. The Catholics can't eat red meat of Fridays. The Amish are permanently frozen in the 1800s. And aren't the Southern Baptists forbidden to fart in February? Jesus Christ sure is a fussy little hussy.

The evil, middle eastern cult that tainted my childhood was called The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. What a bunch of sex hating Jewophiles!

Christianity has put chains on White history! I had an English teacher who told our class that the ancient Pagan Romans had developed a steam engine which operated an elevator. He said that if the Christians had not destroyed the Roman Empire, the Pagan Romans would have colonized Mars by now. Christianity has put Aryan science back 1,000s of years. Actually, Christianity has killed Aryan science. Now, we don't have a White scientific community, instead we have multi-racial science. Praise Jesus and his cult of universal brotherhood. Thanks to Jesus, soon we won't even have a White race.

Do you guys have a Pagan Study group? If you are interested in learning more about Paganism and starting a Pagan study group, Llewellyn Publications, P.O. Box 64383, Dept. K047-7, St. Paul, Minnesota 55164-0383, had, I am not sure if they still offer it, a Pagan book loan service to Prisoners. If you put up X amount of dollars to insure the return of the books, usually the price of one book, then they will loan the study group one book at a time. They have many Odinic, Celtic, Roman etc. Pagan books. Some are very good. Don't mention race, for they aren't racial. But if you can get free books, it may be a good deal. Llewellyn books has some Odinic authors worth checking out: Edred Thorson, Ed Finch, Freya Aswynn, and Kveldulfr Gundarsson. Also, they offer a lot of great Celtic books too. Another Pagan prison program is The Church of All Worlds Prison Study Group, P.O. Box 8247, Toledo, OH 43605-8247. They are Wiccans, which mean they are just Christians who worship Pagan Gods. However, they may be able to get you materials, free books, etc. These people are not US by any means, but if they can get you free books, etc. they might be worth your time. Wyatt 14/88

Wyatt,

Thank you very much for the issue of Pagan Revival That you sent all of us here in the hole. It is an excellant publication that we were happy we had a chance to read. Sincerely, Roderic Russell

Great Prophet Wyatt,

Thanks for the copy of Pagan Revival #41. I read a lot of anti-Christ publications, but yours is number one. You really know how to rip Christianity to pieces. Man, and people say I'm a spooky, evil fuck! Be assured that Pagan Revival is making the rounds down here. Mr. Kaldenbeg, you have quite a large fan club here. You are the gate way to the New Age! When you decide to make your move against the fagot on the cross, you have leagues of followers down here who offer you their souls. You are my hero! My light house! My lord and master! Keep up the good work!

Your devoted servant, Satan 666

Dear Wyatt,

Just received your zine. I'll review it in the next issue which should go to press at the first of the year. 64 pages! My God! How your little puppy has grown! And such tiny, tiny print, your zine is almost a damn book. It took me longer to read the latest Pagan Revival than it did to write, proof read, and lay out my own publication. Wyatt, it may be time to cut back on the expressio! How do you fine time to write all that? Are you one of those people who never sleep? How many words is your zine? A billion or more? My God! It took me a week to read the whole thing. Later, dude.

Yours For the Underground Press, Jim

Jim,

Send me your zine with the review of Pagan Revival and I'll review your publication. Also, I'll reprint your review of Pagan Revival with your address in my zine. This way your address will appear twice in Pagan Revival. Your zine will be plugged twice. I get a lot of requests to review zines. To save space I am only going to review zines that will Pagan Revival. Wyatt

Wyatt Kaldenberg

Thanks for P. R. #41. I am enjoying it very much. Are there back issues available? As a worldview I have adopted Pierce's term, Cosmotheism, which I use as a natural Pagan term. My religious and spiritual interests include Wotanism, Satanism, and what the White Order of Thule (WOT) calls psycho-dynamics....

In The Spirit of the Age, E. Thurman of Arkansas

Brother Thurman:

Paganism or Cosmotheism...a rose by any other name.... To me, if you are not a Christian, Jew, Muslim nor atheist, then you are a type of Pagan. Paganism means none of the above. I've got one or two copies of other issues I'll send you. Wyatt Sehr Gute Herr Kaldenberg!

Thanks so much for the copy of Pagan Revival. The way of your mind is a joy to follow, a true coming home. I'll send you an audio of industrial finer than NON, and a video of this amazing forest of Celtic monuments here in...called Forest Lawn. My three girls and two boys are the living version. Ray of New York

Brother Ray:

Better than NON? I'd like to hear that. Thanks for photos of your family. You have some beautiful little ones there. Wyatt

Wyatt,

Greetings Comrade! I would like to thank you for the Pagan Revival zine. I seriously agree with your views on Christian Identity and Christians as a whole. I liked the "African Identity" joke!!! I get the zine Fenris Wolf and Nate Zorn is a writer like you it seems. Both of you hold nothing back and are very to the point and honest. I sure would like to be placed on your mailing list. If you have time let me know what I need to send you for a subscription. I am a 25 year old skinhead from Portland/Eugene Oregon. I'm in the hole here at U.S.P. Lompoc for the "race riot" that took place on the yard. Thanks again for your support and for all the work you are doing for our Folk! Hope to hear from you soon. Take care.

For Blood, Soil, and Honor! Fritz

Brother Fritz:

I've seen FENRIS WOLF, once or twice and liked it. I reviewed it in issue #40.

The White race is sick to death of the Christian Right! The Republican Party is in deep shit because they can't free themselves of the public image that they are the party of the Christian Coalition. Christianity is the religion of sexually impotent old men. Christianity is the religion of the iron heel. In God We Trust and all that other bull-shit. As the Right wing is always telling us, the Free Masonic, slave raping, founding fathers of this fucked up country were all Christians. That alone is enough reason to hate Christianity! Christianity murdered our true Aryan Identity and replaced it with Jewish Bible stories. That alone is reason enough to hate Christianity! Christianity has fucked up fucking with guilt trips. That alone is reason enough to hate Christianity! Most problems the White race has is because of Christianity. Christianity has fucked the lives of Southern Europeans for 1,700 years and Northern Europeans for 1,000 years. People are fed up with the Jesus Cult. Most people are turned off by the race movement because they think we are all a bunch of Right wing, sex hating, Jesus freaks. Young people don't want to get involved in a sex hating cult. The only people who Jesus appeals to are old men whose penises don't work any more, and young people who are afraid of sex. Aryanism should be leading our people to a new age of freedom, instead, the foreigners in the Christian Identity movement have chained the race movement to the dead horse of our Jewish oppressors. Aryan Paganism is a movement within itself. The sooner we make a clean split with the Christians, the sooner we can build our own movement. Christianity is just keeping the Aryan down.

Since you are in jail, I don't need any money from you. Write for Pagan Revival. I could sent you books to reviews if the prison will let them in. I could find Odinst books your kindred could use in study group. That way it would serve two purposes.

Hail Odin! Wyatt

Dear Mr. Kaldenberg:

I am writing in regards to the Pagan Revival, and I want to thank you so much for it!!! I also want to say that it is an honor to receive such things from people like yourself. I have a great deal of respect for all of the people like yourself who stand proud and strong for our people, our race, and our children. "Heil" to you all who are living and dying for our race. May we all be alive to see the day that ZOG falls to their deserved death. With that I will close, with much respect and thanks again. Heil to you Mr. Kaldenberg, Rick C. 88/14

Wyatt,

Heilsa Kinsman! I am writing to thank you for the issue of Pagan Revival! Your support and acknowledgement is appreciated.

One of your articles grabbed my attention; The CASE Of VIKING HERO; EGIL SKALL-GRIMSSON.

I recently read the Egil's Saga, and I consider him a great warrior. My opinion is that when these great warriors are read about in these myths and sagas, it gives us, Aryans, inspiration to fight for what we believe in. So, Egil's affliction isn't that significant, or is it? Your magazine is great, thank you! Hail Odin! Mike Miller 88/14

Brother Mike:

I don't see Egil's affliction as a negative. He was a great Aryan who overcame great obstacles. Not only did he suffer from Paget's, but, also, he was born into slavery and fought his way up the social staircase to become one of the greatest Viking leaders. He was Odin's favorite "son". I think his disease made his victories in life that much sweeter.

I believe that eugenics should be a religious quest, but I believe in eugenics with a human face. Hollywood Nazism believes the system's lies which claims White nationalists are the bad guys. So they believe that Aryanism is the enemy of all sick, lame, and feeble people. They believe this because they saw it in a Hollywood movie. To me, eugenics isn't cruel, but an act of love. Eugenics is the science of preventing children yet to be born from being sick, unhealthy, repulsive, and/or half-witted. Why would anyone want a child to be born sick, ugly, and stupid? The people who are against eugenics are the bad guys.

Eugenics doesn't mean tossing ailing old people off the roofs of buildings like the Communist Pol Pot did. Some of the greatest Aryans suffered from hereditary disease. Even Hitler had Parkinson's disease. Did Hitler's suffering make him unfit to live in a healthy, Aryan society? I think not. Parkinson's is a hereditary disease, which may be why Hitler elected not to be a father.

The system likes to show us as a bunch of psychos who plan to make lamp shades out of handicap children. Hurting children is un-Aryan. To answer your question, no Egil's illness doesn't matter other than it shows us another side of this great, Aryan hero. Why not write a review of the sagas you have read for Pagan Revival?

Hail Odin! Wyatt

Wyatt,

Just wanted to express my thanks for the issue of Pagan Revival. Sitting in the hole, it made for interesting reading and really helped to pass some time. The dissemination of knowledge is really essential if we're to save our race, culture, and heritage from extinction. But from my perspective and experience too many of our Folk won't go the next step. They're willing to read and offer their opinions (like I'm doing here) but won't get off their fat, lazy asses, shut off the TV and go DO SOMETHING! There are a slim few like yourself and Mr. Metzger, who are willing to step into the limelight and challenge the politically correct and ZOG. Keep the faith, and keep writing your scathing words, so maybe you'll light a fire under some of the sheep. Maybe then things will change. Thanks again for your efforts for our Folk. Hail Odin! Glen Robinson 14 words.

Dear Wyatt,

Many thanks for the copy of Pagan Revival, which I found absolutely fascinating. I was particularly intrigued to learn that modern Odinism started in Australia with this A Rud Mills fellow.

Here's the latest Bizarism. I hope you enjoy it.

Best wishes, Chris of Australia

Dear Pagan Revival:

What a great zine! And at the right time too, I just got interested in racial consciousness in the past nine months or so. Right now I am reading The Turner Diaries (yes, I know it was written by a man from Aryan Nations, which is an "Identity" group, but the book is a good starting place). I also have some stuff from The Church of the Creator, which was interesting, but as you pointed out, they are atheists and this kind of turned me off. I don't know how you feel about the Klan, but another good thing I saw was the last 30 minutes of The Birth Of A Nation. It really struck me because of how current it was, I mean there was O. J. (the black man assaulting the White woman), the blacks in the town reminded me of the LA riots, and the nigger army attacking the cabin was like Ruby Ridge or Waco.

I will be subscribing in a few months when money isn't so tight. Getting your zine has in fact made my money situation even worse because I had to put PAVN: The People's Army of Vietnam that you reviewed on my "must have" list. IG(or GodS!)WT, T. G.

Dear T.G.,

As for The Turner Diaries, it is a goofy, fantasy novel that can be fun if you realize it is ONLY fiction.. It's good because it shocks liberals, but it is no blue print for White victory. I first read the Turner Diaries around 1978. When I was young, it impressed the hell out of me. I thought all the answers for White survival could be found in that book, but I was wrong. From a tactics and strategy viewpoint, it's total crap, which will only get you killed or jailed. A lot of people in the movement have ruined their lives trying to turn that silly piece of FICTION into reality.

The United States is the most powerful nation in the history of the Earth. How would a movement, (which is so full of fuck ups that we can't even raise the money to hire a good lawyer when we need one), possibly muster an army to defeat the mother of all super powers? The Turner Diaries IS fiction. We would do more good for the White race reading the Wall Journal than the Turner Diaries.

Even the most successful bank robbers get busted. A person investing $2,000 a year in common stock for 20 years will have an 81% chance of becoming rich. A person has next to no chance of becoming rich by using a gun.

There are less than 100 people in the race movement who have the balls to hide a fugitive, and the FBI knows who they all are. Where would an Aryan revolutionary run to hide? There is no mass support for us. The race movement is more yellow than White.

Whites are a very fucked race of people. The greatest problem the White race faces isn't the blacks, the Jews, the capitalists, nor any other outside force, but the cowardice, stinginess, and idleness of our own fucked people. The so called White racial movement claims to be the enlightened saviors of our people, however, in reality, 90% of the race movement are no better than the average White zombie.

The White zombies just want to kick back and allow someone else to create the future history of our people. Most of our so called Aryan comrades are just White zombies who got bored watching TV and came to the so called movement to be entertained by costumes, parades, wild speeches, and general goofiness. The Turner Diaries is part of the general goofiness of the race movement. So, enjoy the Turner Diaries, but realize it is just fantasy.

Baal, The Red Hair Lord of Canaan

In Biblical Canaan; on the hillsides are grown vines and lives, which, with natural pine and cedar forests in the Lebanon and Amanus, were the main products of the land. Moreover, soil which is eroded builds up fertile pockets of earth and even considerable plains. Such cultivable land was regarded as 'Baal's land', that is to say, land where cultivation depends on the activity of the god manifest in the autumn and winter rains. These rains are heralded by thunder, and 'the lord' (Baal) was known to the Canaanites by his proper name Hadad, 'the Thunderer', or Rimmon, which means the same. The term 'Baal-land' as distinct from irrigated land has survived down to the present day in Muslim law when making tax assessment for poor relief.

John Gray, Near Eastern Mythology

Baal, one of the sons of El [the chief god of the Canaanites], was the executive god of the pantheon, the god of thunder and winter storms, the dynamic warrior god who champions the divine order against the menacing forces of chaos. He is also identified with vegetation and the seasonal fertility cycle. There is little evidence in the Ras Shamra texts of the sexual license, the sympathetic magic aspects of the cult to secure the productivity of Nature, that the Bible writers found so abhorrent. On the contrary there is ample evidence that some of the aspects of Yahweh reflected aspects of Baal as the Divine King, in the destruction of the sea-serpent Leviathan and the concept of everlasting kingly dominion; even some of the liturgical language is strikingly similar, like the wording of Psalm 68: 'To him that rideth upon the heavens of heavens, his strength in the clouds', and so on.

Baal is sometimes called the 'son of Dagon'. Dagon was also a god of vegetation, specifically corn, which is what his name means....As the summer drew to an end and the rains were due, the peasants would suffer a crisis of anxiety - would the rains come? By calling upon Baal, the rain god, and encouraging his intervention by rituals of imitative magic involving sexual union, their tensions were released and purged.

Magnus Magnusson BC - The Archaeology of the Bible Lands

The goddess peculiarly associated with Baal is Anat, like Ishtar, a goddess of love and war. She complements Baal, abetting him in his conflict and vindicating him when he succumbs, possibly reflecting the role of women at the critical seasons of transition in popular religion or when the order of the gods is temporarily in eclipse. Related to such phases is certainly the weeping of the women in Jerusalem for Tammuz (Ezekiel 8:14) and possibly the annual lamentation of the maidens of Israel, which may be only secondarily related to the mourning for Jephthah's daughter (Judges 11:39-40).

The actual death of Baal and his descent to the underworld are not described, but they may well be visualized as occurring at the coming of the sirocco in early summer, when the annual vegetation wilts and the long summer drought sets in.

John Gray, Near Eastern Mythology

Verily Baal has fallen to the earth,
Dead is Baal the Might!
Perished is the Prince, lord of the earth!
Then the Kindly One, El the Merciful

Comes down from his throne, he sits on the footstool,
And (coming) off the footstool, he sits on the ground

He sprinkles dirt signifying grief on his head,
On his pate the dust in which he wallows;
For clothing he covers himself with a loincloth;
He scrapes his skin with a stone,
With a chipped flint as a razor
He cuts off side-whiskers and beard;
He rends his shoulder (with his finger-nails);
He scores his chest as a garden plot,
Even as a valley-bottom his trunk he lacerates.
He raises his voice and cries:

Baal is dead! What will become of the people?
The Son of Dagan (is dead)! What of the multitudes (of men)?

After Baal I shall go down to the underworld!

Ras Shamra texts

Here we have the mourning rites, familiar among the ancient Semites and in Israel, generally at death, which is a crisis in society when the community is especially open to the influences of the supernatural, normal activities were suspended to thwart those forces. Thus the normal resorts were avoided, one forsook one's usual seat to sit on the ground, like Job on the village midden (Job 2:8), or begrimed the personal or the clothes with dust and scored the face or the body, that last practice was specifically banned in Israel (Deuteronomy 14:1) in protest against what was seen as a barbarous Canaanite rite.

Movie Reviews

CLUB VAMPIRE (1998)

A very low budget vampire movie. Its only redeeming value is that it is load with female nudity. Lots of teats and ass. A lesbian vampire love scene. Some interesting gore. One scene that cracked me up was where a woman was being changed into a vampire. I've seen plenty of people being change into werewolves, but a vampire transformation is new to me. According to the movie, since vampires only drink blood, they don't need their large intestines. They showed a woman "shedding" her entrails out through her mouth. They have her pulling and pulling her guts out of her mouth. This is a crack up. Some of the corn ball jokes are funny. It's worth a buck if you are into B-movies. Did I mention the lesbian vampire scene?

LES MISERABLES (1998)

Liam Neeson stars in the latest version of Victor Hugo's classic novel about greed, injustice, and the quest for higher morality in pre-Revolutionary France.

Albeit, there are Christian overtones, the movie is well worth a buck. It is a great description of our Folk's difficult past. Most peo ple don't know how hard White working people have had it. The P.C. police claim White people have always had it easy. This movie shows a different story. Sadly, no lesbian vampire scene.

CATS—The MUSICAL (1998)

CATS is a British musical which is based on the poetry of the pro-fascist, English author, T.S. Eliot. I like the poetry of T.S. Eliot. His poem The Wasteland is a classic. Also, T.S. Eliot was the best friend of N.S. poet Ezra Pound. So, I've been looking forward to seeing CATS for years. I was glad to find CATS at the local Blockbuster Video store. You know what. CATS stink! It smells like a poop filled litter box. Like get the Lemon air freshener! There's not a single song in the whole production I like. What a let down! CATS really needed a lesbian vampire scene!

FEAR AND LOATHING IN LAS VEGAS (1998)

Based on the great book of the same name by psychedelic author Hunter S. Thompson. When I was in Collage in Colorado during the 1970s, I wrote a book review of FEAR AND LOATHING IN LAS VEGAS for the campus newspaper. Now, it's a major motion picture and fairly true to the book too. This movie is about a road trip that a heavy drug using journalist and his freaky Samoan lawyer take in search of the "American dream" in Vegas. This movie is very funny, albeit, it glorifies heavy, and I do mean heavy, drug use. It does a great job showing the bizarreness of Vegas and the abuses of the drug culture.

WINGS OF THE DOVE (1997)

A highly praised chick movie about the people in the European upper class. Love, betrayal, death, nice scenery. Watch it with a woman to show her what a sensitive guy you are. Maybe you'll get luck. Don't worry. If all else fails, there is one good female nudity scene near the end.

Klassen's first two books, the White Man's Bible and Nature's Eternal Religion, are very good, however, atheism is a downer. Atheism is just as wrong for the Folk as Christianity is.

The movie The Birth of A Nation was based on Thomas Dixon's novel The Clansman. It is a fairly good book. Dixon wrote many racial books: The Leopard's Spots, The Southerner, etc.

What do I think of the Klan? They are Christians. Christianity is a Semitic cult with roots in Judaism. I am a cultural anti-Semite.

There are racial anti-Semites and cultural anti-Semites. Racial anti-Semites, usually, only hate the Jewish "race". I don't believe there is such a thing as a true Jewish "race". So I don't hate the Jewish "race", because it does not exist. I am a cultural anti-Semite. I hate Jewish culture, because it is forced on our people from birth.

Judaism, Islam, Christianity, Communism, Capitalism, and so forth are Jewish cultural products. White Christian racism is a product of the oppressive Jewish culture. Therefore, my anti-Semitism causes me to hate the Ku Klux Klan, the Christian Nazis, and the whole Lost Identity movement.

14/88 Wyatt

Dear Wyatt:

Thank you for sending me a copy of your zine....

...you seem to be quite hung up on the "far left", as you devote a great deal of space and verbiage within the zine bashing them. I and my friends are quite proud to admit that we are both White racists and leftists, at least in the economic sense. The study of socialist theory in an objective evaluation reveals no true conflict with the fourteen words. That is my own personal opinion, anyway. Even so, politics and religion are not my main focus, and I am content to find friends even among the Christian right wing. 14 words, This was Mike's first letter, then I sent him a letter saying this and that and he replied:... The "Defense of Leftist Racism" you suggested is something I do once a year around May Day. I'll see that you get the next one. Pagan Revival is quite impressive...I, also, agree 110% that it is high time White people became productive as opposed to sitting about whining.... Mike

Mike,

I became a socialist at the age of 12. My view is that for socialism to work there must be a high sense of morality, duty, and selflessness among the people. I became a racist when I was 21. I was probably the first left wing racist in America. I was a left wing racist until the Portland trial. That is when I lost my faith in the masses. I no longer believe the masses are moral enough to make socialism work. Hitler was a socialist, a National Socialist. The masses in Germany in the 1920s were a very virtuous people, so Hitler could make National Socialism work. Today, the White sheep are so worthless, so lazy and so uncaring that a National Socialist government would fall flat on its face. Socialism isn't magic. It NEEDS a moral, decent, hard working Folk. Even National Socialism can't turn a turd into a diamond.

This is also just my opinion. I don't want Pagan Revival to be a sound board for myself, but I want it to be a voice of the Pan-Aryan Pagan community. Most racial publications are so totalitarian that there is never disagreement. Iron Heels always hate free debate. This is why the Anti-Defamation League wants to censor the internet. You can always judge how evil a group's rule will be by their lack of free disagreement. The Left wing idea of Political Correctness is the bedrock of a new totalitarian government. There are good things which come out of the Left, mostly the Anarchist Left, but there is a great deal of bad. I criticize the Right wing and the White power movement just as much as I do the Left and the anti-White movements. The Center for Democratic Renewal, the People Against Racist Terror, and the Anti-Racist Action are Marxist, totalitarian cults, which can only lead to blood thirsty dictatorships because they don't allow anyone to disagree with their leaders. Even Left-Liberals, generally, don't allow people to disagree with their leaders. Have you ever read ANY Anti-Defamation League literature which questioned the A.D.L.'s use of spies to sabotage groups on the Left and Right? No, and you never will because they are a totalitarian cult. Have you ever read any Southern Poverty Law Center literature which questioned what Morris Dees did with the missing 100 million dollars the S.P.L.C. can't find? No, and you never will because the S.P.L.C. is a totalitarian cult of personality built around fearless leader Morris Dees. However, the same could be said about many personality cult groups in the Aryan movement which don't allow anyone to question the ideas of the fearless leader. Only people who hate themselves would bow down to these totalitarian cults. I don't fully trust the Left, Right, nor Center.

I don't want to be the "leader" of the Euro-Centric Pagan community. I want the movement to get off its lazy ass and lead itself. So, if people get involved with Pagan Revival, there will be so many different opinions in Pagan Revival that it is impossible for anyone to agree with all the opinions. This is how a voice of the community must be. You and your friends are always free to write pro-Left articles for Pagan Revival, but, I also should be free to disagree with them, for this is how "a voice of the Aryan Pagan community" works. Many people in the movement think that anyone who disagrees with them is a race traitor, I've always thought that was an odd notion. Without disagreement, Pagan Revival would be just another totalitarian cult, and the world has too many of those already. Wyatt

Mr. Kaldenberg:

Greetings from the White North! Your magazine is excellent-advanced, intelligent, and no holds barred against the scum of the movement. As a former Identity Christian turned Pagan, I, now, see the danger in Identity, the most idiotic, ridiculous religion ever invented. Any ways, please know you have my support, and I'd like to review your magazine in issue #4 of The Werewolf...Take care, 14/88, Dan ... Just say no to Christ!

Dear Wyatt::

Thanks for your zine. I found many of the articles first rate. I have long been interested in history, mythology, and the occult. I, particularly, enjoyed the writings on Odinism, Mirthaism, and Zoroastrianism. However, as a black man, one of the few black men who publishes a zine in a zine world that is almost 100% white or Jewish, it always amazing me how many whites feel oppressed by white society. You people control everything...be happy. Just a thought. Any how, I'll review your zine in my magazine in #12. I'm, basically, going to say the same thing I just said to you. I liked the occult stuff, I like your writing style, but I'm puzzled by all the white "alienation". By the way, I couldn't find a subscription price nor the price for a sample copy. I'll need that for the review. Also, I noticed you have a Bonsall address on the magazine and an El Cajon address on the envelope. Did you move recently? Drop me a note. The black sheep of the zine world.... Marshal

Hey, Marshal:

Send your zine, and I'll review it. I want to review mainly zines that will review my zine. Why should I promote people who are too rude to return me the favor? Pagan Revival is the kind of magazine that has so many ideas in it no one could agree with everything. I put out the magazine, and I don't even agree with everything in it. This is the way a free forum must be. I have no use for totalitarianism outside of the fact that advocating it and using its symbols upsets the P.C. crowd. Which is ironic, since Political Correctness is merely Left totalitarianism. Bonsall is my permanent address. I move around alot.. Right now it's a 150 mile trip to get my mail at the Bonsall box, so the El Cajon box is a lot nearer to me for now, but I may have to move any day without much notice, so consider the El Cajon box a dead end. By the time you get my letter, I'll most likely be gone. I may move to Reno and Las Vegas for awhile. Yuck! So the Bonsall box is the "official" Pagan Revival mail box, and it's what the dress up Nazis would call their "national headquarters" and my El Cajon box would be called the "the party's El Cajon chapter". So put the National HQ address in the zine but if you want to get "important inner circle party communications" to our Beloved National Director, I suggest sending them to our comrades at the El Cajon unit, the Reno unit, or perhaps the Vegas unit where they can hand deliver them to our beloved leader. Man, talking like a Halloween Nazi makes me feel so powerful! Wyatt

Dear Wyatt:

Thanks for the letter and the magazines. I'll pass the extra one on.... If you can find the source of that quote, let me know. The mag looks good, better than ever. Good to see it out again! I don't agree with everything 100% (of course), but I like your energy and your style. We just got back from the Blood Axis tour in Europe. 16 shows in 11 nations. Amazing! Keep in touch...Michael

Hey Michael

Thanks for the CD. I'll review it in P.R. This issue or the next. I am running short on time and space. I met a man who was at your Sweden show and loved it. I'll ask the readership about the quote Wyatt

Greetings Wyatt,

Thanks for the card and everything else you have done for our Kindred. About half of us, myself included have had our Incident Reports expunged. So far two of us have been found guilty of "rioting" (Editor's note: Under democracy, if a Pagan woman is gang raped by a mob of monotheists, since the majority rules, SHE would be charged with rape. This is how democracy works).

The remainder of our Kindred, which has yet to have their Incident Reports heard, unfortunately, most likely will be found guilty... from what we gather (Editor's Note: Under democracy, people in the minority always get screwed by the majority. True Democracy is a great system if you are part of the sheep herd, but it REALLY sucks if you are outside of the herd. We, Eurocentric Pagans, are, today, a tiny minority, so democracy sucks for us. One day we may be in the majority, then we can have a democracy where we can democratically push around weaker people like they do to us. However, at this time, we are a powerless minority and democracy is just an Iron Heel stomping the life out of us).

This is because of the fictitious Reports that had been written on them by a guard in a tower three hundred yards from the commotion. This is the same guard who disregarded other guards desperate requests for him to fire shots (Editor's Note: What else would you expect from a Christian copper?).

In addition to his incompetency to do his assigned job, the officer lied and rewrote his report a month later stating that he'd seen everything through a pair of "binoculars". He "neglected" to mention these binoculars in his first Report.

The above details are but a few of the many injustices done by the system during this escapade. One must keep in mind that all our circumstances are the same, and our fate will be the same, which means we'll all be transferred to other institutions, however, some will have rioting on their records. This will cause them numerous headaches at other institutions.... Thank you again, Hail Odin, Roderic Scott Russell

Mr. Kaldenberg:

For Personal and Racial (The Destruction of the White race by the Jewmedia and U.S. government), reasons, I happen to be at a real low point in my life. I'd like to tap into a Higher power, but I want it to be a White one. I want to tap into my Pagan roots...what

ZINE REVIEWS

Nexus, #14, P.O. Box 1627, Paraparaumu, New Zealand 4 issues $15, Overseas (Outside New Zealand) $20, Air mail $25. Half-Size Newsletter, 20 pages.

Nexus opens up with Malaysia Defies Usurers, which shows how the international bankers affect the Asian market. Next a reprint of the N.Z. Fascist Union's pamphlet: "Fascism As Dialectics". A piece called The Call of the Aethyrs. Reviews of books, zines and Pagan music. A story about evidence of acupuncture on the mummified body of the Alpine Ice Man. Greek Nationalism suppressed. A great piece about the Aryan in the ancient myths and legends of Third World peoples. A piece about the goofy Wiccan warlock Gerald Gardner. And a delightful article called "Judaization of the European: How the White Christian Right is helping to Judaize the West". This piece really rips a new asshole in the Aryan Christ myth. Always support our Pagan sisters and brothers overseas!

Bizzarrism, No. 6, P.O. Box K546, Haymarket NSW 1240, Australia $5 per issue. (I couldn't find a sub rate nor how often it is published). Full Size magazine. 40 pages

Bizzarrism opens up with Literary Remains: Some Manuscripts of Murderers. A piece called Mary's Voice Box is about the "appearance" of the Virgin Mary in Australia and other Christian insanity. Comics by Chris Mikul. An interesting story about tales of the hollow Earth myth. Starting in 1818, John Cleves Symmes believed the Lost Tribes of Israel lived in the center of the Earth, and finishing with whacky Nazi tales of Hitler escaping into the Earth's core. My favorite piece is The Sick World of Sigmund Freud, which had some great insight into the mad doctor. An interesting article about New Zealand playboy Sir Wayne Martin. A piece about Australian motor cyclist Ken Le Breton. A story about an ill British boy who wanted to make it in the Guinness Book of Records for receiving the most get well cards. The boy got well, but the cards kept coming. At a rate of 100,000 a week, until he racked up 60 million cards. Now, like the tribbles on that old Star Trek episode, the kid can't stop the cards and he is getting buried. Last, a story about recluse Kelter Hartley. Very cool and off the wall.

The Ravenborn: An Occult Journal of the Politically Incorrect, #0, P.O. Box 79006, 17202, Himitos, Athens, Hellas GREECE, Full-size Newsletter, 7 pages (There is no price listed) Mr. oURovoros says he wants to make it bi-monthly.

It opens up with an engaging interview with the Euro-Centric Pagan band Aller Seelen. Next we have a piece called Abraxas (Beyond Good and Evil) The Gnostic god of Creation and destruction, who had influence on the invention of the Jewish god, Yahweh. They finish with an article entitled Heinrich Himmler-The Black Jesuit and his Knights of Wewelsburg: The S.S. Support our Pagan sisters and brothers in the Aryan Holy Land (Europe). Send them a few bucks for the name of Odin!

SCAPEGOAT, #11, P.O. Box 381198, Hollywood, CA, 90038-1198, Full-size magazine, slick cover, several color nude photos, many ads for Satanic products, subs $15 a year, samples $5, overseas $18 subs, samples $6, 36 pages

ScapeGoat opens up with tributes to the late founder of the Church of Satan, Dr. Anton LaVey by ScapeGoat publisher Reverend John Kamieniecki, infamous bad boy, Adam Parfrey, and CoS Magister Peter Gilmore, letters to editor, a great interview with Douglas Pierce, the lead singer of the Euro-centric Pagan band Death In June, which shines neoteric light on this enigmatic, Odinic bard, next a wild interview with underground publisher Adam Parfrey, then a mischievous article by Cheryl Biggs about one man's sexual fetichisms, an interview with Satanic musician Gen, and tons of Pagan and Satanic music reviews by Jeremy Redbeard, John Kamieniecki, Phil Martinez, and Wyatt Kaldenberg. This is a great magazine, which is put out by a couple of friends of mine. So, don't be a cheap bag of shit, buy a sub or at least send them $5 for a sample issue.

PANISCUS REVUE, #2, P.O. Box 464, Alexandria, VA 22313-0464, 64 pages, Full-size magazine; Sample $3 Tom Crites has put out a great underground review zine. It has a full color cover which must be done by an ink jet. It's so well done I didn't realized it was Xeroxed until I read the info. This is the review zine of the sick and twisted. Every page has something cool and demented. The variety of subjects is amazing: punk rock, death metal, even a review of Tri State Terror's Mudoven that was pretty funny. 7" Play Off with Two Dicks is a music review with two guys named Dick which was entertaining. They reviewed Attack of the Mushroom People! That goofy horror flick scared the shit out of me when I was eight. Tom Crites and I are probably the only people on the planet who are deranged enough to love the movie Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas.

Euro-American Quarterly, #19, P.O. Box 210081, Milwaukee, WI 53221, Half-size newsletter, 11 pages, $10 for four issue sub, $3 for sample. This little guy has been around for some time, but I think it was called The Talon, right? It is full of short White racial articles, nearly two on every page. This zine may be coming from a White Christian viewpoint, but it's hard to tell since the author doesn't talk about religion much. I liked his piece on the TV show Hercules, which pointed out how multi-racialism is in many shows about pre-Christian Europe. Remember, the movie Erik the Viking where they had the Viking Goddess Freyja played by a Negro woman? They really love to distort history. Disney is doing that now. Their cartoon Hercules showed ancient Greece as a rainbow nation and the Muses, Goddesses of music were all Negro, however, when they made their next cartoon about a Chinese girl who became a warrior, Disney let the Chinese people be all Chinese. We always get ripped off.

Batteries Not Included, #11, 130 W. Limestone St., Yellow Springs, OH 45387 Full-size newsletter; 12 pages $3 for sample issue, published irregularly(?), no sub price. This zine opens up with David Steinberg's fascinating book review of Other Powers by author Barbara Goldsmith. This book is about the politics of free love and the Victoria Woodhull sex scandal of the 19th century. There's an interview with adult film star Jenna Jameson. There's an up and coming section on sexual related products. A letters section. An article about being bisexuality. What this zine is really famous for is they sell X-rated movies dirt cheap. Movies are only $5 and CDs $10 each.

Jesus People Newsletter, #25, 4338 Third Ave, Sacramento, CA 95817, Full-size newsletter, 24 pages, Free
This zine is a Christian out reach project. They are very critical of other Christians. They hate Mormons, Pagans, Satanists, Catholics, Gays, Calvinists, Identity, everyone except, of course, the Jews. 50 years ago, when the A.D.L. weren't so powerful, they would have been anti-Jewish as well. Fucking chicken shits! They hate gays even though neither Jesus nor Yahweh were heterosexuals. This never made any sense to me about Christians. Why do Christians hate gays when they worship a "god" who hates pussy? They sell a book, The Cult Named Christian Identity, which uses Bible study to trash the lie of Aryans being lost Jews. That looks good. There is an article attacking White nationalism, because Jesus hates the White race, but they have no attack on black, Jewish, latino, nor other forms of racial nationalism. Jesus likes black pride, but hates White pride. They tell us that the black nationalist holiday of Kwanzaa is okay, but Jesus would get his panties worked up into a wad over an Aryan Yule. Christianity has been fucking the White race for 2,000 years. It's time for this evil, alien cult to get the fuck off of Aryan land and go back home to the middle east and fuck up someone else's life for a change. I hate sex hating cults! Jesusfreak go home! Damn foreigners.

Why do Christians hate gays when they worship a "god" who hates pussy?

The Civil Abolitionist, Box 26, Swain, New York 14884, V. 9 #3, Full-size, 10 pages, Quarterly, Free, Published by the Protect Animals in Parks & Refuges. This is a very activist centered zine. It's packed full of info and projects which animal rights activists can volunteer for. Volunteerism. This is what separates the so called Left from the so called Right. Volunteerism: The Left are volunteers, givers, winners. The Right are apathetic, takers, losers. You should send for this zine. The whole concept of volunteerism, self-sacrifice, and unselfishly giving to a cause will be so foreign and new to you that you will think someone has slipped you a hit of acid. Volunteerism: what a concept.

Social Deviate, #6, 10220 Shoal Creek CT., Louisville, KY 40291, Full-size newsletter, 16 pages, Irregularly, Free? This is an interesting zine, but it's hard to tell where it's coming from. There's hints of Satanism, the Klan, punk rock, motor bikes, Christian Identity, and Charles Mason admiration. It has news clips. Reviews. Poems. An interview with Yaiquib Gabar of the Black Israelites. An article Racial Pride: The Decline & Fall of America. The Hillbilly Bohemians Guide to the Bay Area. And a piece called In Defense of Anglo-Saxons.

The Nationalist Observer, #9, P.O. Box 152603, San Diego, CA 92195 Full-size newsletter, 8 pages, $30 for a years sub: It opens with an article charging the U.S. government with hate crimes against the White race. A piece about killing Jewish abortion doctors. News bites.

Incredible Inquiry Review, #11, 153 Village Circle, Garden Valley, ID 83622, Full-size newsletter, 8 pages, $12 for 6 issue. This zine is basically Christian Identity with a Hindu twist. They believe in Karma, reincarnation, Jesus, and the Jewish "god". They are anti-Zionism, anti-Fascism

Hidden Agenda, #10, P.O. Box 3, Freeport, PA 16229, Quarterly newsletter, 30 pages, $1, Last issue. Sad, but true. This is the end of Hidden Agenda so send in your buck while supplies last. This is the Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms issue. It opens up with a history of the BATF. A piece on reasons to drink. A history of alcohol. A recipe for dandelion wine. Reasons to smoke. A history of tobacco. A history of guns. And more.

Farming Uncle, Vol XXII #1, Box 580118, Bronx, NY 10458, Half-size newsletter, 24 pages, Quarterly, $5 for one year. This is a very interesting American Indian zine. Loaded, and I mean loaded, with contacts and ads. Many, many Indian contacts. A great number of farm ads. Farming Uncle is promoting a Native American Holiday. Peyote and Shamanism contacts. A lot of info on health. And poultry news.

Ancient American: Archaeology of the Americas Before Columbus, Vol. 4 #25, P.O. Box 370, Colfax, Wisconsin, 54730, 38 pages, $24.95 for 6. This zine is connected with the fringes of the Church of Jesus Christ Latter Day Saints. My dear mother just bought me a sub to this zine for Yule in hopes that I'll return to the Church. This zine is cool and the LDS slant is only noticeable if you understand the Book of Mormon, which is the history of ancient, White America, B.C. When I was in Sunday school, the Church taught me that the angel Moroni was a blond hair, blue eyed warrior from pre-historic White America. Jesus came to America, they accepted his teachings, then later they rejected Christ and the curse of Cain and the mark of the beast was cast on the White people of America and turned their blond hair black and White skin dark: this is where the American Indian came from. The Book of Mormon use to say that if an Indian becomes a Mormon his skin will turn White again. LDS denounced racism in 1974, so the main Church doesn't teach this any more. The first story is about a Mormon sponsored expedition to the Amazon jungle in South America and find ancient artifacts from Aryan Mesopotamia. Then Searching for Lief Erickson's Vindland. Then an article: Inscribed Bone Puts Vikings in Utah. Viking art, runes on bone and Viking Age cup recently found in Utah. Petroglyph near El Paso, Texas of 14th century Viking. News Items. 5,000 year old petroglyphs in Minnesota show European roots. 1,000 year old weapons of Germanic origins discovered in Southern Illinois. They sell many books on Old World-New World connections. An article: The Lost Celtic Gold Mines of Pre-historic Arizona. And a story about the Kennewick man, the oldest human remains found in the Americas, dating back 10, 675 years. They just happen to be of a White man. The Indian community got so freaked out that they demanded the government re-bury the remains. They did. What would the American Indians do if it came out that they aren't the real native Americans and that Whites were here first? The Kennewick totally blows the notion that Whites took America from the Indians. We owned this land first. Last, is a piece about the Ancient American Conference 1998: a talk on the recent Utah cave discovery of a group of red hair mummies and another on Norse antiquities in America.

Stuff: Distribution for the Small Press #3, 5879 Darlington Rd., Pittsburgh, PA 15217-1600, 30 pages, $5 for six issues. This zine is a review zine and distributor of zines. They carry a wide variety of zines among them is Worgard The Berserker, which is a comic book about a Viking hero. A comic book called Christ the Vampire, which is about the holy bloodsucker. Here is their review of P.R.

...A voice of the Eurocentric polytheistic communities. This mag is part of the Pagan Revival Network, which is dedicated to the more Aryan pagan beliefs such as Odinism, Wotanism, and Asatru. Full of strong honest and in-depth articles and discussions on the pagan religions aforementioned. Among these other things is an excellent article on Zoroasterism, it's origins and history."

The Werewolf, #3, P.O. Box 172, Chisago City, MN 55013, Full-size magazine, 18 pages, $3 per issue, irregularly. Begins with a editorial. Then a good piece called "White Unity" Has Become A Ship Of Fools. A article called Hope: Why We Still Go On. Next is Being Alone: "Whether you are far away from the nearest believer, or in the midst of those who follow, but don't understand, isolation can do all but kill." Lots of racial rock reviews. And The Werewolf ends with Blood and Soil: The Agriculture Policy of the Third Reich.

Gauntlet: Exploring The Limits of Free Expression, #16, Full-size magazine, 122 pages, $16 for 2 issues. This issue is devoted to the hotly debated topic of nude children in art. Gauntlet takes the position that nude children in art is natural and those opposing it are either Right wing Christians or extreme feminists on the Left. This zine carries an article reviewing many "art" books of nude children. They also show many nude photos of kids. One book, The Last Day Of Summer, by Jock Sturges is mainly just normal nudism. The nudist family walking on the beach, etc. I don't know why any one would buy this book, but people should have the freedom to be nudists. However, some other books are way too sexual and are merely kiddie porn masquerading as art. The writers claims that none of these pictures have anything to do with sex and are just art. If they don't have anything to do with sex, why not make a photo book just showing children's feet or hands or the tops of their heads. One picture shows a five year old girl sitting nude with her legs spread wide open. Where is the art value in this? I normally defend pornography, but fuck, these are little kids. You can't defend some of these photos The minor topic in this issue is free expression on the Internet. They have an article on how to fight "hate speech". Photos of nude children are art, while love for the White race is a hate crime. What a fucked world we live in.

The only thing 90% of the movement is good for is they make great witnesses for the prosecution.

Obscure Publication, #44, 45 Albert St. S., St. Paul, MN 55105, 6 pages, $5 for five issues. This zine is a NEWS letter for the zine world. This issue talks mostly about the fate of Factsheet Five after R. Seth Friedman announced in #64 that he was giving up publishing the zine. Seth is selling F5 for $70,000, but without him would it be the same zine? There's a piece about Mike Gunderloy, formerly of F5, who burnt out on reviewing zines for F5 and nearly had a "break down". Can you blame him? Once F5 boasted over 2,000 reviews. How can you even read that many zines let alone write reviews for them? Info about Jim Goad, author of The Redneck Manifesto, a daring defense of White working people, (a book which most people in the so called White movement are too worthless and lazy to read and to support. What do you expect from a movement filled with free loaders. The only thing 90% of the movement is good for is they make great witnesses for the prosecution). Jim Goad is being set up and targeted for his writing. The Iron Heel is trying to give him 25 years for his writings. Obscure zine ends with a nice little ad section. This is a great zine to find out what is happening in the zine revolution. Samples only a buck.

"Weak people need strong leaders; strong people lead themselves."

Tom Metzger, director of W.A.R.

Spearhead, Issue #358, P.O. Box 117, Welling, Kent DA 16 3DW England Overseas 24.60 English pounds for 12 (I have no idea what a pound is worth in US$ anymore). 30 pages. This is the voice of the British National Party, which was created when the English National Front fell apart some years back. They open up with Nationalist comments. Next an article called The Conspiracy Against Free Speech: Jewish Group Tries to Sabotage BNP rally. Here's an interesting quote from the BNP: "We in the British National Party do nowhere advocate ill-treatment of the Jews. Those who are loyal to Britain, observe the laws of Britain and play no part in poisoning the minds of the people of Britain, have absolutely nothing to fear from us. On the other hand, of those who are disloyal, break the law and/or play a part in poisoning the public mind-whether by means of press, TV or any other medium-Gentiles are equally guilty as Jews and should be treated equally." An "anti-Gay" article which is actually very liberal by movement standards. The BNP says that if gay people weren't always in your face about their sex life, then gays should be free to live as they please, but the BNP has a problem with the gay movement's rudeness. This is a far cry from, say, the National Alliance's policy of "The Day Of The Rope". There's a lot more in Spearhead magazine. One policy change I like in the BNP is they are opening up debate in their zine. I hate totalitarianism. And in America, outside of WAR and a very few others, most American racials don't allow any disagreement within their ranks. Many "leaders", on the so called Right, Left, and Center, have failed in their private lives, and since misery loves company, they want to fuck up other people's lives so they won't feel alone. As Tom Metzger always says: "Weak people need strong leaders; strong people lead themselves."

WAR, November 1998, White Aryan Resistance, Tom Metzger, P.O. Box 65, Fallbrook, CA 92088, Monthly, Newspaper, 12 pages, $30 U.S. $40 Canada, $50 overseas. This is by far the most racist newspaper on Earth! WAR opens up with an Editorial by Tom Metzger, who tells us how WAR is different from the Right wing of the race movement. There's letters. A piece about government power over our children. Next, The Rise of the Aryan Mafia. An open letter from Richard Scutari, explaining about the attack on his Odinist kindred. An article that says Affirmative Action hires less qualified non-White air plane mechanics, and this is one reason so many airplanes have crashed in recent years. And, of course, A. Wyatt Mann comics. And tons and tons of racist goods for sell.

Sistah, #3, Sarah Falkner, 3049 W Cortland #3, Chicago, IL 60647, Half-size newsletter, 32 pages, $1, Irregularly. Sarah has created a nice little women's zine. She's a Buddhist and has a lot here about freeing Tibet from Communist tyranny. Chairman Mao killed 60 million Chinese people, mostly Buddhists and Taoists. I don't know how the Free Tibet movement can win if they are afraid to even mention the genocide the Red Chinese books are essential (Our Bible) for the reawaking Nordicist? ...are there any groups...that would be helpful in understanding Norse...religion? I'm aware that at one time you published a Pagan newsletter. Do you still put it out?...Sincerely, Tom S.

Hey Tom S.

Don't get depressed about your personal life nor the state of the White race. We were born in this day and age for a spiritual reason. Odin said: "A gift demands a gift." This is the roots of Odinism. You serve the Gods and the Folk and you will be rewarded, if not in this life time, then the next. The White race is in the greatest mess it has ever been in. This is Odin's gift to us. Crisis is opportunity. Our generation has been handed such opportunity to rise to greatness that it is in our power to become the finest generation our race ever produced. Few great people were ever created during good times. Our biggest problem is our people don't see this age as being a time of grand fortune. This is the best time in the history of our people to be alive. The fate of our race rests in our hands. We are the most important White people who ever lived. What an honor the Gods have given us. They have given us the chance to be the saviors of our people. That is so cool! My biggest fear is most White people are so lazy and worthless that they'll see this as a curse and not a blessing. Tom, the Gods just gave you the opportunity to be a hero and shine like the sun. My only question is are you a good enough man to take advantage of this great opportunity the Gods have given you? 90% of the race movement are not White enough to receive the gift of greatness.

We don't have a Jewish problem, a black problem, nor a Latino problem. We have a White problem. The greatest road block to the survival of the White race is the White race. And this joke we call the race movement is just a bunch of losers who want to find a scapegoat to blame for the avarice, inactivity, and general worthlessness of their own lives. The Jews aren't killing the White race, White people are. There is a great shortage of White children; who is to blame for this other than White people. A growing number of White men refuse to support their children; who is to blame for this but White men? The White race is fucked up, and only Whites are to blame. We must become better White men and women. We must take responsible for our lives as true men would and as true women would. White adulthood; what a new concept! Wyatt

This article appeared in the December, 1998 issue of Discover, and I thought, if you haven't read it yet, it would be worth a quick "personal" (Love fancy words!) This Viking dude is a real Jew gold mining his own people's genes in the rich Jewish tradition of blind, materialistic exploitation....

...Guys like this Viking dude give our race a bad name--so that you stop giving a shit about most of 'em-- the White race? You can count the members these days on your fingers and toes! ... Ray

Thanks for the article. Discover is a great magazine. Some years back, Discover had a cover article about Celt mummies recently found in Northern China. The Communists found hundreds and hundreds of these red and blond hair mummies, which were 1,000s and 1,000s of years old. The Reds were freaked because they had discovered that China was a part of the ancient Aryan homeland. They were so upset that they refused to allow any non-Chinese to go near the site. Many felt the Communists might begin destroying the site and all the artifacts. We, as a people, have lost so much. Our ancient homeland once engulfed all of the Americas, Northern Africa, the Middle East, Europe, and huge hunks of Asia. Now, what little land we have left is being colonized by the Third World. Democracy is taxing our race to pay for the Third World invasion of our home, and all the good little Christians welcome the invaders into their fucking churches. Across the borders and into the church; the preachers usher in the mud flood to join their congregation. You're right about how few people below to our race. White people are the White race's greatest enemy. Non-Whites wouldn't be taking over our homeland if White people didn't allow it. Wyatt

Heilsa Wyatt,

I have received the issue #41 of Pagan Revival...It is without a doubt one of the better publications I have read for some time. Thank you for taking the time to respond to my letter. I would be honored and glad to contribute some work to your publication...inside is a book review of The Barbarian Conversion: From Paganism to Christianity by Richard Flether, published 1997 by Henry Holt and Company, 556 pages....

....In regard to your response to my letter. It was around 1982 when I saw your AD (in Easy Rider Magazine), perhaps earlier. I wrote back to you in 1982. You sent me information about the Odinist Fellowship, a paper about the values of Odinism, A pamphlet advertising The Runestone (the newsletter of the late Asatru Free Assembly), and some items put out by the Los Angeles chapter of the Odinist Fellowship. Your ads were the first I'd ever seen that made me realize that there were others out there who were interested in the Gods and the ways of our forefathers. Through them I made contact with Else Christensen and Tom Padgett. A number of his childhood friends are followers of Odin. All of whom I met here in the Joint in Ohio.

I am glad you have a network of Odinists. I am not into rituals or bizarre mysticism. One should put one's creed into one's deed, as the Odinist Fellowship saying went. I, also, feel that there must be a genetic connection between Odin and his followers. We are all (from the North) children of the Gods, or at least, children of those who over the long centuries followed and were as one with the Gods.

I assume that you prefer that one reviews non-fiction type books. I work in the law library here at the prison, so I can do something on basic rights and safeguards that may be of use to one if one is arrested. One has limited rights here in the U.S., but it does help if one has the sense to make use of the ones that are still allowed us.

I assume too that you'll be wishing to work towards an Odinic nationalist state or community. I will attempt to find some books that deal with things like wiring and construction. One thing which would be good for any community is skilled people with trades that can add to the common good. One must be a warrior yet one must, also, have the skills of a craftsman....

...also, after writing the book review, by examining the means the Christians used to forcefully convert the free people of Europe, and applying some of the basic tactics of Clausewitz and Sun Tzu,

Egil's Saga

A Book Review by Michael Miller

Egil Skalla-Grimsson, born in Iceland in the early 10th century, was a warrior from the start. Going on Viking raids and traveling to lands such as England, Germany, Sweden, Denmark, and Norway in search of adventure and riches. He lived and breathed for both (my opinion). He lived a lavish lifestyle and often he would entertain warriors loyal to him for the entire winter. He was respected and feared by many warriors; those loyal to him would fight to the death. Egil was a fierce and relentless fighter. Taller and boarder than most men; his strength and combat skills were impressive. Egil, also, looked the part of a furious warrior with his oddly shaped face. Some would say he was ugly and ill-tempered.

Egil was a gifted poet. His poems were spoken in kindness, in times of need, and to give thanks. He spoke his poetry before and after battles. Egil was a kind and caring man, that is until he was crossed, then he became a beserker (enraged warrior).

If we Aryans lived by Egil's code of conduct and character, our struggle would be fought with the type of ferocity we need in our movement today.

On this day, all of us, Aryans, are being crossed. We must pick up our board swords, battle-axes, shields, and hammers and fight for a homeland we can call our own.

Tyranny is as present now as it was in Egil Skalla-Grimsson's time. We must rise up together and fight together, then victory will be ours!

Egil composed his first sassy poem at age three, and through out his life he retained the habit of answering straight forward questions with spontaneous eruptions of verse.

committed. There's lots of poems. There's a poem called Eve, which questions the wisdom of using birth control pills. Photos of cats drinking out of toilets. And an interesting article on women and Christianity.

SHENADOAH Newsletter, Vol. 26 No. 10, 736 West Oklahoma St., Appleton, Wisconsin 54914, 21 pages, Full-size newsletter, monthly, $17.50. This is an Volkish American Indian zine. It starts out with an article on the American Indian wars. Actually, there is a lot of Indian history here. One thing I like about this newsletter is they oppose the Iron Heel attack on Iraq. The editor, Scan doa, relates the Indian struggles with the Iraqi resistance. They're Pan-Indian Nationalists, and there's even a lot of info on South America Indians. Peppered through out this zine are the interesting comments by Scan doa. There's a lot of good anti-government opinions. Many Indian contacts. There's letters to the editor. This is a good zine to get in touch with the growing Indian Volk movement.

one would have an article of interest on the means of ensuring a conversion of a hostile people.

I am interested in your ideal of an Odinist meritocracy. There are rulers and followers. Some were born to be masters and others slaves. I think, although, I would give the free peasants a little more credit. The citizen farmer and citizen warrior were an important aspect of the old world and often Jarls would take children of peasants into their services as war thanes. I think that peasants only shoveled shit in the old days when they were too poor to own a Thrall. However, today, I believe that the middle section of our people have been conditioned to be Thralls, instead of free people, and if one is a mental slave, one is more of a slave than the person in bondage.

Are you familiar with the warrior Starkad the Elder? He was a Danish hero, who is of great interest to me as an Odinist hero. The Thralls and peasants all hated him, but all the warrior caste admired him. He is a good example of a proud warrior in an Odinc Meritocracy. When he was wounded in battle he refused aid from a Thrall woman, a man who was in love with a bond woman, and from a court bailiff, because all were unworthy to give aid to a warrior. He did allow a woodcutter to help bind his wounds as he was a free man about his business. I think the legend is a good one. Too many people today will hang out with and accept as friends those who are against what we stand for. How can they truly be a racially aware people and live their creed if they hang out with various muds, or those who support our foes? If you like I can expand this into an article....once again, I really liked your publication, and the people I have shown it to all liked it as well. I am glad you use the term Odinist, as natural English speakers, I feel this is the term we should use, plus Odin is the Supreme God, and whether you hold with him or his children, you still should hold with his example.... Ves Heil! Allen J. Semenchuk #A156-157, Box 788, Mansfield, Ohio 44901

Brother Allen,

Thanks for your book review. It was great! It will appear in issue #43. I am getting to the end and not everything will make it in #42. Next time, I'll start the letter section closer to the front, so I'll have more room. I want the letter section to be an open letter to the Odinic community from the Odinic community: as if it were a group of Odinists, sitting around at a pizzeria, drinking beer, and talking about Paganism, life, sex, books, their kids, a cool movie they just saw, you know, things that apply to our everyday lives as Pan Aryan Pagans. In Viking days, it would be a gathering around the mead bench. This is why I try to answer most letters publicly. I send Pagan Revival all over the world. This way someone working for an oil company in, say, Chad or South Yemen can feel like they are a part of an international Odinc kindred. I want to start local kinreds for the Pagan Revival Network, and the first kindred will be the Snail Mail Kindred of the letter sections. Many people in the movement won't give out people's addresses because they fear losing "control" (as if they ever had control) of their people. I understand that there's a "White power" cult, which is so terrified of people finding out that there is something better out there that they have officially outlawed any literature at their meetings which is not OFFICIAL cult literature. No cult can brainwash its cult members with other people's ideas floating around. Cults can't handle people thinking for themselves. Groups which are afraid of "dangerous" ideas will never free our people from the tyranny of the Left, Right, and Center, nor will it free our people from the tyranny of their own inactivity, the tyranny of their own rapacity, (rapacity is a great word which means a predatory greed so great that one would betray even their loved ones to satisfy it), nor the tyranny of their own innocence. Is there a greater oppression than the slavery of one's own innocence? The White masses are innocent people, and this is why they are the most terrible enemy our White race has ever faced. Our principal adversary in the war for White survival is the White majority. Majority rule is the dictatorship of innocence.

We need neither a dictatorship of the masses (democracy) nor a dictatorship of one individual (autocracy). Only the rule by a tribal council made up of the best, most active, and most devoted will free the sheep from the tyranny of themselves. The mindless sheep in the so called race movement are looking for a leader in jack boots to be the next Hitler or Stalin, because they are too lazy, stupid, and worthless to lead themselves. Odinism should never stink into a cult. We need all the bitching, screaming, and disagreeing to keep us a free people. As Baxter the Pagan said, disagreement and infighting makes us strongand free. This is why I open the letter section up to all ideas of the Aryan Pagan community, because all leadership of the new age has to come from The Illuminated Folk, not the mindless White sheep herd. The White sheep are, well, just sheep. Sheep just mindlessly roam the country side, allowing wolves and coyotes to feast on them, until a sheep herder and his sheep dogs come along and leads them all to the slaughter house. The masses will always be sheep, waiting to be exploited by someone. Be it by the wolves and coyotes or by sheep herders and their dogs, the White majority are just a resource, a meal to satisfy someone else's hunger. Hitler was a great sheep herder, so was Churchill, Stalin, and President Roosevelt. The capitalists are wolves. I don't believe Odinism needs a great leader, but a great cadre to make up a caste of enlightened warriors to herd the White sheep. There is no equality, not even among White people. The White sheep herd were born to serve The Illuminated Ones. This is the natural order of man and the animal world. The only way to save the White race from extinction is for us to become The Illuminated Ones. The sheep don't have the genes to be free.

On topics to write for Pagan Revival. Non-fiction and fiction book reviews are good since most people read both. People seem to like the historical pieces the best. I want to keep Pagan Revival a voice of the Eurocentric community, and since you are a part of this community, what ever topic you wish to write about is right. Reviews of the Sagas would be great, albeit I don't see them as a Bible as some Odinists do, nonetheless, they are not without some merit. I read many of the Sagas about 20 years ago, so I've forgot most of what I read. I seem to recall the name Starkad the Elder, but I can't remember any of his legend. He would be a great subject for an article. Like I said, White people are hungry to know about their history, their true culture, and the old ways. And, Allen, since you have been a part of The Illuminated Ones since 1982, how many people know as much as you what is right and what is wrong for the Folk? Very few....Hail Odin! Wyatt

Dear Cocksucker Wyatt Kaldenberg:

In your article titled "The Death of the White race?" you wrote: "In tiny Iceland, the Vietnamese refugee birth rate is four times higher than the native Whites...." Of course our birth rate is much higher than Whites cause we are better in sex than you little White bastard! We are going to increase our population in North America and Europe until you guys become minority in your own land. We will take away all your jobs and everything you own. There is nothing you guys can do about it. Remember the Vietnam war? Well, we'll teach you Yankees a lesson again if you guys don't smarten up!

Since there is only a few days before Christmas, I decided to send you a good picture of a White woman sucking a Black man's cock. White men are fagots... John Lieu, 44 Elana Dr., North York, Ontario, Canada M3N-2C2.

John:

I agree with you. Most White men are fagots. Jesus cut off their balls. Yes, for all practical proposes, the White race is extinct. The teachings of Jesus Christ have murdered the White race. Yes, there's no way for the White race to hold any land any where on the planet Earth. Jesus Christ is the father of all of this. But, no, you people didn't defeat the White race. We defeated ourselves. If the White race had the balls to purge Christianity from the West, then we would have a chance to live, but Whites don't have any balls, so we are dead ..Wyatt

Wyatt:

Thanks for your zine. Seriously entertaining ideas on "Aryanism". However, I like your style of writing. Some of your jokes are pretty funny. We both hate the Christian Right, although for far, far different reasons. I was part of an anti-Klan rally in Chicago awhile back put on by ARA. It was fairly absurd. Nothing funnier than watching you brave "Aryan" warriors hiding behind "ZOG" police for protection. If 20 clowns in dunce caps is all you people can field, isn't it time to pack it up? It was your damn rally. You clowns were organizing for months. We had a weekend notice and had over 300 supporters. What does that tell you? Jim, Riverside, IL

Hail Dear Komrade!

Thanks a lot for your letter and your copy of Pagan Revival. Please, could you send me, more stuff about your organization and magazine. S.N.R. , BP 252, 13608, AIX CEDEX 1, France

Hail Brother:

I understand you folks are trying to network with as many anti-system groups as you can. I try to send Pagan Revival to a wide variety of people all around the world. I'll include your address in P.R. If you know any Eurocentric Pagans on your side of the Atlantic Ocean and could give them my address, I would be beholden to you. I see you sell CDs from the Death Metal band Burzum. Isn't this the Swedish band whose leader singer was told by the God Odin to burn down Christian churches and killed a Communist rocker? If you are in contact this brother, give him my love! Send me a copy of Radikal and I'll review it in Pagan Revival. Even if it is in French, I have a friend who can write the review. I'll send you the new Pagan Revival. I am working on creating literature, but have none right now. ...Wyatt

Dear Wyatt,

Thanks for sending Pagan Revival #41. I really enjoyed it....

I've been involved in the White separatist struggle for about 4 years now. Although I'm not an Odinist nor a Pagan, I've had contact with many racialsists who are. I do reject the Christian religion in any form, this includes "Identity". Religiously, I would describe myself as a naturist, I do not worship any God nor Gods, not because I'm necessarily an atheist, but simply because I don't have any evidence to justify any super natural beliefs.

I find your writings very radical as well as very informative, and I appreciate this. Too many people within the movement are worried about what others will think, no movement can last like this. I, also, enjoyed your comments on Plato's Republic, and that you favor a caste system such as a Meritocracy.

You, also, stated under the Business section on the Books for Sale page, that the only way to beat the capitalist system is to become a capitalist, and I do agree. Economics almost always enters into any serious discussion of race. I am for the most part against capitalism. What economic system would you support? We hear a lot about how evil capitalism is, but virtually no one offers a solution. I am anxiously await your reply. 14 Words, Jon, P.O. Box 7364, Jackson, TN 38301

Brother Jon:

An Odinic Meritocracy is an economic system. Under capitalism, any maggot has the freedom to start a business. People who have never done a fucking thing for society are free to start a business because under a free enterprise system money is God. Under capitalism, it is everyone's right to start a business, however, under a Meritocracy, ownership of property is a privilege, not a right. Why should people who have never served the White race have the right of ownership? Under an Odinic Meritocracy, only those who serve the White race have the right to own anything; be it a business, a house, a car, a dog, or a pair of under pants. People who don't serve the Folk must borrow from the state. Under an Odinic Meritocracy, the Jarl caste, or those who serve the White race, are the state. In 1999, under American capitalism, 1/3 of all homeless people are Vietnam vets. The Vietnam war ended in 1975. What does this tell you about how America views those who serve her? Draft dodgers stayed home and were given the freedom to start businesses. Bill Clinton is a draft dodger, and he was free to become President. The free enterprise system gives race traitors the freedom to murder the West, and they are taking full advantage of that freedom. Capitalism allows the bad to excel, while the good sleep in gutters. Under an Odinic Meritocracy, all Folk heroes would be given a chance to enter the Jarl caste, where they would recnet a 99 year land lease from the state and be given the freedom to profit. Maggots who never serve the Folk would have the freedom to sleep in the slave quarters. The Jarl caste would determine what a Folk Hero is. An Aryan woman who mothered many Aryan children might be seen as a Folk Hero. Perhaps another woman who found the cure for cancer would be seen as a Folk Hero. The point being you would have to earn the right to be rich. People could not get rich making kiddy porn nor by selling heroin to 14 year olds like under the free enterprise system. Ownership is a privilege, not a right. This is what I mean by the Jarls must become the Capitalists. The Jarl caste must take ownership of all property in the Aryan homeland. Those who refuse to serve the Folk can sleep on the sidewalks.

We have White sisters and brothers inside the serpent's belly doing life plus 500 years. When the New Age comes, why should anyone of them be poor? Why shouldn't their families be given the right to kick White maggots out of their beach front mansions and claim that property as theirs?

A caste system is an economic system. One thing I don't like about the National Alliance is their Day of the Rope theory. Why kill race traitors? If they are all dead, who will work in the coal mines? It won't be me. Day of the Rope is such a waste of White slaves. Hanging a traitor and his family will hurt him for maybe two minutes, however, making him work long hours picking grapes with his family will hurt him for a life time. And, of course, if the race traitors are allowed to live AND WORK at all the crappy jobs, we have more time to enjoy life. What to do about the middle section of apathetic White sheep is up for debate. Brother Allen's ideas about the Karls are more kind than mine are. The White masses have turned their backs on our race. I, personally, will never forgive them for the mess they have gotten us in. Of course, under an Odinic Meritocracy, the Jarl caste must decide what to do with those who turned their backs on the Folk in our darkest hour. As I say, there are people far more forgiving than me. And for Christians, they are the reason the White masses are so fucked up. Christianity isn't a religion, but a disease like cancer or AIDS. Why would I ally myself with a sickness? Christians belong in the middle east. Sadly, most Odinists have a kinder view of Christians than I do. Pagan kindness and liberalism towards the Christians, Jews, and Muslims is what lead to Paganism being outlawed in our own homeland and to the rape and torture to death of millions of Pagan children. Pagans who unite with monotheists are setting the stage for future executions of Pagan people. All monotheists are demons, not humans... Wyatt

Heil Wyatt:

...Cheers to an excellent Pagan Revival; it's hotter than the flames arising from the Folkish Samhain bonfire. I like your no non-sense brand of racially pure barbarism, and your refusal to compromise, beat around the bush, nor hold back punches on the "Christian (lack of) Identity" cretins.

You really summed it up with the statement: "Jews are a hard working people, and this is why they are so powerful. The secret to the Jewish conspiracy is they push their people to success. If the Jews just got drunk and bitched how hopeless the world is, like most people in the White power movement do, then they would be losers too." Damn! That was Mjolnir hitting the nail on the head! I just fell off my chair when I read that! I was, also, enthralled by your comments on the "true Jews" and Plato's Republic. It hit me like a bolt of White lightning! Heil to you kinsmen. I would like to reprint your diatribe on the "true Jews" with your permission, I have never read a better assault on the Judaization of the Aryan soul. Enclosed is a copy of my Odinic magazine Fenris Wolf, P.O. 161, Clinton, WA 98236 and some pamphlets detailing the philosophy of the White Order of Thule, which is the Aryan Pagan occult brotherhood that Fenris Wolf is affiliated with.

Keep your blade honed, the Day of the Wolf draws nigh! For blood, soil, and the Fenris Wolf...Nate Zorn

P.S. I saw your review of Type O Negative's "Bloody Kiss", well, that was a great CD, but if you haven't heard "October Rust", the band's latest, then you're missing out on some great Pagan Volk melodies. With Aryan Pagan tunes like "Be my Druidess," "Green Man", "In Praise of Bacchus", "The Glorious Liberation of the People's of Europa", and even "Wolf Moon". This CD strikes a chord deep in the Aryan soul, summoning forth the Aryan super predator! The lyrics are written in a Futharkian, runic font, and the lyrics booklet is adorned with beautiful scenes in autumn, and even a new "Flag of Vinland" to replace the decrepit, old "Star Spangled of David", or as some of my Southern California friends have renamed it: "The Star Spangled Beaner!" May Mjolnir crush the skulls of our enemies! Heathen holds arise!

Dear Nate:

More Zine Reviews

MOONDANCE magazine, Issue #4, C/O Timo Kolling, An der Friedenseiche 7, 32457 Porta Wesfalica, Germany, .72 pages, English, Full-size magazine, I thought issue #41 of Pagan Revival had a lot of text when instead of using the standard 12 pitch font, I used a tiny 9 pitch font. Moondance uses an 8 font. The only complaint I have is it is hard to read, especially when they use these damn tiny Lucida fonts. Some of the stories I could not read because of this. Can you read this? I can't it is too tiny. Screw Lucida! Albeit so, Moondance is a great Euro-Pagan music magazine. It started out as a Black Metal zine, but it now includes all Euro-Pagan music. It opens up with music news. They have in-depth interviews of 18 Euro-Pagan bands from Helheim to Menhir. A special on Euro-Pagan music in Ireland. They have book reviews, tons and tons of music reviews, zine reviews. A tribute to the late Eurocentric Pagan Ernst Junger. Tons of ADS and contacts with Euro-Pagans in Europe. Moondance is very into the ideas of Oswald Spengler, Nietzsche, Carl Jung, and Julius Evola (who wrote Revolt Against The Modern World). There's an interview with the head of the Dutch Pagan and Satanic Circle of Jormungandr. COJ are into the Dark Gods, so they seem to be more into Satan and Loki than Odin. I had the price of a sub, but in this sea of tiny text I lost it. It comes from Germany so send at least $6 or $7 for a sample issue. Postage alone is $4, and it costs about another $3 or $4 dollars to exchange currency. Hell, send $10 for a sample. Give the guy a break. Moondance is the most complete guide to Euro-Pagan music I have seen.

Metal Mafia, #6, P.O. Box 308, Deer Park, NY 11729, Full-size magazine, 32 pages, I could not fine any sub rate, price per issue, nor how often it comes out. I think ten cents per page is a fair price for any zine within the U.S. So, $3.20 for a sample copy seems fair to me. This is a Death Metal fan zine run by three women, who give the Death scene an unique perspective. It opens with an editorial on why this issue is late. They trusted people. People let them down. The human race would not be so awful, if it wasn't full of people. They run Death contests. They have band interviews with Lividity, Garden of Shadows, Dead Army Guy (D.A.G.), Adnauseam, The New Breed, and Skinned. Tons of music reviews. Fan zine reviews. Sick and twisted cartoons. An interview with the publisher of Intellectual Spew. And they rap it up with an article about Ohio Death Fest '98. This is a great zine for any one, like myself, who loves Death Metal.

Sure, use what ever you want. Thanks for Fenris Wolf. I'll review it next time since I am running out of room and I want a longer review of your zine than I can fit in this issue. Wyatt

Dear Kaldenberg:

....Jerry from WarHorse here. Thanks for the Pagan Revival zine. Real pro, and very informative. I am enclosing our debut CD for review. It's our older material, but it's all we have right now. For a full bio and shit check out our web site at www.angelfire.com/wa/WarHorse. Hope to here from you soon. Doomed, Jerry

Hey Jerry:

I am glad you liked my zine. Thanks for the CD. It is great. I like what Scream magazine said about WarHorse that you are so Doom you make Black Sabbath's first album sound like speed metal. How true! I look forward to hearing your forthcoming CD "Lysergic Communion". Wyatt

Wyatt:

Hey! Got your zine the other day. Thanks. I'll review it in the next issue of Metal Mafia. Here's a copy of our zine. Let us know what you think. Jenn, drummerjenn@hotmail.com

Jenn:

Great Death Metal magazine you folks put out. It's good to see women active in the metal scene. I liked the cartoon by Lisa R. First, I thought it was an attack on Jesus. I thought about reprinting it in Pagan Revival. I enjoyed the many nails driven into Christ's two inch penis, but after looking more closely, I realized it wasn't Jesus, but Bill Zebub of Grimoire of Exalted Deeds magazine, 248 Lakeview Ave., Suite 237, Clifton, NJ 07011. I only know Bill Zebub through his magazine. Bill has a brutal sense of humor, so take everything he says about you with an enormous gain of salt. Hell, I think it would be funny if you had a Death Metal beef cake contest to spoof all the cheese cake contests of Bill Zebub. If people don't like it, fuck 'em! I thought it was really cool that you dedicated the latest issue of Metal Mafia to your late grandfather. Too many people are afraid to publicly express love for family members. It shows you're not a part of the sheep herd. Wyatt
